IRISH GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY, Volume 1, No. 1, January 1990

SPEAKERS SCHEDULED FOR QUARTERLY MEETINGS. Two interesting speakers have been scheduled for the next two Irish Genealogical Society Quarterly Meetings. The meeting will be held from 9:30-12:00 at the Southdale Library in Edina.

17 FEBRUARY 1990 the featured speaker will be Stephen E. Osman, Minnesota Historical Society, Fort Snelling History Center. In his lecture/slide presentation, Osman will highlight the resources available at the Ft. Snelling History Center and describe his personal searches for Civil War soldiers.

19 May 1990 Irish-American poet Ethna McKiernan, manager of Irish Books and Media will share moments from her interesting family life and read selections from her recently completed first book of poems, Caravan. (To be covered more fully next newsletter.)

Board Meetings: begin at 7 p.m. and are held at the MGS Library. You are welcome to attend. The dates are: 14 Mar, 9 Apr, 14 May, 11 Jun, 9 July, 13 August, 12 Sep, 8 Oct, 12 Nov and 10 Dec 1990.

IRISH DAYS: are held the SECOND SATURDAY of each month from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the MGS Library. Bring your research problems and plan on one to one guidance. THE MINNESOTA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY LIBRARY is located at 1101 Fort Road (West 7th St) (at Bay St.) two blocks south of Randolph in St. Paul, telephone: 222-6929. Always call before visiting the library to be sure it's open.

THE ANNUAL IGS SPRING SEMINAR WILL BE SATURDAY, 2 JUNE 1990. Prominent author and speaker DR. BRIAN TRAINOR, currently Director of the Ulster Historical Foundation in Belfast, will be our guest. Dr. Trainor was previously Director of the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland. He has also written uncounted books on genealogical research in Northern Ireland (some available at our Library). This promises to be an exciting day! We are fortunate to have such a prominent author and speaker and know that all of you will not only enjoy him, but will take copious notes. We'll let you know in the next newsletter where the seminar will be held.

The Museum has records of many shipping companies, the port authority and maritime charities (including the Seamen's Orphanage). If you're interested, I have several mailing and telephone information for them.

LIBRARY NEWS

AUGUST-NOVEMBER 1989
BETH MULLINAX, LIBRARY CHAIR

We received a complimentary copy of The Brown Family (Vol 16, No. 1, May 1987). This genealogical journal is published quarterly by the J-B Publishing Co., 430 Ivy Ave., Crete, Nebraska 68333. The ten page issue listed numerous Browns/Brauns (even some Browns born in Ireland) with detailed genealogical information, including children, extracts of wills and marriages from Garrard County, Kentucky and the usual queries. If you have a Brown/Braun relative, this is a good source for you. Check it out in our library.

Donated by a member, The Clan McKiernan, a comprehensive study of his family, beautifully done. Be sure and check this out for style if you're getting ready to "publish" or if you have a McKiernan in your family; it's a must. Thanks, Tom!

The book Grosse Ile, Gateway to Canada, listed under books purchased last quarter, needs a little explanation to fully appreciate it. Grosse Ile, Quebec, is an island in the St. Lawrence River similar to our Ellis Island. The book gives a history of the Island, its hospital and staff and, most important to genealogists, a list of 619 orphans who arrived in 1847 and 1848. Their parents either died on ship or on the island after arriving. The list includes the names of the children, their parents when known, place of origin, and who they were adopted by. There are also several lists, including a list of belongings left by emigrants who died with no relative to claim them.

Also purchased from the same source as Grosse Ile, was St. Brigid's of Quebec and Saint Patrick's, Quebec. These are histories of these Irish Catholic churches in Quebec. You will find marriage records to these same churches in the collection of the French Canadians at the MGS Office & Library.

▶▶HELP!!! If you are cleaning house and you have Irish publications that you don't want to throw out but...We would like to get all the back issues of the following two excellent publications: Irish Genealogist, published in London from the 1940s to the present and Irish Ancestor, published by Rosemary Follitt in Ireland from 1969 through 1986. We'll pay postage or pick them up from you. Please notify Beth (574-1436).

THANKS!!! Everyone is sending Irish family histories, and pages from publications listing Irish books that look interesting for the library. I really appreciate your input as it makes this job much easier.

IN MEMORIAM

On January 22, 1990, Wiley Pope, husband, father and genealogist, passed away. Wiley was a Librarian In the Reference Room at the Minnesota Historical Society Reference Room for many years. Wiley was an expert genealogist whose goal was to share his knowledge with others. He wrote many books on Minnesota genealogy, and was never too busy to talk genealogy anywhere, anytime. He taught many classes over the years and was a charter member of the Minnesota Genealogical Society. Wiley will be missed by all of us who knew him and caught the "Spirit of Genealogy" from him. The Minnesota Historical Society has established a fund in Wiley's memory. The fund will be used for a genealogical project yet to be defined. If you wish to contribute, please send your memorial to the Minnesota Historical Society, 690 Cedar St., St. Paul, MN 55101 and mark your envelope Attn: Wiley Pope Fund.

THE IRISH FAMILY HISTORY CO-OPERATIVE

BETH MULLINAX

Good news for our research in Ireland! First, a little background. Various centres throughout Ireland began indexing parish records in Ireland in 1983. Some of these centres were established by local historical and community groups, dioceses or parishes, libraries etc.

The Irish Family History Society was established in 1984 with volunteers to coordinate and improve the work of the indexing. The Irish government set up a task force on genealogy and tourism in 1988 (80,640 tourists had listed "family history" as their main reason for visiting Ireland in 1986). As a result of the task force, the Irish Family History Co-Operative (IFHC) was established in March of 1989.

What does this mean to researchers? 1) By 1992 the IFHC aims to have indexed all available church records. Just under 50% of these have already been done. Eventually, all the records will be on a multidatabase computer system. 2) There will be 30 research centers covering the whole country. Some countries will have two (Cork, three) centers, others will share one. 3) The Ulster Historical Foundation and others in Northern Ireland are involved in this project. 4) The centers are also gathering other records and information that will be useful to the researcher, i.e., cemetery transcriptions and local histories.

Following is a list of the centers to date. Some are just beginning and will have very little information, so have patience. Others have completed almost everything available and are ready to answer inquiries. To send an inquiry: print or type the names you want checked and the area they lived in if you know (this is not necessary). Remember, you can't give too much information. Send at least two (2) International Reply Coupons. The center will notify you of their charge, usually IR £20 to IR £50 ($30-$75). You must know your county in Ireland. If you don't, watch for the article in the next newsletter on ways to find it.

We have detailed information and application blanks for some of these centers, so you may wish to check with us first. If you send me a SASE and your IGS member number and the county you're interested in, I'll send you what we have.

The Irish Genealogical Society is a member of the Irish Family History Society and has been for several years. We exchange information with them so we can keep you informed. The Family History Society has done a trememdous job under odds you could never imagine. They truly are the salvation of the Irish researcher. Their annual journals are in our research collection.

THE MOTHER LODE OF IRISH GENEALOGY

Ray Marshall

A continuation of the Table of Contents to the 16 volume Albert E. Casey Collection, emphasizing the records of NW Cork and E. Kerry, Ireland; containing over 3,000,000 names. As Ray said, "The area is bounded roughly by Newcastle, Tralee, Killarney and Mallow, with the primary area of emphasis of his searches being the central portions of this geographic paralelepiped or rhombus." The collection contains Roman Catholic (RC), Church of Ireland (CofI) and Quaker births, marriages, death records, tombstone inscriptions, newspaper abstracts, civil documents and court records. The first part of this material is continued from our Spring 1989 issue.

Good Hunting! I hope you can all walk the streets of your ancestor some day as I have. Visiting their small village, the church their children were baptized in and just walking around the area imagining them in their everyday life is a feeling you should all experience.

The major repositories of Irish family history are in Dublin and Belfast. The records in Dublin relate to all of Ireland but more to the 26 counties of the Republic of Ireland. Those in Belfast relate to the six counties of the North and, in some cases, to those Ulster counties which are not within "Northern Ireland," Cavan, Donegal and Monaghan.

QUERIES

It is a requirement among family researchers and professional genealogists anywhere in the world, to include a self addressed, stamped envelope (SASE) when writing to a person or organization expecting a reply. We ask that you include a SASE (regular business size) and your IGS membership number when sending a letter requiring a response (you don't have to send one when you send a Query for the newsletter.) Without a SASE and IGS membership number we cannot respond due to the heavy volume of mail we receive. Our mailing address is: P.O. Box 16585, St. Paul, MN 55116.

MINNESOTA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY CLASSES SET BY EDUCATION COMMITTEE

THE MINNESOTA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY LIBRARY is located at 1101 Fort Rd (West 7th St) in St. Paul. Telephone: 222-6929. Always call before visiting the library to be sure it's open. (It has an all volunteer staff.)

☐ 1st Feb, 10:30 a.m., Saturday. Beginning Swedish Research. Phyllis Pladsen, Instructor. You know your ancestors were Swedish but don't know how to find their birthplace in Sweden. Will discuss using U.S. sources (census, county histories, naturalization records, Swedish-American newspapers and church records) as well as Swedish sources (embarkation records, parish records and clerical survey). For beginners and also the more experienced. $1.25 charge for handouts. Limit of 25. Free to MGS members.

☐ 20 Feb, 7-9 p.m., Tuesday. Locating and Using U.S. Census. Paula Warren, Instructor. Census records are available for genealogical use from 1790 to 1910. Where they are located, what data is available to us and how we make use of it. Tips on federal and state census, Soundex and other indices. Beginning and intermediate level. Limit of 20. $5.00 charge.

☐ 27 Feb, 7-9 p.m., Tuesday. Researching Native American Indian Family History. John Schade, Instructor. Sources to locate your own ancestral background and prove your Native American Indian ancestry. Limit of 25. Free to MGS members.

☐ 15 March, 7-9 p.m., Thursday. Germanic Speaking Ancestor Research. Gerianne Dodge, Instructor. A basic introduction to records in the U.S. used to locate the homeland of German speaking ancestors and once found how to do research in European records. Limit of 25. Free to MGS members.

☐ 17 March, 10:30 a.m., Saturday. Basic Handwriting Analysis. Maureen Laughly, Instructor. Will cover six basic elements of handwriting analysis detecting concentration, emotion, rhythm patterns, coordination, imagination and talent. Bring handwriting samples of your ancestors to analysis. Limit of 20. Free to MGS members.

☐ 5 April, 7-9 p.m., Thursday. Starting a Family or Surname Newsletter. Jim Warren, Instructor. Practical help for editors or contributors including: research, editing, newsletter design, printing, advertising, mailing and more. Limit of 20. $5.00 fee.

☐ 19 April, 7-9 p.m., Thursday. MGS Library Orientation. Ozzie Thompson, Instructor. The MGS Library continues to expand, adding books and materials every week. Become better acquainted with resources which may aid your research. Becoming a MGS Library volunteer will benefit all of us. Learn about card catalogue, vertical files, cemetery books, historical and genealogical materials on Minnesota, the U.S., Canada and other countries; maps, new and used books for sale, and all the free stuff. This just has to be fun. No limit. Free to MGS members.

☐ 24 April, 7-9 p.m., Tuesday. Prepare to Publish. Liz Ebbott, Instructor. This entertaining video will introduce you to the art of publishing. It will show you how to design a book, prepare the text, organize a manuscript, understand book manufacturing, arrange photos and charts, save money and plan for completion. Useful for anyone ready to publish or considering publishing their own material. Find out what is involved before committing your resources. 30 minute video will be followed by a discussion/sharing period. No limit. Free to MGS members. Advanced material.

☐ 26 April, 7-9 p.m., Thursday. Basic African-American Research. Margaret Ford, Instructor. Beginning research, techniques of research without personal contact, non-marriages, using the Slave Schedule and information about the Afro-American Historical and Genealogical Society, Inc. will be covered. Those who are researching their African-American background are interested in beginning a genealogy group. This may be the start of something new. No limit. Free to MGS members.

☐ March 6, 13, 20, 27 April 3, 10, Tuesday evenings, 7-9 p.m. MGS Six Week Basic Genealogy Course. Arthur L. Finnell, CGRS, Instructor. Designed for beginners or as a refresher course, subjects covered are: Getting Started, Library Research, Court Houses, State Archives, Church and Cemetery Research, and the National Archives. Classes include discussion periods and homework assignments. No telephone reservations. Enrollment is limited to 15 persons. $25 MGS members, $27 non-members. No extra charge for materials. Refunds will be given.

Note: An Education Committee Meeting will be held at the MGS Library on Thursday, 22 March at 7 p.m. If any of you feel you are knowledgeable in a particular area of general research or are interested in belonging to the MGS Education Committee, plan on attending this meeting or, you may write Jan North, MGS Education Committee Chair at P.O. Box 16069, St. Paul, MN 55116 or call the Library at 222-6929 and leave a message for her.

IRISH DAYS AT MGS LIBRARY CHANGED: Due to scheduling conflicts with others who use the library, we've had to make some changes in Irish Day. Please mark your calendars. The new Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. are: 21 April, 12 May, 9 June, 14 July, 11 August, 8 September, 13 October, 10 November and 15 December.

BETH MULLINAX'S AND MURIEL HOLLAND'S IRISH SODA BREAD...We've had many requests for this recipe but each time we wanted to run it in the newsletter, some people said "We're not running a recipe club," while others said the bread was so delicious that everybody ought to have the recipe. The editor has the final vote! Here it is:

3C sifted flour
1t salt
1t baking soda
4t baking powder
1C raisins or 1t caraway seeds (optional)
1t melted butter/margarine
1 3/4C buttermilk

Mix dry ingredients, add raisins, melted butter and buttermilk. Knead lightly. Place in greased round cake pan, incise with an "X", bake in preheated oven for 375 degrees for 40 minutes.

You may write to the ENGLISH GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY at 3824 58th Avenue No., Minneapolis, MN 55429 or you may phone Barbara Sexton, newsletter editor can be reached at 537-2118.

The WRIGHTMAN GENEALOGICAL RESEARCH FOUNDATION OF NORTH AMERICA sent us a sample copy of a newsletter. Alternative spellings are WHITEMAN and WHITMAN. Their address is: Wightman Newsletter, 268 Indian Creek Road West, Chatham, Ontario N7M 2E2.

In our February newsletter, the phone number for the National Library in Dublin was published. A member called the number and was told that the Library had moved and she was given a new number. Since then, we called the number we listed and reached the National Library, located on Kildare Street, and it has no plans for relocation. The "new" number our member was given is for the Genealogical Office which is part of the National Library but in a separate building. The member suggested that telephone numbers not be included in our articles. We agree.

Beth Mullinax is in letter and telephone contact with Ireland almost on a weekly basis, and she maintains heritage centres. We keep that information (divided into counties) in notebooks, in our Library so that nobody has to call Ireland to see what information is available. An old saying in genealogy is:

"DO YOUR HOMEWORK IN AMERICA BEFORE GOING OVERSEAS."

The entire reason for our library is so that you CAN do all of your homework before writing to Ireland, hiring a researcher, or going there yourself. That's why we spend so much money on our collection. Our lists contain information on precisely what records are available at every research resource. You should only contact a specific record repository in Ireland for a copy of the actual record you want and of course, you should write, not call. If you want to know if your family is listed, that is genealogical research for which a fee is charged and not a job for the staff at any record centre to do for free. There is nothing a record centre in Ireland can tell you about availability of certain records that you can't find at our Library.

For Mrs. Gloria Brown who wrote to say that she had never received a summer issue of the newsletter: A summer 1989 issue was never published. Two issues back, we explained that due to the omission of that summer issue, we extended each member's subscription by one quarter, ensuring that everyone would get four newsletters during their membership year.

THE SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY is hosting their 21st annual Jamboree on 6 May 1990, 9:30 to 4:30, at the Pasadena Center, 300 E. Green St., Pasadena, CA. WELCOME TO GINNY DELANEY OUR NEW SECRETARY. When Ginny called me to ask if we still needed a secretary, she said that she'd wanted to "get involved" for some time but just never got around to it. Needless to say, we're all thrilled to have Ginny with us.

Tickets are available by mail from: Gaeltacht Minnesota c/o Sean Kelly, 804 Capitol Hgts., St. Paul, MN 55103
The Evening will be held at the Half Time Rec, 1013 Front Ave., St. Paul on Sunday, May 6, 7-11 p.m.

IGS NEWSLETTER...We received requests for copies of all of our newsletters from two sources recently. The Library of Congress wrote asking for a set to add to their collection and included an address label for free postage. Also, the Genealogical Periodical Annual Index requested copies of all issues available to index and publish in their annual index with no cost to our Society. When the indexing is completed, the copies of the newsletter are donated to the Prince George's County (MD) Genealogical Society Library.

The Board agreed to honor both requests as the additional exposure for the Society and for your Queries would be great. When we began assembling newsletters, we found many gaps in back issues. We made some calls and, as usual, our members came through.

A special thanks to Arlene Fenning, Jan North, Norm Patterson and Wesley Waring. We would have been lost without you all. A complete set of the newsletters has been bound and is in the library in St. Paul. We also have several sets available for future requests. (Beth Mullinax)

FROM THE LIBRARY

JANUARY MARCH 1990

DONATIONS, PURCHASES, PROJECTS
SUBMITTED BY BETH MULLINAX, LIBRARY CHAIR

A special THANK YOU to all members sending in donations for the library, both books and money. Our library is growing, and for the first time since we established a "library" that is available at times other than meetings, we have more to buy than we have money to spend! There are several reasons for this. First, Ireland is making more books and reference materials available and secondly, we have become known so people are contacting us.

Several people have written and inquired about the Irish Ancestor and the Irish Genealogist. The Irish Ancestor is no longer in publication but we have purchased all available issues. All of the back issues were not available, so if you have copies and can fill in our set, we would appreciate it. The issues received are listed with library purchases. The Irish Genealogist is still being published by the Irish Genealogical Research Society in London. We joined the Society and have on order $100 worth of back issues and will order the remaining issues still available as soon as we have the funds. Again, there will be holes in the complete set as all back issues are not available. The Irish Genealogist began publishing in 1936! Both of these publications are excellent research sources.

Now for our special projects. I'm very excited about them and hope you will share this excitement. First, the microfiche reader/printer which is covered in the article "Donations."

Secondly, we commissioned the finalization of a project titled "Index" at the National Library in Dublin by researcher John Grenham. Mr. Grenham works for the National Library and also does private research. To assist researchers at the National Library, he compiled this index of research information on the 32 counties of Ireland, available in the National Library . With our small donation, he was able to finalize the project to make it ready for publication. He of course, will have the copyright, but we have a copy which I'm sure is the only copy in the United States! It has not been published yet. When we were in Dublin last fall, I was given a copy of the index for County Kerry. I considered it valuable enough so that I was bothered that it might never be available to all researchers. Hence our agreement with Mr. Grenham.

The "Index" lists the reference material available in the National Library including parish records with dates, maps of the RC parishes, estate records, emigrants, published family histories, wills, etc. These are not copies of the records themselves, but a list of what is available in the National Library. You are probably wondering now what good this will do for IGS members not able to go to Dublin, aren't you? Well, some of these records are available in our library, and many more in the LDS (Mormon) libraries. Also, if you plan on hiring a researcher, you'll know what is available for your county, even down to the reference number! Mr. Grenham has the copyright so we cannot reproduce the "Index" for sale, but he has given us permission to share the information with our members. If you will send us $3.00 for printing and mailing, we will send you the information on your county. The complete "Index" will be in the library.

The last project I want to talk about resulted from and will compliment the state information in the Index. The IGS has commissioned Mr. Grenham to do this project. Due to Ireland's need for this work to be done, Mr. Donal Begley, Chief Herald of Ireland, has agreed to match our funds! The project? Indexing the estate records available at the National Library. Mr. Grenham is taking a county at a time and counties Roscommon, Sligo and Leitrim were received by us on 1 April 1990. He is going through the available estate records and noting the ones which have genealogical information in them and just what the information is. For example, "Lease Books," including many leases to small tenants mentioned in the leases, rentals, major tenants only, etc. Also, he has listed the townland covered by each estate and of course, all of the library reference numbers. The actual records can only be researched in Dublin, however, whether you do it yourself or hire someone, with this information you can go to the appropriate book or books whereas previously, you might have spend days going through books that didn't even cover your townland or contain any genealogical information.

Why is this information so important to researchers? Many of us are stuck at the 1930-35 period because church records before that period are sparse. With this information, we can check the estate records for our county for information that in some cases, goes back to the 17th Century. Again, this will cover all 32 counties and remember, until 1922, Ireland was one country under Great Britain, so all records until that year are housed in Dublin - and to save you the trouble of writing to dispute that last statement, we know that Belfast has copies of many of the Dublin records.

We expect to realize some revenue from the sale of the publication of this material. However, the important part is that we are assisting in the completion of a much needed project at the National Library. We are also making a statement to the Irish Government that we are serious about our research and that we are willing to spend some money to assist them in making their records more accessible to researchers. We'd appreciate our members' comments on these special projects.

DONATIONS

In February of this year, the Fort Snelling Employees' Association, St. Paul, Minnesota, donated $1,500 to the Irish Genealogical Society to be applied toward the cost of a microfiche reader/printer which we hope to purchase for use of library patrons. The reader we wish to purchase makes copies, has the three different lenses we need due to the different sizes used in filming our microfiche. This machine also uses plain bond paper (which is a savings in the long run) and makes transparencies for overhead projectors. The reader would, of course, be housed at the Minnesota Genealogical Society's (MGS) Library and be available to anyone.

All donations which we receive, unless earmarked for another purpose, are going into the special fund for this projector. A special thanks to the Fort Snelling Employees' Association for their generosity and to all of you who are sending in donations. We'll keep you informed of our progress.

LIBRARY ACTIVITIES IN IRELAND

To continue our efforts in keeping you informed on the indexing of church records in Ireland, we pulled the following information from The Kerry Magazine, No. 1, 1989, published by the Kerry Archaeological and Historical Society. The article, entitled Indexing of Catholic Parish Registers for the Diocese of Kerry, was written by Thomas O'Connor, Kerry County Library. We are including the entire article to give you an idea of the problems encountered and the work involved in a project of this size.

"A project to index the Catholic Parish Registers was initiated under a Social Employment Scheme, in February, 1988. The Scheme which was undertaken by Kerry County Library in cooperation with Dr. Diarmuid O'Suilleabhain, Bishop of Kerry, is based in Kerry County Library Headquarters, Tralee.

The Diocese of Kerry consists of 53 parishes, which includes the whole County of Kerry plus the Cork parishes of Castletownbere, Allihies, Eyeries, Adrigole, Glengarriff, Bohebue, Bere Island and Dromtarriffe and Millstreet.

The Parish Records are in varying states of physical condition, access being through the direct permission of the Parish Priest. Earliest registers include Killorglin (1798), Tralee (1772), Killarney (1792) and range down to Ballydesmond and Bere Island, where no records are available beyond circa 1870.

The physical condition of some records gave the greatest cause for concern. Some were properly ruled registers with self-contained columns, properly bound. Others came from the days when paper seemed to be scarce indeed, with up to 60 entries crammed into an unruled A4 size page. Most up to the mid 1900s were written in Latin (of different standards) hence Christian names Hieronymus, Gulielmus, Dionitius plus phrases such as "dispensa in 3 +4 consanguanita gradibus" or "contraxit in matrimonium cum". Throw in the loose pages which served as official registers for some parishes, the incidence of mould from those kept in poor conditions, frayed edges and torn pages which led to details being lost forever, plus the fading ink which utterly tested the eyesight.

Registers were indexed up to 1900 only, in order to preserve the confidentiality of the more recent records, except where the Parish Priest requested that it be done further and includes both Baptismal and Marriage records.

To date, work has been completed on the parishes of Valentia, Firies, Killeentierna and Killorglin. At present the parishes of Castlegregory, Beaufort and Milltown are being indexed. In addition a group based at Teach Siamsa in Finuge are indexing some of the North Kerry registers including Listowel, Duagh, Tarbert, Lixnaw, Ballylongford, Moyvane, Ballybunion and Causeway.

Therefore, at present, approximately 25% of the parishes of the diocese have either been or are in the process of being indexed. When finally completed a few years from now, a master index will be available, thus giving easy access to this major source of genealogical information."

COUNTY MAYO CEMETERY TRANSCRIPTIONS

Ian Cantwell, Castlekevin, Annamoe, Bray, County Wicklow, Ireland, has transcribed the tombstones in 65 graveyards in West Mayo. In general, they cover to the West of a line drawn from the East of Lough Mak to Castlebar, then to Lough Beltra and then West of the Nephin mountains. It includes all surviving and legible memorials to a date of 1901 or before and in some cases, he has included some more modern ones. There is not a wealth of information on these memorials as this was a very poor part of Ireland. Mr. Cantwell has not had the funds to publish the transcriptions (maybe we can help him with this) but he has offered to look up information for anyone writing him at the above address. I think a check for $5.00 (about 3 lbs Irish Punt at the present rate) should cover postage and handling.

IRELAND: THE HOUSEHOLDERS INDEX, THE GRIFFITH'S EVALUATION, Betty Pfeiffer, 1988. Reviewed by Virginia Mahoney.

This is a good, accurate account of one person's search through the Griffith's Evaluation in order to verify information she has regarding her immigrant great-grandfather. She begins by giving an account of what Griffith's is and proceeds to take the reader with her through the steps that are applicable to any researcher prepared to spend the time and energy to do proper research. The book has exact reprints of what you will find on the Householder's Index films available through the LDS (Church of Latter Day Saints) Family History branches.

Their St. Paul facility is at 2140 No. Hadley Ave., Oakdale and the Minneapolis facility is at 2801 No. Douglas Drive, Crystal. We are fortunate to have on permanent loan, at the Oakdale library, the Householder's Index for all counties in Ireland.

Besides providing reprints of the information you will be working with, Pfeiffer has included in the last half of the book, all films relating to the Index and the actual films complete with numbers that fit the different counties that you may be ordering. Information on the Tithe record is also touched on briefly.

Working on any films relating to foreign countries and dealing with a different apportionment of land is confusing, but an in depth study of this publication is sure to lead you to a successful search. For those members who do not have access to the libraries mentioned above, it will be necessary to order the Index out of Salt Lake City through your own LDS library.

PASSENGERS TO NEW BRUNSWICK: THE CUSTOM HOUSE RECORDS 1933, 34, 37 AND 38. Reviewed by Virginia Mahoney.

This volume contains the collected passenger records of the heaviest immigration years at the various ports in New Brunswick. This will be of special interest to our Society as the largest single ethnic group of arrivals came in from Ireland. Researchers interested in this area and in these years will find an easily read account of over 375 pages listing passengers, ages, port of embarkation, name of vessel, captain, plus port of arrival and date. This book is indexed and a valuable asset to our collection.

AMERICAN PASSENGER ARRIVAL RECORDS. Michael Topper, Genealogical Publishing Company, Baltimore, MD, pp134. Illus., maps., charts. Reviewed by M. C. Burk.

In 1900 the United States population was 76 million of which 10 million or, 14% were foreign born. It is estimated that between one half to two thirds of all people who went to the Colonies south of New England were servants. From Bristol, England alone, 10,000 servants came to the Colonies between 1654-1686. (continued on page 10)

The Great Famine in Ireland sent more than one million men, women and children to the United States and Quebec in the period 1846-1851. In 1820, the first year in which official passenger lists were kept, fewer than 10,000 passengers arrived at Atlantic and Gulf ports from abroad. By 1846, the first year of the Great Famine, the number of arrivals had swelled to 300,000 in one year. From Germany came 344,000 Germans in the period of 1847-1851.

The arrival of thousands between colonization and independence went largely undocumented because there was no proper framework for record keeping. So immigration records were either slim, haphazard or non-existent while emigration records were only slightly better. Congress passed legislation in 1819 regulating passenger ship arrivals in American ports. This act gave birth to an amazing and intimidating mass of immigration records - widely scattered, but they are there!

Michael Tepper in this book examines all the records in their historical and legal framework and cuts them down to size to make them accessible by telling what they contain, where they can be found and how used from the Colonial period to the Quota Acts three centuries later.

If you are confused on sources to try in tracing ancestors who immigrated to the Unites States, you will enjoy the references in this 134 page book which is easy to read and follow in the who, the where and the how in immigration source records.

HOW TO TRACE YOUR IRISH ROOTS, Nora Ni Anghousa. Starting with information about what researchers of their Irish roots can do at home, this informative and easy to read book is helpful in describing the process of tracing records through churches, libraries and other record offices. It also lists Roman Catholic Dioceses and parishes, Protestant parishes and useful addresses. Paper. 68 pp. $6.95+ (continued on page 11)

NEW GENEALOGICAL ATLAS OF IRELAND, Brian Mitchell. An invaluable aid for tracing ancestors, this atlas provides at least three maps of each county, showing the six different administrative divisions to which all record sources are linked. This allows the researcher to identify precise locations and their jurisdictions. Paper. 123 pp. $18.95+

THE SURNAMES OF IRELAND, Edward MacLysaght. More than 4,000 Gaelic, Norman and Anglo-Irish surnames are listed, with brief information on origins. Locations of ancient territories and populations groups are cited. Technical terms are clearly explained, and appendices and maps are included. Paper. 374pp. $11.95+

BOOK OF ULSTER SURNAMES, Robert Bell. While the turbulent history of Ulster can make the tracing of the origins of the names of the province seem complicated, the insights in this excellent reference book also make it fascinating. Over 500 of the most common names are presented along with their histories, while reference is made to thousands more. A glossary, index and select bibliography follow. Paper. 285 pp. $15.95+

BOOK OF IRISH NAMES: FIRST, FAMILY, AND PLACE NAMES, Ronan Coghlan, Joyce Grehan. The first section of this attractive book offers a wide choice of first names with their derivations and history. Eighty surnames are presented in the second section, with their backgrounds and illustrations of their coats of arms. The last section lists place names and explains how they were anglicized. 128pp. $8.95+

IRISH NAMES FOR CHILDREN, Patrick Woulfe. This handy pocket reference book provides information on the origins, meanings, and associations of over 300 Irish first names. Also included are a complete calendar of Irish saints and an English-Irish index. An informative book, invaluable as an aid for naming children. Paper. 68pp. $4.95+

DO YOU HAVE AN ANCESTOR WHO IMMIGRATED TO THE UNITED STATES BY SHIP BETWEEN 1820 AND 1950???

If your answer is NO, you will not find passenger arrival records in the National Archives relevant to your research. Virtually no passenger lists exist for the pre-a820 period because the Federal Government did not require their submission at ports of entry. Lists compiled after 1950 are still maintained by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The National Archives has passenger arrival records for most major North American ports of entry. There may be, however, substantial gaps in coverage. In order to request a search by the National Archives, you MUST be able to provide them with at least your ancestor's full name and port of entry.

The above was abstracted from the National Archives publication Getting Started, Beginning your Genealogical Research in the National Archives in Washington, available through the National Archives and Records Administration, Washington, DC 20408, 1987, pp. 22.

ANOTHER IRISH RESOURCE - COUNTY SLIGO Ann Storey, Toronto Tree, May 1987, SUBMITTED BY CATHERINE SPOTTKE

From a book published by the New Brunswick Archives, I noticed that many of the immigrants to Canada from County Sligo, in the western part of Ireland, were assisted by the Palmerston Estates and the Gore-Booth Estates. The National Archives of Canada were not able to help me. During a visit to Ireland over a year ago, I spent several days in the Sligo area. I learned that the Palmerston Estates, which were only a few miles away (and where Lord Palmerston had been murdered), had been cleared of all his belongings and the estate was rented to strangers. I did not visit it.

The Gore-Booth Estate was open to tourists as Lissadell House, and was 13 kms north of the town of Sligo. A descendant of the Booths was in residence. She told me that the two estates had worked in close cooperation. Sometimes one of them would buy the piece of land from the emigrants, and the other would outfit them and pay for their passage. The Gore-Booth records had been destroyed in a fire in the 1940s. The Booth descendant suggested that I write the nephew of Lord Palmerston. I followed this up and he replied that all the documents and papers of his uncle were being deposited in the University of Southampton. It would take some months before they would be catalogued and ready for searching.

Ann Storey received confirmation that the University of Southampton now holds the records for the Palmerston Estate in County Sligo, Ireland. Lord Palmerston assisted some of his tenants to emigrate to Canada. Some lists of emigrants have survived as have some rental records for tenants. If your ancestors were Palmerston Estate Tenants, you might inquire about the "Broadlands Archives" by writing:

CANDIDATES FOR 1989-90 EXECUTIVE BOARD POSITIONS

At our Quarterly Meeting (see page 1), the following candidates for the IGS 1990-91 Executive Board will be presented to you for your vote.

President: Dan Moriarty. Dan has been a board member for 3 years, first as secretary and later as first vice president and acting secretary. During the past year, Dan has planned all of our quarterly meetings.

First Vice President: Kathryn Smith. Kathryn has very deliciously and fulfillingly served as IGS hospitality chair for the past two years. Now that she's been around for a while, she wants to become more actively involved.

Second Vice President: Beth Mullinax. Beth has been with the Society for many years and has found her niche in developing major relationships with Irish genealogical resources such as heritage centres and in purchasing publications and microfiche not generally available in the United States. She also led her first research tour to Ireland last year and it was a phenomenal success.

Treasurer: J. Robert (Bob) Kelly. Bob's affiliation with the IGS is historical in itself, he having served in official capacities with the Society since its 1978 inception. Most recently, Bob was our treasurer in 1985-86 and President in 1987-88.

Secretary: Ginny Delaney. Ginny, our newest officer, has been with us 4 months and is doing a fantastic job as secretary.

THE LEGEND OF THE "RED HAND"

SUBMITTED BY TOM MC KIERNAN

A digest of a portion of "The Clan McKiernan Family History."

The Irish race of today is sometimes referred to by some as the "Milesian Race". This does not give proper credit to the Firbolg and the Tuatha De Danaans. Ancient legends report that some of the Celtic Irish are descendants of Milesius of Spain, whose sons invaded what is now Ireland about four hundred years before Christ. The Milesians settled in Ireland, and after many fierce battles, merged with the other Celtic Tribes that had preceded them.

The people that occupied the land when the Milesians arrived were the ancient tribes of the Firbolg and the Tuatha De Danann. These people were not exterminated by the conquering Milesians, but were to form the basis of the future population of the country. These people were dominated and guided, and their characteristics molded, by the far less numerous, but more powerful Milesian aristocracy and soldier.

The McKiernan family legend picks up these ancient Celts some centuries prior to the birth of Christ, when a band of Firbolg Celts first journeyed up the turbulent waters of the icy straits in their migration from Greece to the shores of the Emerald green island now known as Ireland. The burly warriors crowded together in the lead boats, and according to the legend, had decided among themselves that the first man to put his hand upon the new land would be their king.

As the boats raced through the churning surf towards the shoreline near the mouth of the River Slaney, a stalwart figure stood out in the bow of one of the boats. He stood tall, with his gleaming, heavy ornate sword drawn. His feet were planted firmly, and with a single swift move, he suddenly cut off his left hand and deftly tossed it ashore.

Being the first man of this Celtic band to place his hand upon the shore of their new home land, he had earned the position as leader of his people, and the title of king. The legends of the Clan McKiernan do not record a name for this leader, but the Book of Invasions written in the 11th or 12th century under the Gaelic title of Leabhor Gabhala states that the Firbolg brought five chieftains with them to Ireland: Gann, Genann, Rudraige, Sengann and Slainge, the five sons of Dela, who was the son of Loch.

Ancient legend states that the sign of the Bloody Hand became part of the heraldry of the Clan O'Neill - great ancestor of all the Irish Princes of Ulster - and in later years appeared in the coat of arms of that great clan and many other clans of Ireland. It is one of the oldest of heraldic symbols and is also found in the coat of arms and seals of the province of Ulster and is known as "The Bloody Hand of Ulster." The official heraldic description of the Bloody Hand reads "...argent, a sinister hand erect couped gules." What this mysterious and cryptic description means is "on a silver background, the palm of a cut-off left hand, erect and red." This Bloody Hand also appears in the seals of the counties of Tyrone, Derry, Antrim, Monaghan and Cavan. (All in the province of Ulster.) You will note that these counties are all clustered together or are contiguous to each other (See the map of Irish counties on previous page.) This could indicate that the descendants of that fierce Firbolg leader were all driven up into the same area of Ireland after they were defeated by the Tuatha De Danann and have all retained this link to their heritage.

In Ulster, the ancient laws and customs of the Irish prevailed over all of what later became known as the "Nine Counties." It was there that the greatest, and last, act of Gaelic rebellion against English rule, and English ways took place. It was led by the powerful Hugh O'Neill, Ulster's principal chieftain and briefly, the real King of Ireland. He was a direct descendant of Niall of the Nine Hostages, who was High King of Ireland from 380 to 404 A.D. His tribal emblem was the Red Hand, which in due course, became the emblem of all Ulster, and has remained to this day as the emblem for that province.

A MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT DAN MORIARTY

"Almost a thousand welcomes" from the Irish Genealogical Society of Minnesota, which now has over 732 members!

Hello, I'm Dan Moriarty, your president for 1990-91. I value your confidence in me and my fellow officers! And my thanks to the officers, volunteers and members who carried us through the first ten years!

We have a challenging decade ahead. But, before that, let's take a moment to get acquainted. Here's a quote that has great meaning for me: "Long ago Terence taught us that every person is enriched by the history of others; must we not understand our parents to know ourselves?"

That was difficult for me, since my mother died when I was four, my father when I was six. Then I was adopted by my father's brother and moved from Kentucky to North Dakota. Years later I wondered about who I was and started my search...putting together a family tree at wakes and weddings.

Then in 1978, I published "The Moriarty Clan" newsletter, which has had subscribers in 12 countries and 48 states. And last year, I completed The Moriarty Story, combining the history of Ireland and the History of the Moriartys.

Now, as president of the largest Irish Genealogical Society in the world, I'm embarking on another exciting adventure - but this time I'm not alone. I have a strong, supportive group with me...and that includes you.

In my experience, I've found that people join an organization for one of two reasons: they subscribe to a service or they're committed to a cause. Lately, it seems, more and more people just subscribe to a service. Maybe that's because they don't understand what the cause is...or weren't involved in creating the mission. Right now, over half of our IGS members live outside of Minnesota. We are no longer clustered exclusively in the Twin Cities area. We are diverse with different needs and wants.

What should our mission be? What goal might excite us to explore new heights? Perhaps, Dr. Brian Trainor, Belfast, provided one glimpse at our June 2 seminar when he indicated there now is an interest in Ireland to combine resources - human and material - with IGS...to venture into a new relationship.

That excites me! Does it excite you? Maybe you have other dreams you think we should accomplish. If so, please tell us on the enclosed Search for a Mission sheet. Let your imagination run wild; hold nothing back! I'd love to hear from you!
Thanks!

Dan Moriarty

♩♩♩In the April issue of The Septs we discussed Ontario research. Here's an update from the Scottish Genealogical Society, May 1990. If you know which county in Ontario your ancestors lived during 1871, LORAINE ROUZER, 6424 Maloney Ave., Hopkins, MN 55434 (925-8529) (please enclose a SASE), will check indices to the 1871 Ontario census for you. She has indices for the following counties: Brant, Bruce, Elgin, Essex, Haldimand-Norfolk, Halton-Peel, Hamilton-Wentworth, Huron, Kent, Kingston-Frontenac-Lexington-Addington, Lambton, Lincoln-Welland-Niagara, Ottawa-Carleton, Peterborough-Victoria, Simcoe, Storemont-Dundas-Glengarry-Prescott-Russell and Wellington.♣♣♣Postage from Canada to the U.S. (for your SASE) has increased to 45 cents. Loraine has a supply of Canadian postage stamps to sell.♣♣♣If you're doing Canadian research, Generation Press, Agincourt, Ontario has many books for sale to help you in finding your ancestors in New Brunswick, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Cape Breton, Ontario and Prince Edward Island. Check the "mixty-maxty" white notebook on the Scottish shelf at the MGS Library. This information is listed under "Canada, Reference Books".

♩♩♩DID I RENEW MY SUBSCRIPTION? WHAT IS MY IGS NUMBER? I WONDER WHY I HAVEN'T RECEIVED A NEWSLETTER LATELY. I NEED TO CHANGE MY ADDRESS. WHERE SHOULD I SEND IT? Call or write EILEEN CASEY, 5833 PEARSON DR., BROOKLYN CENTER, MN 55429. Eileen does our membership rosters and mailing labels and assigns IGS numbers. She knows who is and who isn't a member. 1990 Irish Days are: 14 July, 11 August, 8 September, 13 October, 10 November and 15 December.

///ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH, FAIRFIELD, VERMONT. History written by Rev. James E. HORAN. Started in 1858 with 150 Irish families and 25 French Canadian families. First Irish settler was Thomas RYAN, born in Kilkenny, Ireland. He came to Vermont in 1812. Around 1815, Patrick DENIVER, Peter and Lawrence KIRK and the McENENY brothers arrived and in 1820, Patrick KING, James CARROLL and Peter Michael CONNELLY joined them. The first priest was Jeremiah O'CALLAGHAN, born in County Kerry and ordained in 1805. Fr. O'Callaghan came to Burlington, Virginia ca. 1830. In 1854, Rev. Thomas REARDAN, a native of Cork, arrived in Vermont. He was ordained in Cleveland, Ohio and died in 1861 at age 29. Records of baptisms may be found in several places: ▲1818-1830 records are in Chambly, Quebec. ▲1830-1847 records are at the Catholic Church of the Immaculate Conception in Burlington, Vermont (however, I believe they are now in the Diocese Office, North Avenue, Burlington, Vermont, ATTN: Archives). ▲1847-1850 records are at the Catholic Church of the Immaculate Conception, St. Albans,Vermont. ▲The years 1850-1947 (except 1893-1906 destroyed by fire) are at St. Patrick's, Underhill, Vermont. Some surrounding towns would have records included here until about 1868: Albany, Bakersfield, Cambridge, Lowell, Belvedere, Eden, Enosburg Falls, Glove, Hyde Park, Johnson, Montgomery, Richford, Sheldon and West Berkshire.

///IGS QUARTERLY MEETING SCHEDULED FOR 29 SEPTEMBER 1990. The Board has not finalized a location or time yet, but we do know that the entire meeting will be devoted to YOUR SPECIAL GENEALOGICAL INTERESTS. Our staff will be on hand, but you are encouraged to come prepared to share your knowledge, skills and experience. From now until then, gather your genealogical materials and write out your questions. We'll advise you by a special mailing of the time and place of the meeting.

///MAKE YOUR RESERVATIONS NOW for the always great MILWAUKEE IRISH FEST is celebrating its tenth anniversary and is scheduled for August 11-17, 1990 at Milwaukee's Henry W. Maier Lakefront Festival Park (Summerfest Grounds). Tickets are $6 adults, $3 seniors and kids 12 and under, free. If you bring 10 clean tin cans to the Fest on Sunday, August 16, you can enter the grounds free. For accommodation information contact the Greater Milwaukee Convention & Visitors Bureau at 1-800-231-0903. You may write the Milwaukee Irish Fest '90 at P.O. Box 599, Milwaukee, WI 53201 for a brochure which will inform you of the "...wonder and excitement of Irish culture and music..." planned for the Fest.

THE IGS NEEDS YOUR HELP

We very badly need a PUBLICITY CHAIR who can give "maybe" 3 hours a quarter to mail notices of our quarterly meetings, special classes and annual seminar to the news media (We'll provide you with the list of media). ♣♣♣ WE ALSO NEED someone with ROOTS or PFS, to organize and maintain our membership interest lists and ancestor charts which will eventually be published by us. These are HUGE tasks which will take lots of time and require expert knowledge of genealogical software - which we don't have. You must be a member of IGS, however, there are no geographical restrictions on where you live in order to volunteer to do these jobs. ♣♣♣ WE ALSO NEED someone with a current working knowledge of GRANT WRITING. Again, there are no geographical restrictions - but you must be an IGS member. All expenses will be reimbursed.

///WHAT IRISH RECORDS ARE AVAILABLE IN YOUR AREA? Over 50% of our 700 plus members do not reside in the St. Paul/Minneapolis area, they are located in Ireland, Canada and from coast to coast in the United States. We've covered what's available here in Minnesota, but we need to know what's available in your area. For example, were there early Irish settlements, churches, organizations? What Irish cemeteries are around you? Which ones are in your state? What records or publications are available for sale that could be purchased for our library? Could you get photocopies of records (birth, death, marriage or cemetery) and donate them to the Society? Do you have specific knowledge of Irish history in your area that you could write up for the newsletter? We need you to help us to be able to serve our members in any location. You can send your suggestions or material to Beth Mullinax. If you don't want to obtain the records yourself, we'll do it.

THE TITHE APPLOTMENT BOOKS, (compiled by civil parish in the period from 1832 to 1837) can now be purchased on microfilm. The tithe was paid to the established church and the books list all tenants who paid the tithe, which was a tax based on the size and quality of a tenant's farm. There are 130, 100 foot microfilms available (for all 32 counties) and the the total cost is around £4000. The IGS would like to purchase the films county by county and would welcome your donations to purchase part or all of any county you might be interested in. Checks should be made out to IGS and mailed to us ATTN: Treasurer. Please indicate what your donation is for so that it goes into the proper bank account.

///Do you have any old photographs, books, letters, musical instruments, banners, badges or any other memorabilia of Irish-American origin? If so, the Irish American Heritage Museum would like to hear from you. SOME DREAMS TAKE TIME

Eleanor McGough Leonard

The excitement grew as our plane landed at Shannon Airport. We had been to Ireland before, but this time it was different. We were going to meet my husband's ancestral family. As a genealogist, I have a habit of saying that for every person who immigrated there were those who stayed back. Now we were going to prove that line.

I'm not sure which one of us was more excited. My husband because it was his family or me because it was my efforts that found them. We noticed everything as we drove along. The fields seemed greener and the spring flowers brighter and we could not help but wonder about Del's great grandfather who left County Sligo with a wife and two young sons to find a better life. We had to wait for sheep or cows to get off the road so we could pass but this only added to the magic of returning to ancestral roots.

We followed the cousin's good directions and soon were driving up a small road and as we turned into the driveway beside a 200 year old farmhouse, we were greeted by cousin Violet Johnston. What a wonderful meeting. For her it was a dream come true. She had been told the story many times about Del's great grand mother and her two sons who left Doonbeakin. As they started down the tree lined land, young John Brett, Del's grandfather, turned around and told Violet's great Granny, "I will come back." He ran back for another kiss and repeated, "I will come back." It was a sad parting for the four year old.

"I will come back. He ran back for another kiss and repeated, I will come back." It was a sad parting for a four year old.

He had made plans to do just that after he retired from the Pennsylvania Railroad. His dream was to return to Ireland to get his 33rd Masonic Degree. However, just five months before he could fulfill his wish he was killed as his train was involved in an accident on the famous Horseshoe Curve near Altoona, Pennsylvania.

Years later, his grandson would make the trip to Sligo. We walked up the lane under the same trees, listened to the stream that runs nearby that they had used for water. It is a very pleasant setting. Donegal Bay can be seen from the main road as well as the Donegal, Knockrea and Ben Bulben Mountains. Some walls decorated with yellow flowering Winz crisscross the gently rolling hills, sometimes following rows of trees. Here and there, cottages and out-buildings can be seen but they are far outnumbered by cows and sheep.

It was wonderful to see the farmhouse where the Brett family had lived. Inside the stucco building, the stone floors had not changed and the huge fireplace is still used for cooking by a single, male cousin who lives there. A large "dresser" (cupboard) held a number of large platters that had been used by the family so long ago.

We stayed with Violet just down the hill from the old homestead. She lives on a working farm but there seemed to be time to enjoy a cup of tea in front of the peat fire and share information and stories. We savored the warmth of the fire and the hospitality and as we became better acquainted, the years seemed to melt away. One can go home again, if only in the heart!

"DEAR SEPTS"

A COMPENDIUM OF CORRESPONDENCE

I ENJOYED the recipe very much (Irish Soda Bread). What's wrong with printing recipes? We are more than names, dates and places. I would also enjoy more recipes (from Ireland.) More info on Irish customs, special days, besides St. Patrick's Day, pictures, history...anything. Going to the library is fine, but not much is available. I'm trying to teach my children about the Irish people; their people. While I have not been very successful in finding my family, at least I can teach my children about the country. IG#643 - MICHELE BLOM, ST. PAUL, MN

I HAVE the KELLY/KELLEY Indices for the following censuses:

New York, 1830, 1840, 1850; Pennsylvania, 1850; Ohio, 1840, 1850, 1860; Michigan, 1840, 1850, 1860 (for Detroit and Wayne Co. only)

I also have KELLY/KELLEY entries for Detroit City Directories: 1852-1873, 1880, 1885, 1890 and 1900. I have the same for Buffalo, New York, 1977 and Toledo, Ohio 1866-67. I have lists of Catholic parishes and dates of establishment for the Detroit, Buffalo and Toledo dioceses as well as the Canadian diocese of London, Hamilton and St. Catherine's Ontario (covering all of Southwest Ontario). If any IGS members are interested, they can write me with particulars and a SASE and I'll see if I can help.

☺☺☺HINT TO RESEARCHERS: When trying to locate Catholic parishes in an area, write to the Diocesan Archivist, Diocesan Chancery (these are listed in The Catholic Directory at your local library.) When writing to a parish, it's best to write to the Secretary, rather than the pastor; your letter will be answered much faster. (Always enclose a SASE and include a small donation for copies of records - $2.00 is good.) Don't ask for too much! You folks are doing an excellent job!
IG#043 - STEVE DENNEHY, 400 W. Mercury, Apt. B, Butte, MT 59701

ENCLOSED is a little story about a trip back to Ireland to meet my husband's family. For me, this was the "pay" for lots of hours of research and I could not have felt happier about the result if I had found my own folks! We have been back several times and keep in touch between visits. The family is growing because each time we go to meet more relatives. As a new member I am just beginning to learn about your services, but I do thank you for "being", it is great to have such a resource in the U.S. (see page) IG#653 - ELEANOR MCGOUGH LEONARD

A HISTORY OF CLARE ABBEY AND KILLONE, Joseph Power

Researchers concerned with "roots" connected to County Clare would do well to read this 45 page history that concerns the town of Clare Castle, just south of Ennis, that comprises the parishes of Clare Abbey and Killone. This account has been well researched and gives us an in-depth study of the people, religious centers and the other aspects of daily life, dating back to the earliest beginnings, including some cemetery information.

The author has included two good maps plus numerous pictures to acquaint the reader with the area. This publication proves to us, here in the states, the value of the parish histories of Ireland. The pages are filled with names of the residents from the early years and contain two pages of the Tithe Applotment records of 1826 from Clare Abbey Civil Parish complete with the name of townland, acreage and the amount of tax levied against the tenant for the support of the established church at that time - the Protestant clergy.

Currently, we are in the process of purchasing a few copies of Mr. Powers's book and hope to have them for sale for approximately $15.00 plus mailing costs. Interested parties might view the copy in our collection or contact us for more information.

/ / /THE GENERAL REGISTER OFFICE/Joyce House/8-11 Lombard Street East/Dublin 2:
A birth or death is usually registered at the local Dispensary/Health Centre/District Registrar's Office. Marriages are either registered in the church where the ceremony took place or at a Registry Office, or to the building attended by the Registrar of Marriage. The filled register books are forwarded to the Superintendent Registrar, who in turn forwards a copy to the General Register Office. Among the registers and records deposited in the General Register Office are:

A. Registers of Births, Deaths and Marriages for all Ireland from 1 January, 1864 to 31 December 1921, and for the 26 counties from that date.
B. Registers of marriages in all Ireland from 1 April 1845 to 31 December 1863, except those performed by Roman Catholic clergy.
C. Registers of births at sea of children, one of whose parents is Irish and registers of deaths at sea of Irish born persons for dates and areas as above.
D. Registers of births of children of Irish parents and registers of deaths of Irish born persons certified by British Consuls abroad, since 1 January 1864 to 31 December 1921.

JAMES P. MCCORRY, Wauconda, IL wrote about his experience with the National Archives due to an article in the April Septs. Mr. McCorry writes: "Also on page 11 - Ship Lists. The article is not correct. They will not search the records for ship arrivals unless you can give full name, date and the name of the ship. You can imagine my suprise when I talked to the head officer of the NARB for Great Lkaes (Chicago) and he told me cannot and will not be able to get the ship records for anyone even on microfilm as the costs are prohibitive and the Washington D.C. branch does not distribute copies to any branch for research. This includes all soundex records by port (Philadelphia, Boston, etc.)"

Response: Thanks for writing, Mr. McCorry. We never know what a record repository will or won't do until we have an experience with them. In this case, I extracted (word for word copying) from the pamphlet, so that readers wouldn't get my interpretation of the facts, but could draw their own conclusions. It's very important for us to share information on our experiences with others doing research and The Septs is a good place to do that. Thanks!

"From 1841 to 1901 the population of Ireland fell from 8,175,124 to 4,458,775. (By 1981 the population of Ireland stood at 5,005,605.) In the fifty years from 1851 to 1901, 3,846,393 people emigrated from Ireland. In seven of those years, namely 1851, 1852, 1853, 1854, 1863, 1864 and 1883, over 100,000 people left Ireland each year to a new and different way of life. Figures for the years 1891 to 1900 show that 90% of these emigrants settled in the United States." THE SEPTS

DEIREADH FOMHAIR (OCTOBER) 1990 CEAD MILE FÁILTE Volume 11, No. 4

FROM OUR PRESIDENT...

Failte! This time from over 800 members, as we steadily gain more human and financial resources. And thank you for your responses to my first message! Nothing stimulates one more than knowing others are with you...even when you're wrong.

Dr. Terence Quirke, Jr., Golden, Colorado, brought me up short with a well-documented letter, pointing out that the IGS is not the "largest Irish Genealogical Society in the world." He noted that as of "31 December 1989 the Irish Genealogical Research Society founded 1936 London had 863 members."

So our task is clear - if we wish to be the largest (and most helpful) society. We must expand our membership, not only to bring in more resources but also to extend our service capabilities. We're now attracting members through an ad in the Genealogical Helper, through brochures in various cities, and beginning with this issue, through a "one-on-one" campaign.

Your Board of Directors has adopted a budget that increases funds for our newsletter and library. To balance that budget, we must obtain 400 new members or receive many more donations. I'm confident we can do that if we all do our part.

Therefore, included with this newsletter is a membership brochure to aid you in seeking a new member. If each one signs one, we can easily square the budget.

Additional funds are also being sought in other ways. On October 17, Beth Mullinax and I will appear before the Minnesota Historical Society's Grant Review Committee to present our request for a microfilm reader/printer. This equipment will assist those far from St. Paul with hard copies of microfiche plus speed up research for members working on site. The cost of reader/printer is $3,160, with IGS putting up half, $1,580. We already have that half, thanks to a gift from the Veterans Administration Employees Association, Fort Snelling (thanks, particularly, to one of its members, Beth Mullinax).

I've already signed up my new member, a friend who's been thinking about genealogy for some time. I just encouraged him to do it now. I hope you'll help a friend in a similar way. And please read an article elsewhere in this issue regarding the many ideas I received from you readers. Thanks, again, for your wonderful support!

PRESIDENT MORIARTY'S IGS MISSION MEMBERS' CONTRIBUTIONS...

Ten letters were received from members in response to President Moriarty's call for suggestions regarding the mission of IGS for 1990-91.

Randy Burns, Bethel, Minnesota, would like to hear speakers talk about Irish history in general and such topics as "Why emigrants left Ireland," and "What they found in New York or in the Midwest."

Former IGS Treasurer Terrance Carroll of St. Paul, Minnesota, suggests more genealogical success stories/sharing of information through the newsletter, library or at general meetings.

Dr. Terence Quirke, Jr., Golden, Colorado, encourages the continuation of "people helping people" network through the newsletter or personal mail with researchers exchanging detailed information.

Frank L. Morris, Jr., Camp Hill, Pennsylvania, believes that the Elderhostel Program should be contacted for possible college credit for genealogical study, enabling researchers to travel and learn at a low cost.

Michele Blom, North St. Paul, Minnesota, desires an information exchange program to be set up with a sister society in Ireland so that queries can be handled directly on both sides.

Cecilia Keating Sharka, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, would like a step-by-step procedure to follow in order to locate hard to find Irish kin during the period 1815-1850.

Virginia Mahoney, St. Paul, Minnesota suggests the formation of a newsletter committee to broaden the writing and decision-making responsibilities and lighten the load on the editor.

Stephen V. Dennehy, Butte, Montana, believes that identifying areas of heavy Irish settlement (1830-1880), church records available (time span, location, etc.) and Irish name newsletters and family associations would promote greater research networking.

Kathryn L. Smith, Minneapolis, Minnesota (IGS Second Vice-President), feels that IGS will grow successfully if the newsletter has more universal interest; new books are not reviewed until they are actually available in the library; family group sheet information of members is made available as soon as possible and appear in publication; and every officer and committee chair should have a written job description, including deadlines to be met.

James O'Toole, Plymouth, Minnesota, would appreciate a better new member training program with more opportunities to work with experienced members.

A sincere "Thanks" to all who contributed! Other ideas may be submitted to me at any time.

The College of Saint Thomas Special Collections Newsletter, Varia, announced that this summer, they have added to their "computerized data base edition of the alphabetical index of householders contained in the general valuation of rateable property in Ireland." For your use, the Celtic Collection now has Griffith's Valuation for the City of Dublin and Counties Carlow, Cork, Fermanagh, Limerick, Longford, Monaghan, Tipperary, Waterford and the Municipal Borough of Belfast.

The library also acquired the microfiche of the 1796 Spinning Wheel Survey of Ireland and the All Ireland Heritage edition of the 1871 Townland Index of Ireland.

In March of 1990, Jim Kellen's title changed to Special Collections Librarian. John Davenport, College Archivist, who formerly held the position, became Acting Librarian.

The Celtic Collection will be closed until January of 1991 due to remodeling. You may call Jim Kellen at 612/647-5318 for further information.

You may also use these microfiche collections at the IGS library. Please see "Update" section for hours.

GENEALOGICAL UPDATE

NEWS, EVENTS, CLASSES, MEMBERSHIP INFORMATION

IF YOU HAVE QUESTIONS ON MEMBERSHIP RENEWAL, YOUR IGS NUMBER, WHY YOU HAVEN'T RECEIVED A NEWSLETTER RECENTLY OR AN ADDRESS CHANGE are the province of EILEEN CASEY, 5833 PEARSON DR., BROOKLYN CENTER, MN 55429, 533-3181. Eileen does our membership rosters and mailing labels and assigns IGS numbers. When you contact Eileen, please have your refer to your IGS number.

MEMBERSHIPS: IGS has one class of membership at $10.00 per year. New and renewal checks should be sent to the return address on this newsletter, Attn: Treasurer.

FORWARDING NEWSLETTERS: Our newsletter is mailed out (for economic reasons) under the bulk rate. The post office does not forward bulk material. If you've moved and did not sent the IGS a change of address or, if we receive the address change too late to make a change for the current issue, the newsletter will be mailed to your old address and WILL NOT BE FORWARDED. (We print our labels 7 days prior to the mailing.) If you don't receive your newsletter please get in touch with Eileen Casey to be sure she received your address change and she will see that one is mailed out to you. Under bulk mailing, our newsletter can take up to ten days to be delivered to you.

DUE DATES for submitting material for inclusion in the newsletter are:

March 15 for mailing April 15
June 15 for mailing July 15
Sept 15 for mailing Oct 15
Dec 15 for mailing January 15

Reader participation is necessary for the success of this newsletter. To participate by contributing your experiences is to maximize your membership. Go Raibh Maith Athe to those members who have contributed in the past and especially to those who are regular contributors! We love it.

QUERIES should be submitted according to the above due dates. If they are received after the due date they will be included in the next newsletter unless they can be formatted into the current issue. A query can only be run if you are an IGS member and if you provide your IGS number at the top of your query.

Irish Books and Media now has a toll free number for credit card orders of $15 or more. 1-800-229-3505.

EDITOR'S NOTE: It was recently called to my attention that during 1990, each issue of The Septs had a new volume number. 1990 should have been Volume 11, Numbers 1, 2 and 3. The page numbering in the July issue was also noteworthy! By issue 3, I remembered that page numbers in a volume should be consecutive from the first issue to the last. My thanks to all 850 recipients of The Septs who did not bring these things to my attention! I will be aware of these things in future issues.

IRISH DAYS AT THE LIBRARY...1990 Irish Days are: 13 October, 10 November and 15 December, always the second Saturday of the month (10 a.m. to 4 p.m.) unless cancelled. What are Irish Days? On these Saturdays, members of the Irish Genealogical Society are the volunteers at the MGS Library. They are there to assist you with the Irish collection and to help you with your Irish research questions. It's always a good idea to call the library before you drive any distance. Any questions on Irish Days can be answered by Beth Mullinax, Chair of the Library Committee at 574-1436. We are always in need of volunteers. If you can help on Irish Days, please contact Beth.

SPECIAL PROJECT:
Purchasing microfilm of THE TITHE APPLOTMENT BOOKS compiled in Ireland, by civil parish, from 1832 to 1837. The tithe was paid to the established church and the books list all tenants who paid the tithe, which was a tax based on the size and quality of a tenant's farm. There are 130, 100 foot microfilms available (for all 32 counties) at a cost of about £4000 ($7,000). The Applotment Books are major records and the IGS can't buy all of the films at once, but will buy the films county by county as money becomes available. Your donation toward the partial or total purchase of any county you might be interested is more than welcome and a gift that is just as important as volunteering your time toward a project. If you wish to contribute to this project, your check should be made out to IGS and mailed to us, ATTN: Treasurer. Please mark "Tithe Applotment" on your check so that it goes into the proper account. For further information contact Beth Mullinax.

INTERNATIONAL RECORDS CAMPAIGN

Thank you! Thank you! to the many members who have already submitted records from their state or from states they did research in. Since more than half of our members do not reside in Minnesota but are located in Ireland, Canada and throughout the United States, we need to know what's available in your area. For example, where are the early Irish settlements, churches, and cemeteries in your county, province or state? What records or publications are available for sale that the IGS could purchase for its library? Is it possible to get photocopies of early vital records for your province, county or state, i.e., birth, death, marriage, cemetery or census records?

Do you have specific knowledge of Irish history in your area that you could write up for the newsletter? THE IGS NEEDS YOU to help us be better able to serve our members in any location. You can send your suggestions or material to our address, Attn: Beth Mullinax. If you are unable to obtain the records just let us know and we will follow up.

REMINDER: Please, thoroughly documented any records you send us:
A. The name of the source, i.e., Marriage Records, 1875-1880, Pine Co., MN, Vol. 3, page 49.
B. The complete address of where the records are located so that anyone can call, write or visit for more information.
C. Your complete name, address phone and zip.
D. The date you found the record or did the extraction.
E. Put quote marks around any extractions so that anyone who views the record can tell precisely what the record stated as opposed to what you wrote down.

DAVID RENCHER of the FAMILY HISTORY LIBRARY, Salt Lake City, Utah and featured speaker at our 1989 Annual IRS Seminar, reports that the Library is completing a Social Security Death Index for 1962-1988, that will contain 39,500 names. This information is available as a result of the Freedom of Information Act and will provide additional sources of birth and death information.

A second project currently underway is a linkage of the International Genealogical Index with the family histories on file in the library. On completion in the near term, films will be made available to all LDS libraries. The Library cameras are currently in Dublin and will be filming the 1910 census there. It will be remembered that this is a government document, not a church record and thus is available for copy.

HERITAGE CENTERS PUBLICATION AND PROJECT.
IGS has published a book listing all the heritage centres, libraries and society, etc., in Ireland that have any information of a genealogical nature. This is the same information that was printed as a series in our newsletters back in 1988-89. The book is for sale at $5.00 per copy plus $1.50 handling and postage. The Heritage Centre Project was started in 1987 when we wrote the Centres in Ireland for information. This August we again contacted them asking for current information. The response so far has been very enthusiastic, with 15 replies within three weeks of the mailing to them. We mailed 64 requests and with a deadline of November 1, 1990 to reply if they wished to be included in our next book. The information will also be run in the newsletter, but in consolidated form due to the volume of information being received.

THE FIRST IRISH GENEALOGICAL CONGRESS is scheduled for September 19-25, 1991, at Trinity College, Dublin. The Congress is sponsored by the Association of Professional Genealogists in Ireland, the Irish Genealogical Research Society, the Irish Section of the Huguenot Society of Great Britain and Ireland and the Military History Society of Ireland. It is possible to attend 18 of the 54 scheduled talks. The price is about £12.50 or £70.00 for the entire Congress. These figures include tea/coffee breaks but no meals. There is a package for room and board (except Tuesday evening) at Trinity University for £310.00 for the entire Congress. For further information, send a SASE to Beth Mullinax who will be attending.

BEGINNING IRISH GENEALOGY CLASSES. The first in a series of beginning Irish genealogy classes will be held on Friday, November 16, 1990, at the MGS Library, 1101 West 7th Street in St. Paul. Time: 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. No reservations needed, just come with your research materials. Classes are free to IGS members (bring your IGS number from address label on this newsletter). Questions? Call Beth at 574-1436.

PATRICK BALL, premier Celtic harp player and storyteller is performing at the Phipps Center for the Arts in Hudson, Wisconsin, on Friday, March 22, 1991 at 8 P.M. For more information write: The Phipps Center for the Arts, 109 Locust Street, Hudson, WI 54016 or call (715) 386-8409.

IGS VOLUNTEERS NEEDED:

A MEMBER with a working knowledge of grant writing.

A MEMBER who has data base experience, time and computer access to enter our ancestor charts. A MEMBER with data base experience, time and computer access to do our mailing list. This must be done in DOS so that the post office here can do ZIP plus 4 coding for us.

SURNAME PROJECT. During the last two years, we have asked members for surnames they were researching and the locations in Ireland and the United States. At last, an IGS member has volunteered to put this information into a computer so that it can be published periodically. While preparing the "green slips" for input, we found that many of our older members (in years with IGS that is!) never submitted one of the slips. We would like everyone who hasn't already done so, to complete the form on page ??? of this newsletter. Please print clearly or type and mail it to IGS as soon as possible. Don't forget your IGS number!

JUNE 1990 WORKSHOP HANDOUTS from our Dr. Trainor workshop are available. For those who did not attend, you can get a packet for $2.00 if picked up at a meeting or, $3.00 if mailed. Send your mail requests to the IGS, P.O. Box 16585, St. Paul, MN 55116, ATTN: Beth Mullinax. We will have information on the availability of audio tapes of the workshop in the next newsletter.

FROM THE LIBRARY

JULY - SEPTEMBER 1990
DONATIONS, PURCHASES, PROJECTS
BETH MULLINAX, LIBRARY CHAIR

Some of the research information that is being donated by our talented and generous members is unbelievable. The donations are all listed under "Donations" but I just have to expand on them.

♣♣♣ STEVE DENNEHY, Butte, Montana, donated all of his papers in his quest for his KELLY/KELLEY ancestors, which took him through Ontario, Canada, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan. By the way, he still hasn't found them! Kelly is not an easy name to research - it's the second most common name in Ireland. Thanks, Steve! Steve also sent a detailed list of all civil records, catholic parishes and cemeteries in Butte, Silver Bow County, Boulder, Jefferson County and Anaconda, Deer Lodge County, Montana. He lists the records available and for what years, giving the addresses and telephone numbers. The large Irish population in Butte worked the mines. Seventy five percent of these Irish came from the Beara Peninsula in West Cork. We appreciate all the work, Steve.!

♣♣♣ KEVIN GALEGHER, Seattle, Washington, found a lot of Irish surnames in the Old Military Cemetery at Fort Walla Walla, Washington. He felt that a record should be made of those buried there, so he transcribed the whole cemetery, which includes soldiers from the Battles of Steptoe Expedition, Wright Expedition, Modoc War, Nez Perce War, Sheep Eater War and Bannock War. The regiments represented are: 9th U.S. Inf., 21st Inf., 1st U.S. Cav., 2nd U.S. Cav., 4th U.S. Cav., 9th U.S. Cav., 14th U.S. Cav., 1st Oregon Volunteer Cav., 30th Battery Field Artillery and 146th Field Artillery WWI. A beautiful job of assembling the information. Thanks, Kevin!

♣♣♣ DOROTHY M. MERCY, Falls Church, Virginia, donated an alphabetical list of Persons Born in Ireland that Died in Perry County, Ohio, Perry County Death Records - Early Years Vol. 1, 1867 - 19--, published by the Perry County Chapter of the Ohio Genealogical Society in 1986. The document is 16 pages, single spaced, giving name, occupation, date, place and cause of death. Also listed is place of birth, but most say Ireland only. What a gem. Thanks, Dorothy!

♣♣♣ ELIZABETH CLARK has been checking through old books on early histories of the area of Underhill, Chittenden County, Ohio. Some of these gleanings have been published in past newsletters. Elizabeth recently picked up additional records and put them all into her computer and alphabetized them. By the way, they are not all from Underhill. I also see Bolton, Williston, Hemenway, etc., all in Vermont.

BETH MULLINAX

Great resource, Elizabeth! Thanks for all your work.

♣♣♣ Last year we purchased four books written by Riobard O'Dwyer, N.T., Ardgroom Village, Castletownbere, Co. Cork. Mr. O'Dwyer indexed parish (church) records for the parishes of Bere Island, Co. Cork. Beautiful job and oh, so much work, but they are not indexed.

♣♣♣MARY JOHNSON of Mankato, Minnesota, has taken on the task of indexing on her computer. After days and days of computer input, Mary finished the first book on the Bere Island Parish and we have a precious addition to the resource. Copies of the Index were mailed to Nora Hickey, Bandon Heritage Centre, Bandon, Co. Cork. Thanks, Mary!

♣♣♣ ELAINE L. GEELAN, Anoka, Minnesota, had copies of records from Counties Westmeath and Leitrim that she received in her quest for her ancestors. She has shared copies of these with us to assist others in their research. Thanks, Elaine!

♣♣♣ JOHN A. DOUGHERTY, St. Paul, Minnesota, sent us our first donation of The Irish Genealogist. We've already spent $300.00 on this journal and have just ordered $125.00 worth of indexes for the whole set, beginning in 1939 as well as the whole set of The Irish Ancestor which stopped publication in 1986. We want to get the whole set of both journals. We purchased all available copies of The Irish Ancestor. All of The Irish Genealogist is available but the out of print copies are $20.00 each. Other issues are from $10.00 to $20.00 each. The more you donate, the less we have to buy. Thanks, John, for initiating what we hope will be an avalanche of donations of these journals.

♣♣♣ CHARLES E. CALAHAN, Butler Pennsylvania, sent us a pamphlet on Thompson's Pennsylvania Rifle Battalion by Col. William V. Kennedy. This is a short history of the battalion and its leader. It gives the names of the men, almost all irish, and their participation in the Civil War. Col. Thompson's grave had been neglected until recently when it was cleaned up and a Celtic cross marker installed. We even received a photograph of the present day grave site. Thanks, Charles!

♣♣♣ KEVIN WALSH, Weymouth, Massachusetts, sent genealogical sources and libraries around Boston with Irish interests. Needless to mention the extent of the Irish in that area. Thanks, Kevin!

♣♣♣ JOHN BREEN, Sterling Heights, Michigan, has donated two histories of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church of Emmett (Little Ireland), Michigan. The histories are filled with information on the church which was founded about 1855, the area of Emmett and the Irish who settled the area. Some of the pioneer settlers mentioned are DORHEMY, DONEGAN, DUNIGAN, DUNNIGAN, GLEASON, KENNEDY AND HARRINGTON . Other names mentioned are, BROGAN, BREEN, BRANDON, BRENNAN, BUCKLEY, BUTLER, COGLEY, DONAHUE, FOLEY, KAVANAGH, KEEGAN, KEOGH, JOHNSON, MACKEY, MAHER, McCABE, McMAHON, MULLALY, NEATON, NOLAN, O'BRIEN, REEDY, REID, QUAIN, RYAN, O'CONNOR, O'NEIL, POWERS, STAPLETON.

If you look for the above resources in the library, they will be filed in the three-ring binders under whichever is appropriate of the following: Irish County Resources, Misc. States Irish Reds/Histories or, Minnesota Irish Reds/Histories. Always check the binders when you are searching. They contain all kinds of excellent records donated or purchased and are filed in the binders to keep the library shelves neat and to help small items from getting lost. REMEMBER: if you cannot get to the library, we will search through these resources, FREE OF CHARGE for all members. Just let us know what you want, send us a SASE plus your IGS number (found on the mailing label of the Newsletter).

BOOK NEWS, REVIEWS AND MAIL ORDER

MERLYN BURK, CHAIR

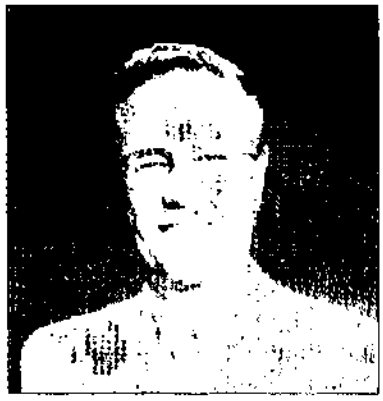
A Guide to Irish Churches and Graveyards, Brian Mitchell, 1990, clothbound, 253 pp. Genealogical Publishing Co., Inc., 1001 N. Calvert St., Baltimore, MD 21202-3897. $30.00 from Genealogical Publishing Company 301/837-8271. Reviewed by Beth Mullinax.

A Guide to Irish Churches and Graveyards is just that: it gives you an alphabetical listing of the civil parishes within each Irish county, the townland/town/street within each civil parish that has a church and/or graveyard with the denomination of the church designated. The Irish Genealogical Society has had some of this information available through other sources but this book puts it all in one easy to research source.

One of the useful aspects of this resource is the map references it gives. There are two references for each townland/town/street, giving its location in A New Genealogical Atlas of Ireland, also by Brian Mitchell, and it gives the Ordnance Survey number map on which it can be found. A handy resource if you just want to know which Ordnance Survey map to order for your civil parish or townland! This book is an especially excellent resource for the large cities. If you have an address from Griffith's Valuation, say in Dublin or Belfast, you can find the nearest church of your ancestors' denomination, and have a starting point. In addition to the two publications mentioned above, Brian Mitchell also wrote and published Irish Parish Records (1988). This publication is a welcome addition to our library.

Irish Family History, Marilyn Yurdan, 1990, cloth, 207 pp, indexed. Available by mail from Merlyn C. Burk, 4056 Kentucky Ave. No., Crystal, MN 55427, for $15.00 ppd. The book is normally priced at $19.95 retail, plus $1.25 postage.

This is an excellent book on Irish family history - comprehensive, up-to-date and totally reliable. Setting the scene, the author outlines the various aspects of Irish history which the researcher needs to know about in order to understand Irish genealogical records. She then goes on to discuss the momentous events of the Famine and the irrevocable changes wrought on Irish institutions and family life. At this point, she departs from the usual summary of Irish records and repositories and launches into an examination of Irish genealogical trails in Great Britain, the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.



MERLYN BURK

Then, back to Ireland for a detailed examination of all categories of Irish records, with emphasis on contents, coverage and use. This is followed by sections offering instructions for interpreting the records, a resume of Irish record repositories and their holdings, lists of useful addresses, a glossary of terms and a look at the latest developments in Irish genealogy.

The Uncounted Irish in Canada and the United States, Margaret E. Fitzgerald and Joseph A. King, 1990, cloth, 390 pp, illustrations, photos. Available from P. D. Meany Publishers, Box 534, Port Credit, Ontario, Canada L5G 4M2. $36.00 per copy plus $2.50 shipping for first copy, $1.00 each additional copy. In Canada: $45.00 per copy plus $2.50 shipping, first copy, $1.00 each additional copy.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the publisher's review sent to me by Joseph King, who in his note to me, mentioned that he used to be an MGS member and asked that we send him information on IGS membership. In light of that and because the review is so descriptive, I decided to run it as well as Virginia Mahoney's review. I think you'll agree with Virginia, that this is a book worth owning.

VIRGINIA MAHONEY'S REVIEW: The authors of this book have given us the most complete story of the immigration from Ireland, beginning in the early years of the 1830's onward into the late 19th century, that we have had the pleasure of adding to our collection. Reading the preface isn't suprising as the list of noted authorities in libraries and archives covers Ireland, Canada and the United States. In charting this history of immigration they have given us over 300 pages of specific names and places of many others that have spread over this country. They explored so many areas and settlements that it is impossible to really do this work justice.

In spite of the fact that this book is indexed so you can swiftly check for names there is a good chance you will want to read it from cover to cover and do like myself - BUY IT! The information on the methods used for travel, the cost to the immigrant and the time as they moved through Canada, New York via the Erie Canal, down into the midwest, especially Iowa, Wisconsin, etc., is the most complete that I have ever found and will be an asset to all researchers. If you have an opportunity to read this do not miss the last chapter for a wonderful insight into the author, Joseph King.

PUBLISHER'S REVIEW: Let it be said at the start that this is more than an ordinary book, the fruit of many years of research, study and travel. Attacking the mountain of available information, separating fact from fiction, and adding much in the form of hard facts from their own research, Fitzgerald and King throw new light on the Irish presence in North America.

The early part of the book fills in the background in the Old Country. First it deals briefly with ancient history, and the old Irish system of family relationships. Then two fascinating chapters, Harrigan's Rocks and A Parish in West Cork, paint vividly what it was like to live in a particular part of Ireland before the authors' ancestors emigrated.

In the section labelled New World Branches, the authors show that the Irish settled in large numbers in British North America during the Colonial and Revolutionary periods, and that a large part of that settlement was in rural areas. Thus they shatter beyond recovery the myth that any significant Irish immigration began with the Great Irish Famine and that the Irish settled almost entirely in the large eastern cities.

Many who were transported to the New World in Cromwellian times as bondservants rose from that virtual slavery and founded families in New England. Names such as O'Kelly, McCarthy, O'Brien, O'Sullivan, Fitzgerald, Hickey, Murphy, Maloney and McMahon, spelled in a variety of ways, are plentiful in records and lists from the 1600's. From century to century, and from ocean to ocean, the Irish came and settled and built and multiplied. They left their mark in place names and family names across the continent. Their contribution to American society through religion is inestimable though largely ignored in the history books. This book does a lot to set the record straight on this and on many other matters.

With its many stories of real people and real families, forebears of those living today, this is not a dry-as-dust volume of history. This is a readable book that can be taken from front to back or dipped into at any chapter. It is rich in facts and packed with detail. The chapters on New Brunswick, California, Wisconsin, Iowa and Texas are alone worth the price of admission. The 28 pages of Notes and References at the back of the book are an invaluable source for those interested in further reading or study, while the indexes to persons and places will certainly grab the attention of people with Irish blood in their veins.

WHAT'S MY COUNTY?

Beth Mullinax

Without the county of origin in Ireland, Irish research can be difficult if not impossible. However, there are many ways to find the county. You may try them all and still have nothing, but what have you to lose? Remember, before the indexing of church records we needed the county plus the parish to research in Ireland. The parish is a lot harder to find than a county. So before you begin the search for your Irish county, say to yourself, "This will be a breeze compared to looking for a townland or parish.

I've seen obituaries where they listed the deceased as coming from two different counties, but who cares. Researching two counties is much easier than researching 32!

Here are some ways to find the county:

The first step is to join a genealogical society and learn the basics of researching if you don't already know them. The basics are the same for most nationalities be they Irish, German or whatever. Once you have the basics, join other genealogical groups. If you don't already belong to the Irish Genealogical Society, join! Also, join a group for the state(s) you need. Also, join the groups you need information from and there are also Canadian groups if your family came through there.

These groups will have information on the area you are researching and often we find someone with a common ancestor in these groups. The time you save and the information you receive will be well worth the expense of any memberships. Many of these local groups are compiling records and publishing them - baptisms, marriages, cemetery transcriptions, etc. Most publish queries in their newsletters which gives you an outreach within the area of your searching.

By joining groups that specialize in a particular country or local area, you are in contact with persons who know what information is available and where it can be found. They also have contacts and can refer you if necessary. One of our members, Virginia Mahoney, always says that "Our greatest resource is our own members!"

The second step is to check all the surname books, and read about your family names. Edward MacLysaght is considered the modern day Irish surname expert. He has published three books on the subject: The Surnames of Ireland, Irish Families and, More Irish Families. Another good source to check is A Special Report on Surnames in Ireland by Robert E. Matheson. Matheson took all the births in Ireland in 1890 and listed the variants of spelling, number of births of each surname, which provinces and usually, the most common county(ies) for each name. In some cases, he lists where a spelling variation is only recorded in a certain Registrar's District! I know most of our families had left by 1890, but we're just looking for a likely county at this time, not your specific ancestor.

Don't worry about spelling. The Irish names were originally in Irish and if you've ever tried to study the Irish language, you can understand the problems. Some Irish surnames were anglicized by phonetically spelling the Irish pronunciation. Some were translated to the English meaning of the Irish. Some names became so common in a small area, that a branch of the family would change its name completely. An example of this is the surname Whooley/Hooley of West Cork. Some took the name Driscoll to differentiate between families. A spelling can sometimes tell you the area of the surname so always write down all variants you run into in your research. Some names can have 15-20 variants or even more! I overheard two researchers at the library talking about a common name they were researching. One asked the other how she spelled hers and the answer was "Any way you like!" That is the attitude to have. Also, many surnames found in Ireland are of English, Scottish, Welsh and Norman (French). You'll even find some Norse influence.

The books mentioned above should be available in most libraries. They are also for sale through our book sales and through Irish Books and Media.

The third step is to start checking information available within your own family and public records.

- Check for old letters and documents within the family.

- Interview anyone and everyone who may know something. Record every detail, you may use it later.

- Write your relatives no matter how distant, and ask for their help. They just might have the information you're looking for. This is how I found the townland of my Sullivans in County Kerry.

- If you reach a dead end on your direct ancestor, try his/her siblings. Remember, they had the same parents!

- Military records, especially pension records, can have a wealth of information.

- Track them on the census records, both federal and state. The 1900 federal census was especially informative. If you find the town where they lived while having their children, contact the local church for baptismal and marriage records.

- Histories of local towns/cities and churches have good genealogical information. Many have printed the names of local inhabitants when the area was settled and information on the various ethnic groups.

- City directories.

- Tombstones. It was common for the Irish to put their home county on their tombstones. If you can't visit the cemetery yourself, check the local genealogical society to see if it has been transcribed or get the address of the cemetery and write them for information.

- Obituaries can give you all kinds of information. I've seen several where they listed the deceased as coming from two different counties, but who cares! Researching two counties is much easier than researching 32!

- Naturalization and Intent papers. Usually, intent papers have more genealogical information than the actual naturalization. These papers were usually filed separately and could have been in different states if filed at all. Generally, the immigrant had to be in the U.S. for at least 5 years before the naturalization. If the ancestor homesteaded property, he had to at least have filed an intent.

- The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (LDS/Mormons) libraries have a wealth of information. They have copied many Irish records, some of no use unless you have at least a county, but there is a lot of general information that could help identify your county.

- If your ancestors married in Ireland or shortly after they reached the U.S., check out the wife's maiden name. It may be less common and easier to find than her husband's. Sometimes, by using both names, we can zero in on a county and find both names in a common or neighboring townland.

- Go through every indexed record you can find on Ireland and your area in the U.S.

- Check the 1796 Spinning Wheel index to get an idea of county for your surname. This index is about 85% Ulster Province, but does have names from almost all the counties in Ireland. An especially good source for Protestant ancestors in Ireland.

If you have tried all of the above and have no luck, please don't give up. The information is out there, you just have to find it and more records are being made available to researchers, both in the U.S. and in Ireland. If all else fails, you may want to visit Ireland, find a favorite county and just adopt it as your own. With the "Plant a Tree" program of the Irish American Cultural Institute, you can even plant a tree there so you can honestly claim to have some "roots" in your adopted county! Happy Hunting!

If you have success by following the above suggestions, please let us know. Also, we're most interested in knowing how you found the county by any other methods. As genealogists, we all know what gets results for one can be a dead end for others. Please share your experiences with your fellow researchers.

Please remember that the following individuals and organisations are operating with limited funding. If you write to them please enclose AT LEAST two (2) International Reply Coupons (available at post office), to facilitate an airmail reply. Please do not send a SASE as postage stamps are valid only for the country in which they are issued. If you've got a Family Reunion coming up, please let us know and we'll run it in The Septs.

"DEAR SEPTS"

A COMPENDIUM OF CORRESPONDENCE

A SPECIAL LETTER FROM JOHN BOWEN, an IGS member from Silver Springs, Maryland, responded to our "Search for a Mission" with five typewritten pages of ideas. Here are some excerpts from his helpful letter.

"One of your first missions should be to provide a resource for research of Irish history and genealogy. I am planning to make use of the IGS library in St. Paul on October 4-5th...You might also consider a lending library as some other societies do. Of course, this requires a second set of circulating books and a volunteer crew to administer the collection.

"Another mission should be to become THE national organization for Irish genealogy in the U.S. Distributing IGS brochures at Irish festivals around the country could spread word about the IGS. I placed some at the National Genealogical Society Conference and they were gone in minutes. I would like to have a quantity on hand so that I can make them available wherever I go in the Washington/Baltimore area.

"Making tapes of various lectures available for rent or sale to out-of-town members would be an important service. Since I have a dual cassette recording unit, I could assist in making additional copies for IGS. This could generate some revenue for the library. And if someone could video tape the lectures, I would be willing to duplicate 8mm video to VHS or Beta formats.

"I think the Book News, Reviews and Mail Order column is excellent and should be expanded, if possible. Likewise, the dues for the IGS are probably the biggest bargain of any society I belong to, and I belong to about 25-30 genealogical-related groups.

"In the last issue of The Septs, I could not find an application to join the IGS. Any blank space in the newsletter could be used, especially the back page. Many of these issues could find their way into other people's hands and on to library bookshelves. Make it convenient to join IGS.

"If you haven't had a volunteer for the Publicity Chair I'd be willing to give it a shot...that is, providing it can be done from a distance. If someone will provide me the copy, I'll get it out...with Zip + 4 codes on all of your mailing lists. [Virginia Mahoney has accepted the appointment, but rest assured IGS will be happy to use any help available.]

"There is a group in the Baltimore that is trying to restore an Irish cemetery that has been abandoned. I volunteered to assist earlier this month at the Baltimore Irish Festival, but I have not heard from them yet. They are in the process of recording all of the tombstone inscriptions which I think would be a valuable addition to the IGS Collection when published.

"About your request to promote a local or state unit of IGS. I think it is a great idea and would be glad to assist and support; however, I do not have time to actively take on the organizing...If there is some other IGS member in the Washington, DC area, who may be interested, I would be glad to assist with ideas as time is available.

"There are many excellent genealogical resources in this area. For example, the Library of Congress Geographical Map Section has one of the best collections of Irish maps in the world. This section is open daily M-F to 5 p.m. and 8-12 on Saturdays. I believe it has over 10,000 maps. I did an article on this for the Harney Newsletter and would be happy to write something up for The Septs.

"I was also most interested in the article in The Septs about "What Irish records are available in your area? I belong to the Congressional Cemetery Association and believe that they are now computerizing all of the cemetery records. I don't know if they have the place of birth computerized, but this might be an easy to print out all of those who were listed as born in Ireland.

"Still another mission may be to do an exchange with some of the Irish Heritage Groups in Ireland, those in it for the love of it, not those in it for the bucks. Many of these groups are interested in finding out what happened to their sons and daughters that left. I have contact with the Drum Heritage Group in Drum, Co. Roscommon, which is just outside of Athlone. Because of the times when those sons and daughters left and because so many of them could not read or write, there was almost an instant cessation of communication.

"The Irish talk to you of the famine years as if they were only yesterday, and there is that yearning to know of what happened to so-and so who went on to America. So, just as we on this side of the pond long to know where our ancestors came from in Ireland, there are groups in Ireland that are as much interested to know of where their townspeople went...These bands of genealogical friendship across the ocean may be one of those missions you want to undertake. The Irish there have as much interest in their roots as we have; generally, however, they have someone who has the personal knowledge who can read it off as a litany much as the bards of long ago did.

"I have also found a great deal of interest with some of the libraries there. The Waterford Co. library in Lismore, for one, is very interested in an American connection for their library.

"Yet another thought: run some how-to-do-it articles in The Septs, explaining the steps needed to find your Irish roots. Thought it is tough when you don't have a townland before 1864, it is not impossible - there are a number of approaches that can be taken to hone in on ancestors. I have used the microfilm of the Mormons, but they don't have the Irish Catholic records for most of Southern Ireland. But an article on how to use these in the National Library in Ireland may be of help to our members that go over. Perhaps, the IGS could become the repository for a copy of these Irish Catholic Microfilm records.

"And one more idea: the twining with another town in Ireland. For instance, Dan, your town of Newport may be interested in twining with Newport in Co. Mayo...It was not my intention to ramble on so in this letter, but there you have it."

Comment: Indeed, IGS does "have it" from John Bowen, with much gratitude and delight. Thanks so much, John!

IGS QUARTERLY MEETING NOTES 29 SEP 1990

‣John Grenham, who is doing our estate recording project in Ireland, is now doing Co. Cork. ‣The IGS presented a grant proposal to the Minnesota Historical Society for matching funds for our microfiche reader/printer and the IGS was awarded the funds. ‣Our Library collection is currently being catalogued. ‣When Barbara Sexton completed her presentation, Terry Carroll and Ida Troy, IGS members, shared their genealogical experiences in Ireland.

Barbara Sexton, genealogist for many years and Editor of the English Genealogical Society Newsletter, spoke on local genealogical resources. Following is an abstract of her speech.

BIRTH AND DEATH RECORDS. In Hennepin County, MN, a researcher is not allowed to personally search the birth indexes because of illegitimate births also listed. You must pay search time and since each index covers only a couple of years or so, if you're not sure when a couple was married, you could wind up paying for a lot of search time. Later year birth certificates in Hennepin Co., are computer printouts rather than photocopies of the original. In the City of Minneapolis, those birth and death indexes cover several years, however, if the clerks have to hunt through lots of indexes for an event which occurred outside of Minneapolis, it could take a while. Since mid-1988, Hennepin County indexes are merged.

For birth and deaths which occurred within St. Paul city limits, records are at the St. Paul Health Department. At the Ramsey County Courthouse, you can get birth and death records which occurred outside the city limits. In Minnesota, births after 1900 and deaths after 1908, are found at the Minnesota Health Department on Delaware Ave. in Minneapolis. The MHD will give you a copy of the original certificate. Hennepin Co. is computerizing their vital records. Birth records after 1972 get a computer printed certificate. Records in Minnesota counties go back to 1870.

MARRIAGES AND DIVORCES are always kept at the county level. Marriages usually begin at the time the county was formed so they could be earlier than 1870. The MHD has kept an index since 1958. Formerly, certificates were filed by residence of the bride, while some counties are indexed only for grooms. You don't have to look for a divorce unless there's some evidence there might have been one. You have to go to the Plaintiff and defendant indexes in the civil court records. In Hennepin Co. they have an indexing system that only covers 2-3 years. Hopefully, it will be computer indexed one day. Always get a copy of the final divorce decree as it tells you the date and place of marriage and if there were any minor children. The application for marriage in Hennepin Co. indicates whether parties were single, widowed or divorced.

PROBATE RECORDS are the next thing to look at. If the deceased owned land, there will be a probate record.

Hennepin Co. has their records on microfiche to 1983. Just look on the fiche and get the file number and ask for the file. When I began my research some 20 years ago, I learned that I just needed the Petition to Probate, the will, if there is one and the Final Distribution. Probate is a great way to get the names and addresses of the relatives of the deceased and sometimes, their ages. Also in probate, there are guardianships and conservatorships. This is another way of getting names and addresses of nearest relatives. Rice Co., MN has all their probate material on microfiche which you can search yourself and decide which pages you want copies of. I was in Winona Co., MN a year ago to look at probate files and they had the index, but the files themselves were at the State Historical Society Archives, which may be the case in many counties today. Check on the record location before travelling to a county.

LAND RECORDS include deeds

Check the mortgage indexes as well as the land indexes as they may indicate a family relationship such as a father giving or selling land to a son. Deeds may also contain wills where the real property is in the will. If your ancestors owned land but didn't file their deeds, this can be a problem. I ran into this in South Carolina. Check the appeal cases (court cases that are appealed are printed books which you can find at law libraries.

Some counties have grantor-grantee indexes which can help you find land transactions. For mortgages, it's mortgagor and mortgagee indexes. In some counties, you will be sent to the abstract company because they have the index. If a county doesn't have a grantor-grantee index, you'll have to have the legal description of the property to find the deed. My great-great-grandfather was born in New York and moved his family to Wisconsin. I knew the approximate area where they lived because my great grandmother had written the burial places of two of her friends in her bible. They weren't home the day the census taker came in 1860, and I guessed they were living in one of four counties in Wisconsin. I wrote each of the counties and none of them had a grantor/grantee index to find the deeds. So, mother and I made a trip to the Historical Society in Madison and when I looked at a plat map I almost immediately found his property, wrote down the legal description, and knew which county the land was in, when he bought the property, when he sold it and when he moved to Minnesota.

COURT RECORDS: Courts have many different names in the counties. For instance, surrogate court is the probate court in New York. In Minnesota, we have criminal and civil court records. Civil court records are indexed by plaintiff and defendant, while criminal cases are filed under the name of the criminal. In Hennepin county, there are two microfilms of criminal cases: in other cases, there are more. In Minnesota both criminal and civil records may be closed to the public if the judge has so decreed. You should also be checking the books for the appeals records (at law libraries usually located in courthouses) You only have to know the state to get into the appeals cases.

NATURALIZATIONS: Before September 1906, naturalizations took place at any port and the first papers are called Declaration of Intent, wherein the immigrant renounces the nation where he held citizenship and some of these Declarations give the date and port of arrival. The Declarations in Winona Co. give nothing but the county being renounced. From September 1906 on, the federal government oversaw naturalizations and there is a good deal more information on the papers which includes: heights, weight, color of eyes, wife and children's names and birthdates, as well as an exact birthplace. You can hope that your ancestor didn't become naturalized until after 1906. Also, you can get the name of the ship. More recently, there is a photograph of the person on their papers.

OTHER RECORDS: Tax lists have sometimes been important. For instance, the 1790 and 1800 census for Virginia are missing, therefore, the substitute that we use are the tax lists. This can tell you if your ancestor was in a particular county or not. Here in Minnesota, you should look for property tax, real estate tax and, personal property tax lists - you should look for all three.

Historical Records Survey by the WPS in the late 1930's. Some of the inventories of county records have been printed and some are still in manuscript form (Ramsey, Hennepin and St. Louis Co.). The unprinted records are over at the MHS Archives and you can look at them there.

The Compendium of Historical Sources by Ronald Bremer has a list of where the manuscripts depositories are in each state. You might write for a copy of the Table of Contents or the index to get some idea as to what records might be in what state you're looking in.

When Barbara completed her presentation, Terry Carroll (former IGS Treasurer and Second Vice President) and Ida Troye, longtime IGS member and all-around doer, told about their research trips to Ireland and what wonderful success they had.

IGS SURNAME PROJECT

The last two years we have asked members for the surnames that they were researching, the locations in Ireland and in the U.S. One of our members finally volunteered to put this information into a computer so that it can be published periodically. While preparing the "green slips" for input, we found that many of our older members (in years with IGS, that is!), had never completed one of the slips asking for this information. We ask that everyone complete the following form, printing or typing clearly, and mail it to IGS as soon as possible. DON'T FORGET YOUR IGS NUMBER!!!

EANÁIR (JANUARY) 1991 CEAD MILE FÁILTE Volume 12, No. 1

FROM OUR PRESIDENT...

A happy 1991 to you and yours! I trust you enjoyed a warm, satisfying holiday season with your family and friends. I'm writing this message just before Christmas here in snowy Minnesota. It's a time to be thankful for all the blessings received during the past year.

DAN MORIARTY, IGS PRESIDENT

Our family of six married children and 12 grandchildren is most thankful for the good Lord sparing the life of our 19-year-old grandson, who nearly died from an embolism resulting from a soccer match in Houston, Texas.

At the Irish Genealogical Society office, we're thankful for many things, foremost being the wonderful support of all you members - who have stuck with us through the proverbial thick and thin...and now are bringing in new members with new enthusiasm and ideas.

I'm also pleased to announce that today IGS received a check for $1,580 from the Minnesota Historical Society, a grant which will enable us to purchase a microfiche reader-printer for our library. Many thanks are due our librarian, Beth Mullinax, for her initiating and following through on this project!

There are other highlights, but I'll mention only one: a proposal to establish our first local IGS unit - one of our goals for the year. Toward that end, a most welcome letter arrived the other day from John Rowane of Bethpage, New York:

"This week at the nearby Mormon Family History Center, I learned that Jim Reilly is also a member of the IGS. When I asked him if he had ever thought of an Irish genealogical group on Long Island, he was very enthusiastic and said, 'Let's do it!'

"So, with Jim's cooperation, I'd like to receive information on starting a Long Island, NY chapter of IGS. Jim spends each Tuesday morning at the Mormon Library helping those seeking their Irish roots. He's made a couple of trips to Ireland and plans on attending the Congress scheduled for next September at Trinity College. He would be an eager worker for a local group."

How about that! Thanks, John and Jim! We'll be sending materials to you soon. And now that those two Irish gentlemen are setting the pace, who would like to be next? Initiating a local chapter of IGS may be one of the most significant undertakings of your life.

Why not decide to do it now! It'll be something you'll take pride in for the rest of your happy days!

I received the following letter last month:

Dear Ms. Ryan: "O'Toole Handcrafts" is a small family business situated in County Wicklow. The company is a father and son combination researching and producing high quality heraldic products. We produce family coats of arms, the emblems of counties and towns, the emblems of the four provinces and Ireland's own emblem the harp. All beautifully hand painted on parchment. We can also produce to specification any company or organisation emblem. As we are keen to expand our business, you could help us if you would display the free sample we have provided among your members and friends. Thanking you for your consideration and help. Yours Sincerely, Desmond O'Toole.

Included was a gorgeous hand painted Ryan coat of arms. I can forward you an order blank, but if you're interested, drop them a line at: O'Toole Hand Crafts, Ltd., 22 Ardee St., Bray, Co. Wicklow, Ireland.

Thanks to Richard Sheil of Fredonia, New York, a new member with a computer, we now have an alphabetical list of the staff plus students at the Catholic Orphanage in Minneapolis. The year is 1900, the 12th U.S. Census. The ages of the students range from one to twelve. There are almost 100 residents, the bulk of them under age eight, mostly Irish names with Minnesota births. The index will be checked for members if you send us a S.A.S.E.

IGS QUARTERLY MEETING NOTES

Well-traveled John Baule, current Director of the Hennepin County Historical Society, was the featured speaker at the IGS Quarterly Meeting on November 17, 1990, at the Wood Lake Nature Center in Richfield, Minnesota.

Formerly Director of the St. Lawrence County Historical Society, New York State, and soon to be Director of the Western Pennsylvania Historical Society, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Baule outlined the three important sources available in New York State to genealogical researchers. Local, county and state historical societies: Although these societies were founded as a preserve of the past and not a repository to provide a connection with the present (genealogy), many contain helpful information...and because genealogists are now their best customers (and thus assist in obtaining public funding), these societies do have materials of value, particularly pre-Civil War.

Procedures for contacting these New York State counties can be obtained at any state or county historical society.

County courthouses in New York State: Since they were required by law to keep records, researchers may find information about homesteads, estates, taxes, civil courts, and the census - after 1825 - because fire destroyed the earlier records.

New York State town (township) historians: Perhaps most unique and valuable are these individuals located in each town (township in Minnesota) hall. They are appointed by the town boards and funded as the local historians. They are the keepers of materials and are the persons who know the most about the families who lived in the communities. To contact them, write to the State Historian, Cultural Educational Center, Empire State Plaza, Albany, New York for the names of these and/or the county historians. New York State also has cemetery records from 1850, which are "enormously helpful," concluded Baule.

Other IGS speakers were Terry Carroll and Barbara Sexton who shared their most recent research findings.

MARK FEBRUARY 14TH on your calendars. That evening, the Irish Genealogical Society and the Irish American Cultural Institute will co-sponsor an evening with JAMES RYAN, lecturer and author, who will talk about genealogy in Ireland. The event will be held at the University of St. Thomas and the IGS will be mailing you a brochure with specifics.

MEMBERSHIP INFORMATION

If you have questions on membership renewal,why you haven't received a newsletter recently or an address change...Contact Nancy Lee-Ryan, 1851 Goodrich Ave.,

St. Paul, MN 55105 612/699-7013. Actually, three of us are working on what Eileen Casey used to do: membership rosters, mailing labels and assigning IGS numbers. Bob Kelly, IGS Treasurer, handles your check when it arrives - recording that you have paid and how long your membership is for. He passes the "green slip" to Joe Huber for an IGS number and Joe passes them to Nancy Lee-Ryan for updating of the mailing list. When you contact any one of us please have your IGS number ready.

MEMBERSHIPS: IGS has one class of membership at $10.00 per year. New and renewal checks should be sent to the return address on this newsletter, Attn: Bob Kelly, Treasurer.

FORWARDING: Our newsletter is mailed out (for economic reasons) at a bulk rate. The post office does not forward bulk material. If you've moved and did not sent the IGS a change of address or, if we receive the address change too late to make a change for the current issue, the newsletter will be mailed to your old address and WILL NOT BE FORWARDED. (We print our labels 7 days prior to the mailing.) If you don't receive your newsletter please get in touch with Nancy Ryan to be sure she received your address change and she will see that one is mailed out to you. Under bulk mailing, our newsletter can take up to ten days to be delivered to you.

Hours at the MINNESOTA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY OFFICE AND LIBRARY, 1101 Fort Road (W. 7th St. near Randolph) St. Paul, 222/6929 are:

Tuesday	6:30 - 9:30 p.m.
Wednesday	10:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m.
Thursday	10:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m
	6:30 - 9:30 p.m.
Saturday	10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

The MGS is always looking for volunteers to work at the library. Perhaps you've been upset when you planned to do research and gone to the library when it was scheduled to be open and found it closed. That's because there wasn't even one volunteer to staff the library that day. It's important to remember that MGS and all of its branches are staffed exclusively by volunteers. Please think about contributing your time just once a month for whatever groups you are interested in. Four hours of volunteer time does make a difference and you'll never walk away without having learned something new!

Don't forget IRISH DAYS AT THE LIBRARY... Please see the Library section for our 1991 Irish Days schedule. What are Irish Days? On these Saturdays, members of the Irish Genealogical Society are the volunteers at the MGS Library. They are there to assist you with the Irish collection and to help you with your Irish research questions. It's always a good idea to call the library before you drive any distance. Any questions on Irish Days can be answered by Beth Mullinax, Chair of the Library Committee at 574-1436. We are always in need of volunteers. If you can help on Irish Days, please contact Beth.

SPECIAL PROJECT: Purchasing microfilm of THE TITHE APPLOTMENT BOOKS compiled in Ireland, by civil parish, from 1832 to 1837. The tithe was paid to the established church and the books list all tenants who paid the tithe, which was a tax based on the size and quality of a tenant's farm. There are 130, 100 foot microfilms available (for all 32 counties) at a cost of about £4000 ($7,000). The Applotment books are major records and the IGS can't buy all of the films at once, but will buy them county by county as money becomes available. Your donation toward the partial or total purchase of any county you might be interested in is more than welcome and a gift that is just as important as volunteering your time toward a project. If you wish to contribute, your check should be made out to IGS and mailed to us, ATTN: Bob Kelly, Treasurer. Be sure to mark "Tithe Applotment" on your check so that it is credited to the proper account. For further information, contact Beth Mullinax.

INTERNATIONAL RECORDS CAMPAIGN...Thank you, Thank you! to the many members who have already submitted records from their state or from states they did research in. Since more than half of our members do not reside in Minnesota but are located in Ireland, Canada and throughout the United States, we need to know what's available in your area. For example, where are the early Irish settlements, churches, and cemeteries in your county, province or state? What records or publications are available for sale that the IGS could purchase for its library? Is it possible to get photocopies of early vital records for your province, county or state, i.e., birth, death, marriage, cemetery or census records? Do you have specific knowledge of Irish history in your area that you could write up for the newsletter? THE IGS NEEDS YOU to help us be better able to serve our members in any location. You can send your suggestions or material to our address, Attn: Beth Mullinax. If you are unable to obtain the records just let us know and we will follow up.

REMINDER: Please, thoroughly document any records you send us with A) The name of the source, i.e., Marriage Records, 1875-1880, Pine Co., MN, Vol. 3; B) The complete address of where the records are located so that anyone can call, write or visit for more information; C) Your complete name, address, phone and zip; D) The date you found the record or did the extraction and, E) Put quote marks around any extractions so that those who use the data know what the record stated as differentiated from your interpretation of the record.

HERITAGE CENTERS PUBLICATION AND PROJECT. IGS has published a book listing all the heritage centres, libraries and societies, etc., in Ireland that have any information of a genealogical nature. This is the same information that was printed as a series in our newsletters back in 1988-89. The book is for sale at $5.00 per copy plus $1.50 handling and postage. The Heritage Centre Project was started in 1987 when we wrote Centres in Ireland for information. This August we again contacted them asking for current information. The response so far has been very enthusiastic. We mailed 64 requests and with a deadline of November 1, 1990 to reply if they wished to be included in our next book. The information will also be run in the newsletter, but in consolidated form due to the volume of information being received.

FROM THE LIBRARY

OCTOBER - DECEMBER 1990
DONATIONS, PURCHASES, PROJECTS
BETH MULLINAX, LIBRARY CHAIR

As usual, our members are overwhelming us with donations to the library. One of our recent donations brought something to mind that I've been wanting to mention. Many beautiful books on families have been donated to both the Irish Genealogical Society (IGS) and the Minnesota Genealogical Society (MGS). For those members who don't know, the IGS library is housed in the office and library of MGS. We tend to look at the title of these family histories and see a surname or two and if one of these aren't our, we discount it as a source. This is a big mistake!

BETH MULLINAX

The Ancestors and Descendants of F.A. Marsh and Ivy Crites, by William R. Marsh, MD and donated by Dr. Marsh, is a good example. This book contains at least two generations of the following families: Alden, Bigelow, Birchard, Biscoe, Bond, Brooks, Caulkin(s), Church, Conrad, Crites, Doggett (Daggett), Eddy, Ferris, Flagg, Hart, Heath, Heller, Horsewell, Hyde, Janes, Judd, Linnell, Lockwood, Lombard, Long, Lord, Marsh, Montgomery, Moody, Mullins, Myers, Newcomb, P(e)abodie, Parker, Pearce (Pierce), Potter, Pratt, Pyles, Rogers, Rossiter, Rouse, Savery, Saxon, Searles, Shaw, Simmons, Skinner, Spencer, Steele, Stonard, Sunderland, Talcott, Tallman, Tonge, Tucker, Warren, Wickwire, Wilbore, and Woolson!!!! Need I say more? The geographical areas most emphasized are: Plymouth Colony; Puritan communities of Massachusetts and Connecticut, Little Compton, Rhode Island; The Loyalist of New Brunswick and Toronto; Ridgetown, Ontario; western New York; Hardy and grant Counties, West Virginia; southern Ohio; western Illinois; Merrick County Nebraska. All of this in one book and all indexed! Most of us would look at the title and thought it of no use because we didn't have any ancestors with the surnames Marsh or Crites, right? The book is for sale from Dr. Marsh, 2611 Apache Rd., Grand Island, NE 68801 for $25.

Minneapolis City, Hennepin County, Catholic Orphanage 1900 US Census. Member Virginia Mahoney, St. Paul, Minnesota, extracted the Faculty and Staff and the Children from the 1900 Census. Member Richard F. Sheil, Fredonia, NY, indexed the list and printed it for us. Most of the names of all listed are Irish. The list gives birth date, age, birth place, and ancestry. A valuable resource.

Cork County Estate Records and Lismore Papers. The latest in our research project in the Dublin Archives. Again, these are not the actual records but an index of the records available in the Archives for the county. The Lismore Estate was a large estate headquartered in Co. Waterford but near the Co. Cork border. If you know your townland, we can tell you which estate your ancestors were on and what kind of records are available (in the Dublin Archives). We have received permission to release copies of these indexes to our members. We will publish a notice later of cost and procedure for this. To date we have the above plus the Counties of Galway, Leitrim, Mayo, Roscommon and Sligo.

HELP! HELP! HELP! HELP! We need someone to "organize" the project to catalogue our library. We have volunteers to do the work, it just needs to have someone organize it and help keep it going. It is not a hard job as the MGS Library uses a simplified system, I just don't have the time. If you have a couple hours a month to donate, please call Beth at 574-1436

WANT A FRESH APPROACH TO YOUR RESEARCH PROBLEMS? Member Steve Dennehy, 400 W. Mercury, Apt.13, Butte, MT 59701, has 20 years of experience researching Irish Catholic Families. He has offered to look at any member's research problems and offer his suggestions. He is willing to help with Protestant ancestors but does not have much experience in this line. He has experience with American research from the 1600's. Here is your chance. Fresh ideas are always welcome and we appreciate the offer, Steve. DON'T FORGET YOU SASE's if you take advantage of this offer.

THE OLD CROSS FAMILY MYSTERY CLEARED

By TOM McKIERNAN, Family Genealogist and IGS Member

My maternal grandmother died when my mother was just an infant. My grandfather remarried, and my mother was raised by her new stepmother. Soon after the second marriage, the family moved from my mother's birthplace in Rifton, Ulster County, New York to New Jersey. Very little information was known about her real mother. She knew that her mother was Grace Cross, and her mother had a sister Mary, a sister Elizabeth, and a brother DeWitt, but she had little contact with them. She also knew that she had a cousin Guernsey.

Grace Cross

No information was available about her mother's place of birth or date of birth, so it was difficult to find a starting point. Years after my mother's death, I found a newspaper clipping about her cousin Guernsey, who had gained prominence as Franklin D. Roosevelt's secretary. The article stated that Guernsey T. Cross was born in Neversink, Sullivan County, New York, in 1889. Based upon the information found in that clipping a search was made of the 1880 census report for Sullivan County, New York. The census revealed a great deal of information about my mother's family. My grandmother, Grace, was the youngest of seven children living at home at the time of the census (June 1880). Her father was Addam Cross, who was born in New York state around 1811. Her mother's name was Emma, who was also born in New York about 1837. Her siblings listed in the report were Lucella B (about 1861), Julliett (about 1864), Addam Jr. (about 1866), DeWitt T (about 1868), Mary (about 1870) and Elizabeth J. (about 1875). There may also have been other older daughters. There is a strong possibility that my mother's Aunt "Em" (Emma - the same as her mother) who lived in Rifton, New York, could have been an older daughter who married and was not living at home at the time of this census. Grace was listed at three years of age in June of 1880, so her birthday would have been in the last half of 1876 or the first half of 1877. Since my mother was born in May 1892, Grace would have been about 15 at the time of my mother's birth and her father, Harry, would have been 20.

Harry was a dapper young man with sparkling clear blue eyes and a trim, neat little mustache. He was the son of the superintendent of a large mill in Rifton, New York. He also played in the Rifton Band. All of the Cross men listed in the 1880 census were farmers. It is not known whether Grace obtained a job at the carpet mill, or whether she met Harry at a social while visiting her older sister Em, who was living in Rifton. In any event, she was cute, and probably precocious, little farm girl - the youngest of the family. She was apparently swept off her feet by this dashing young Englishman, and the two of them were swept into an early marriage. This could explain why Harry treated my mother so harshly when she was a young girl, and would not allow her to go on dates, or stay out in the evening. She looked a lot like her mother and Harry was probably afraid that some handsome young blade would do to his daughter as he had done to her mother. The 1880 Census also indicated that Addam had a brother, Noah, and listed the members of Noah's family.

TOM McKIERNAN

Harry Jagger

This was truly a great find and now opens the door for further research through birth certificates, death certificates and other county records to verify and expand the information found through the census.

Records obtained from Roots Research Bureau, Ltd., indicate that the name Cross is believed to have been derived from the residence of its first bearers near or at the cross or crossroads. It is probable that the name was taken into England by one of the followers of William the Conquerer at the time of the Norman Conquest of England in 1066, in the form of 'de la Croix'. The name is found on ancient English records in the various spellings of Croix, Croise, Croice, Croys, Croyz, Druce, Cruis, Crosse and Cross. It was frequently used with the prefixes de, de la, del, atte, at, and ad. Family legend has it that our branch of the Cross family was related to George Washington's wife Martha Dandridge Custin.

THANK YOU VOLUNTEERS ESPECIALLY ■ ■

...JANE O'LAUGHLIN, who did two years of data basing for us while running new book sales at all of our meetings and seminars. Jane produced Volume II of the Ancestor Charts as well as ALL of the Jessenland records. If you purchase any of these publications or use them at the library, you will notice immediately that these were not done quickly to get the books on the shelf, but rather, they were done professionally with care that the data Jane was using was as correct and that the books were well organized. Jane established a precedent for publication of IGS materials and we are grateful for her huge effort.

...EILEEN CASEY who for three years kept our IGS numbers straight (no easy task we now know), kept our mailing lists current and printed labels for every single mailing our Society did. It's doubtful that several mailings would have been done if it weren't for Eileen's diligence in having labels prepared ahead of time. We also appreciate the fact that Eileen recently chaired our constitution and by-laws revision committee - which entailed draft after revised draft.

THE DOHENY STORY: MY RETURN TO THE ROCK

By: IDA TROYE

In the beginning, I only knew that our Doheny brothers - Thomas, Walter and Frank (born in County Cork, our family thought) first came to Pennsylvania and in 1852 moved to Minnesota where they established the first Irish settlement, Doheny's Landing, in Jessenland, Minnesota. I also knew their birth dates.

After several unsuccessful attempts to locate the brothers in County Cork, I read in an 1882 Minnesota Valley history that "Walter Doheny, son of Thomas, born in Tipperary, served in the Civil War." I knew that a famous rebel, Michael Doheny, had come from there besides other families that travelled through Susquehanna, Pennsylvania to settle in the same area.

I started with the 1855 Griffith's Evaluation charts to discover which Doheny's might still be there in the two counties. There were several in Tipperary plus households for Morrissey and Cunningham two of the wives of the Dohenys. Color-coding the names on the different civil parish maps I decided that Cashel held the bulk of these names. From information given me by a fellow researcher I learned that Michael Doheny, our well known rebel, had been born in Fethard, Cashel Parish. Rumor had us related so my search began.

After a long, tedious search through the Tithe Records of 1828, at the Mormon Family History Library, I found the same three names together. Working with the 1990 telephone book for that area I wrote to all the Dohenys (seven households) that I was coming to Ireland in August and hoped to contact them. I received two answers. One was not familiar with the information I had sent but forwarded it to the Limerick Archives. The Archives informed me that the name was popular in a certain part of the county and the records could be searched for a price. I realized it was time I turned to a professional source, so I forwarded my information and my money. The Archives wrote saying they had found the marriage of Thomas, the birth of his first son, and one of his brothers as well as the parents' names and the place of birth.

I wrote back asking them to gather all available information including maps and cemetery locations, for me to pick up when I came to Ireland. The fun part started in August, in Limerick when I received all the information I requested and after visiting the Bru Boru History Centre in Cashel for cemetery information, I was walking on air. St. Patrick's Rock of Cashel is a famous site and I took many photos of our grandparents' home area. Although the History Centre was closed the niece of our hostess at the BandB was able to get into the Centre and later located us in a shop to give us the cemetery information plus a map indicating where the parents were buried. As this was her day off, we especially appreciated her thoughtfulness.

Ida Troye and "cousin" Patrick "Paddy" Morrissey in Ballyfowloo, Tipperary, Ireland.

The directions sent us to find the townland (similar to our townships) of Ballyfowloo - where we should find the old Ballyfowloo manor house. We actually did find the house and its charming owner who gave us permission to take all the pictures we desired. This gave us the site of the marriage! In the search for the other townland - Kilconnel - we were met with the same wonderful hospitality, directions and the freedom to photograph what I wanted. This was where Thomas and Honorah were living after their marriage, and where their children were born before they came to America. In exchanging information with a gracious lady residing here, we came on the name of Patrick Morrissey, who supplied us with many details on sites and names in this area -an unexpected find on this line. Our final search led us to the ancient cemetery in Fethard where our ancestors are buried. Space does not allow all the details that led to the finding of the old stones, or words to describe the awesome feelings we experienced standing in such a beautiful place knowing SUCCESS at last!

Fourteen wonderful people helped make all this possible - including Patrick Morrissey, who called to give me connecting facts to be followed later and our hostesses' niece who faxed me more information that evening. I could not have had this wonderful experience without those fabulous Irish people.

In addition to giving you encouragement in your research, I want to share some other things I learned:

1) Research each story or rumor from the family - it may lead you on. 2) Go with your instincts; you can be right! 3) Write to everyone, anywhere; one letter a week may bring you 52 answers. 4) Small details learned here in the states may be the link to those in Ireland who know of family who went to the new world. 5) Contact the Ireland's county heritage centres. Their vital records and church and cemetery records are being entered into computers. 6) Most of your help comes from fellow researchers. People are your best resource: at the Irish Genealogical Society, the Irish library collection, your family and of course, ultimately, the people of Ireland.

QUERY RESPONSE from NORMAN G. PATTERSON, longtime IGS member, to IG#211, Brother Rene Wilson, O.S.B., Blue Cloud Abbey, Marvin, SD 57251. Norm copied it from the 1882 History of Nodaway County, Missouri, pp 930\931, Call # F472, N7H6. Located in the Minnesota Historical Society Library, St. Paul, MN.

"Francis Conlin, Grant township farmer and stock raiser, was born in Ireland, November 1, 1814, and emigrated to this country in 1835, settling in Dorset, Vt., where he learned the stone cutter's trade, serving an apprenticeship of two years and a half. He subsequently moved to New York, where he followed his trade for 6 years, and then went to Pennsylvania, and from there to Richmond, Va. He next visited Kentucky and Indiana, and then to New Orleans, going from there to Texas, and finally to Shawneetown, Ill., when he went to work on the Peru Canal. He was subsequently employed to go to Leavenworth, Ka., to work on the fort, and afterwards to Fort Scott. Upon moving to Platte City, Mo., he entered 80 acres of land, which he sold, and then came to this county and township where, in Oct. 1844, he entered the land where he now lives, consisting of 240 acres in section 23 & 24. Mr. C. broke 20 acres the first year, built a cabin, and commenced pioneer life in earnest. He was obliged to go with an ox team 20 miles to mill, and to kill game for his meat. Mr. Conlin was among the first settlers in the township, and few men have seen harder times, or suffered more deprivations and trials in a newly settled country. Mr. Conlin married Miss Jane Malott, of Platte County, Mo., on Sept. 9, 1845. They have 8 children living: William T.; Frances M., Sarah A., John Floyd, Samuel Houston, Margaret Ann, Eliza Jane, and Mary M. Mrs. Conlin died June 16, 1881. She was a loving wife and mother, and her death was mourned by all. Mr. Conlin had given farms to his children and started them well in life. In 1876 he built a fine house and now owns a beautiful home. John Floyd, his son, lives at home, and takes charge of the beautiful home. John Floyd, his son, lives at home, and takes charge of the farm. He is well educated and a good business man, and is engaged in dealing in the raising of stock, keeping quite a number of hogs and cattle at the place."

OLD NAMING PATTERNS

Although the following naming practice was not an invariant tradition, it may give a clue about the name of grandparents whose names are so elusive in genealogical research. It was also common practice among Quaker families to give their children Biblical names.

The first son was named after the father's father.
The second son was named after the mother's father.
The third son was named after the father.
The fourth son was named after the father's eldest brother.

The first daughter was named after the mother's mother.
The second daughter was named after the father's mother.
The third daughter was named after the mother.
The fourth daughter was named after the mother's eldest sister.

THE NINE CONVICTS

Michael J. McCabe, Sr.,
Los Angeles County Historian, A.O.H.

During the young Ireland revolution of 1848, nine young Irishmen were captured, tried and convicted of treason against the Queen. The sentence was death. The presiding judge read out the names of the condemned men: Charles Duffy, Thomas Meagher, Patrick Donahue, Terence McManus, Richard O'Gorman, Morris Lyene, Michael Ireland, Thomas McGee, John Mitchell. Have you anything to say before the court passes sentence?

Thomas Meagher had been chosen to speak for them all: "My Lord, this is our first offense, but not our last, if you will be easy with us this once, we promise on our word as gentlemen to try to do better the next time, and the next time sure we won't be fools enough to be caught." The indignant judge sentenced them to be hanged by the neck, but passionate protests from all over the world forced Queen Victoria to commute the sentence, the men were transported for life to the penal colony of the then savage Australia.

In 1871, a Sir Charles Duffy was elected prime minister of the Australian state of Victoria. To her amazement Queen Victoria learned from her prime minister Disraeli that this was the same Charles Duffy who had been transported for treason 23 years before. She demanded that the records of the other eight convicts and this is what she learned.

Thomas Meagher was Governor of Montana. Patrick Donahue and Terence McManus were Brigadier Generals in the U.S. Army. Richard O'Gorman was Governor General of Newfoundland, Morris Lyene was Attorney General of Australia, to which office Michael Ireland succeeded. Thomas McGee was president of the Dominion of Canada and John Mitchell was a prominent New York politician whose son later became Mayor New York City.

This amazing, true story of nine men banished from their native land to a penal colony for their political views and in later years becoming outstanding citizens in America, Australia, and Canada, is now a part of the United States Congressional Record in Washington, D.C.

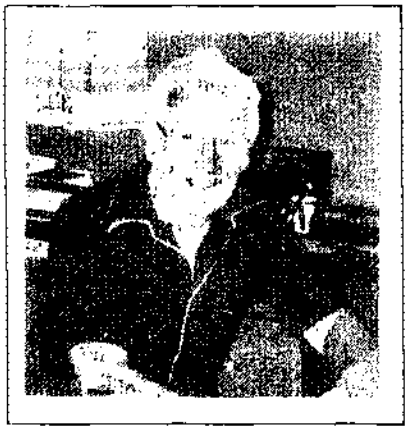
THE SEPTS

May 1991 CEAD MILE FAILTE Volume 12, No. 2

FROM THE PRESIDENT

How the days fly by! A year of greetings has been completed with this fourth message. Let me tie up things with a few items.

There's more good news coming from the Irish Genealogical Society of Long Island! John Rowane, Jim Reilly, and Helen Murphy held their initial formation meeting on March 9, when they and a few others set down their first goals for their local IGS branch.



Already they have had 26 people sign up at various seminars, indicating an interest in joining and requesting IGS brochures, which are now on the way. IGS posters are being posted in several spots to attract members, while the charter members are beginning work on their local by-laws. We wish them well and hope that their first public meeting in September will be a big success!

Next, Joy M. Yockey of Montesano, WA, writes: "Three years ago I started a 'Family Tree' hoping to start with my great grandmother and list all the names to date. By accident I found out she was one of 12 children. A man sent me a Bible page listing them by name, birthplace, time of day, and where born. I found other information, too, but soon became stumped for new leads.

"Now three years later I joined your society and a lovely lady named Virginia Mahoney in St. Paul finds my great-great grandparents in a book that has their bio and all the information I've searched for through church records, court house records etc. I even visited their graves in Wibaux, Montana this past summer! Thanks to the IGS and Virginia Mahoney, I've filled in some very important information and have new ideas to continue my search. How many ways can one say 'Thank You'?"

She concludes, "Currently, I'm president of the Grays Harbor Genealogical Society as well as newsletter editor. Please tell any new members the only qualification you need for research is patience and perserverance! I hope to send some new members your way."

Finally, I must regretfully announce that Nancy Ryan, our newsletter editor for several years, has submitted her resignation. Because of other commitments, she has found it necessary to "give up one of her greatest loves, this newsletter." We thank her for her service to the organization and wish her well in the future!

Via a newsletter committee, we will attempt to put out this issue, then search for a permanent editor for next year. Until then, have a wonderful summer!

NEW SITE FOR QUARTERLY MEETING

May 18, 1991, 9-12 a.m., at the St. James Catholic Church, 484 View St., St. Paul, two blocks west of Fort Road off Randolf—only three blocks from MGS Library (see map on back cover). Park in back, take left or right door down 12 steps (railings both sides).

Chuck O'Fahey, speech teacher, will share his research on Archbishop Ireland. Help tables/panel discussion will make this a real "working session"—bring your research and plan on an afternoon at the IGS Library.

Election of 1991-92 officers heads the business meeting.

NOTICE

At its March 11, 1991 IGS Board meeting, the board pased the following motion: Since the reader/printer in the MGS Library has now been paid for, future donations to the Library Fund will be directed by the board to areas of need, not necessarily to the library, since the library receives funds from the IGS general fund.

WISCONSIN 1855 STATE CENSUS

The Northwoods Genealogy Society has just completed indexing the "Wisconsin 1855 State Census." This was the first state census that was done in Wisconsin and is a complete index of surnames, number in household, city and county. It lists all the information as found on the original census. The Northwoods Genealogy Society will search the index for $2.00 per surname. Enclose SASE and mail requests to Sue Swanson, 219 Harmony Hills, Rhinelander, WI 54501.

SCENIC IRELAND

Phil McDonald, St. Paul, sends information on a tour of Ireland, June 14-24, 1991, with an optional three night extension to the Isle of Man & London. The tour is directed by Sister Mary Arthur Shepherd, OSU, of the Villa Maria Center, Frontenac, MN. Tour cost per person, double occupancy: Mpls-St. Paul - $1554, Los Angeles - $1608, Dallas/Ft. Worth - $1605, Chicago - $1378, Boston or New York - $1308.

Tour cost includes: round trip airfare as above, departure tax and security charges, travel insurance, services of a professional tour escort, good tourist-class hotels, hotel taxes, porterage, tips and service charges, 10 continental breakfasts and 6 dinners, private, first-class motorcoach.

Sightseeing includes: Dublin orientation drive, Hill of Tara, Cistercian Abbey at Boyle, Donegal Excursion, Donegal Tweed Centre, Silgo and Knock, Kylemore Abbey, Connemara Marble Factory at Moycullen, Galway and the Royal Tara China factory, Cliffs of Moher, Limerick orientation drive, Adare and Tralee, Ring of Kerry excursion and Killarney, Blarney, Cork, and Youghal and Dungarvan.

For additional information or reservations, please call DAYTON'S GROUP HOLIDAYS, Michelle Cowan, 800-533—324 (US), 800-752-4212 (MN), or local 375-2881.

LATE BREAKING NEWS

James W. King of Edmunds, WA, writes: "In the Surname Index I note there are about 31 individuals from the State of Washington who are members of the IGS. What can be done to start a local IGS Chapter out here? I would be willing to do whatevere I can to promote the Irish Genealogical Society out here in Western Washington."

Many thanks! Materials will be sent to you soon!

Also, the Chicago Gaelic Ancestry is interested in an affiliation. More details later.

ANNOUNCEMENT

IGS member, Mrs. Patricia Nelson, St. Paul, writes: "A previous issue of THE SEPTS listed a gathering of MURPHYS in Ireland in 1991 with Maurice Murphy as a contact person. He says: ' There will be NO gathering of the Murphy Clan in Ireland during 1991, although there will be one-day gathering of all the clans at the Hill of Tara in the summer of 1992. I will not be the contact person, but information should be available later from the Irish Tourist Board offices in American.'

"Since Murphy is the most common name in Ireland, there may be many of our members interested, and this announcement will save them from writing to Maurice Murphy."

IRISH NIGHT AT THE THEATRE

The Irish Genealogical Society has ordered a block of tickets for the Irish play, A Couple of Blaguards, for 8 P.M., May 18, at the Crawford-Livingston Theatre, 30 E. 10th Street, St. Paul.

This delightful Irish comedy is about two charming scoundrels, Frank and Malachy McCourt, who love their home in Limrick and the warm heart of their Irish mum. The script is funny and fast, with some wonderful long-suffering Irish ballads. The brothers spin tales of their youth and their immigration to America with a bit of blarney!

IGS tickets are $11.00 each ($10.25 for seniors). If you wish to attend, please send a check made payable to The History Theatre and mail to Beth Mullinax, 5519 E. Oberlin Circle, Fridley, MN 55432-6018. For further information call Beth at (612) 574-1436.

TIPS FOR NEWCOMERS

by IDA TROYE, South St. Paul

One of my pet peeves, as a "new" researcher is the use of initials for everything. This habit is picked up and passed on, because now I catch myself doing it. For instance, if someone tells you "go to the LDS Library and look in the IGI and you will find your family name."

If you are new at this game, they have just spoken to you in Greek, right? What in the world is the LDS Library? In my compassion for fellow genealogists, I am, therefore, going to list the initials I have run into and tell you what they mean: LDS Library - Church of the Latter Day Saints of Utah (Mormon); DCC - Dictionary Card Catalog; IGLC - International Genealogical Library Catalog; and IGI - International Genealogy Index.

In other areas, such as MHS - Minnesota Historical aSociety, they will mention a Soundex System. This is a code to be worked out on the last name that you are searching which will enable you to look in the index of the 1900 & 1880 Census in order to locate your family name, township etc. Then you can go from there to find the actual census sheets. Other important initials: MGS - Minnesota Genealogical Society and IGS - Irish Genealogical Society.

Other phrases that can throw you for a loop at the IGS Library:

1) "Let's look it up in the Mathesons." This is a book by Matheson. It is a survey of births in Ireland in 1890, by surname. There had to be five or more births in that year to be included in this book. It is a wonderful way to find out where names are the most popular, even though your family might be gone by that time.

2) "Did you check the Griffiths yet?" This is a micro fische (a film to be used on a viewer). It is the index to householders, done by Richard Giffiths in approximately 1855. It is excellent to locate your surname in any given County and also provides the civil parish.

3) "Were they on the Spinning Wheel Index?" This is the Spinning Wheel Index, which provides the surname for receivers of a spinning wheel from the government to persuade farmers to grow flax for the linen industry. Approximate years - 1790 to 1798.

4) "The Tithe Applotment Records will probably give you information." This was a survey done for taxing land occupiers only, to support the Protestant Church and includes Catholics by surname. Approximate years 1827-=1834. This is on film at the Mormon Library. You order the film that covers the area you may have located in the Griffiths Evaluation.

5) "MacLysaght might be a place to look." This is the "master" author of several books on Irish Families and surnames, such as "Irish Families," "More Irish Families," etc. These books are available at the MGS Library, Irish section.

Two other library sources that are invaluable are "Famine Irish," 9 volumes of immigrants entering the U.S. through New York only during the famine years, 18as45 etc. ; and "Casey Collection," 15 volumes covering the Blackwater area of Co. Kerry and Co. Cork, something like 3 million names and they are indexed.

Good luck in your search!

THE UNCOUNTED IRISH

by Virginia Mahoney, St. Paul

One of the finest books on immigration, with an abundance of information on methods and avenues of migration from Ireland through Canada into the U.S., is found in the IGS Library under the title of "The Uncounted Irish." Although it deals mainly with the emigrants from southwest Cork, it gives detailed account of the movement of the families from the Newcastle area in New Brunswick into the Stillwater, MN community.

This time frame is in the early 1830's. Researching in this area I found the School registers from 1833 through 1845 very helpful. These are available at the LDS Library in Salt Lake City. The film number is 0846817 Northumberland Co. Schools. Areas include Alynwick, Chatham, Blackville, Newcastle, Renow's River, Ludlow, Glenely and North Esk.

Return of the number of scholars taught by John McGrath in District #7 in the Parish of Newcastle in the County of Northumberland for six months ending the 15th day of April in the year of our Lord 1834:

Boys—John Curry, age 16; Michael Curry, 14; Michael Farrell, 14; James Farrell, 7; Edmund Dunn, 12; Sylvester Doyle, 9; James Carroll, 8; Andrew Carroll, 6; and James Doyle, 6.

Girls—Cecilia Curry, 12; Eliza Curry, 8; Bridget Curry, 6; Lucy Curry, 4; Mary Farrell, 12; Ann Farrell, 9; Ellen Farrell, d4; Bridget Doyle, 8; Mary Doyle, 4; Ann Doyle, 12; Margret Doyle, 9; Mary Bourk, 9; Ann Graham, 10; Margret Graham, 8; Judith Quigley, 11; Mary Carroll, 4.

As New Brunswick lies immediately east of the state of Maine, immigrants undoubtedly traveled by land or water through the St. John area into either the port of Boston, the closest, or into New York harbor, where they could travel via the Hudson River to Albany, join the Mohawk River and begin their long journey across the U.S. into the middle west.

TREASURERS IN MGS LIBRARY

by Virginia Mahoney, St. Paul

Researchers visiting the IGS collection will do well to acquaint themselves with the wealth of information gathered there by the Minnesota Genealogy Society. Besides an extensive Canadian collection they own numerous books on different states. The Minnesota section includes the histories of most counties. Within these covers are the personal stories of many of the first settlers.

In early December 1990, I received an inquery, with her membership, from Joy Yockey, Montesano, WA, regarding her ancestor James O'Brophy. She had information that he had been in Houston County, MN, for a few years in the area of Brownsville. Knowing how we have all struggled for information, you can appreciate my excitement when I could forward her this wonderful Christmas present. Joy has only been able to contact through the years three branches of this family. Under those circumstances, there are hopefully others waiting for this good news.

James O'Brophy, a native of Ireland, was born in a part of Lismatigue, called Gualstown, in the united parish of Balynahill and Angaville, Kilkenny County, his birth occurring in 1818. He was reared on a farm and attended school in Lismatigue and Harristown. In May 1850, he came to this country, but returned to Ireland the same year. He returned again to New York in August of 1854. He married Miss Catherine Dungan, January 1855, in Hamilton, Butler Co., Ohio. Mrs. O'Brophy was born in Glindanil Parish of Mullanunevat, Kilkenny Co. in 1810. Plus a few mor details: I learned that the O'Brophys had 14 children, ten are living: Michael D., Mary, James, Ellen, Thomas, Catherine, John, Simon, Bridget and Alice.

This is a good time to mention that names given may not always be exactly right. Sometimes they are spelled phonetically by others unfamiliar with the area. Actually, in this case, Mullanevaut was a townland in the civil parish of Kilbeacon. The IGS Library contains an excellent Gazateer of all areas in Ireland, so it would be best to verify any place names you have heard in connection with your family.

It is not unusual to find ourselves uncovering unknown areas of interest to our Irish researchersa through the inqueries that come to us. I am sure this has also happened to our members in their own areas. PLEASE share this with us for printing. Of course, this is the only way we have of getting into small unknown settlements in the different states. We would welcome more writers for this newsletter.

BITS AND PIECES

As researchers we have all been in the position of needing small bits of information from different areas than where we live. Should we try to establish an exchange system? Would you do census research for others in your area? Could a member volunteer handle this whether or not they actually were a resident of this community? This is an interesting idea but may not be possible with such a few people involved in the IGS. Either way, please give us your opinion. Thanks!

THE PETER ROBINSON PEOPLE

By Virginia Mahoney, St. Paul

(Editor's note: The following information was a part of our August 1987 newsletter. Although it has never been our policy to repeat articles that have been used previously, we have decided to reprint this, and anything else, that we feel may help researchers that have joined us in the last four years. It would be helpful to us to hear from you on this and any other ideas you have on how we can best assist you in your quest.)

In 1823-25, a few short years after the settlers began to immigrate to the Ontario region of Canada, a massive resettlement began in Cork to what became Peterborough, Canada. John Robinson, Canada's Attorney General, enlisted the help of his brother Peter to spearhead this project.

Most of the emigrants were chosen from the area above the Blackwater River in Cork. They were chosen from the estates of a few landlords. Between May 10th and May 25th, 1825, nine naval transports sailed bearing 2,024 Irish. The emigrants were settled at Scott's Plains (eventually called Peterboro) officially November 24, 1825. The entire journey took about six and a half months.

The Peter Robinson passenger lists are now available at the IGS Library, Celtic Library at University of St. Thomas and through microfilm rental from the LDS Library in Salt Lake City. The papers list names and ages of parents and children, the townland where they resided in Ireland and the township where they were settled in Peterboro County, Ontario, Canada.

A few of the emigrants came from counties Limerick, Tipperary, Kerry with one or two from Co. Clare. Anyone having ancestors entering Canada during this time would do well to check this out.

In the interest of serving our members and adding to our funds for future purchases, our volunteer staff would be willing to check this list for your emigrant and send you a copy of this complete report for the cost of only two dollars per surname, accompanied by a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Anyone interested in reading the details surrounding the journey and the settlement of Peterborough, including the stories of the families, look for "The Holy Land, a History of Ennismore Township 1825-1975." This book was donated by Mary McNellis, a long time member, who unexpectly found that numerous families from her emigrant's story were a part of this exciting time. Mary would be a great resource for anyone searching in this area.

Families names: Bolster, Bourke, Brick, Cahill, Carew, Collins, Condon, Costello, Curtin, Donoghoe, Driscoll, Ellis, Fitzgerald, Flaherty, Foley, Hickey, Gillman, Gallivin, Gillman, Keane, Kelleher, Langane, Linnehan, Lynch, McCarthy, Mahoney, Moloney, Murphy, O'Donnell, O'Sullivan, Pope, Shanahan, Sheehan, Stack, Sullivan, Trihy, and Twomey.

EXCHANGE OF HELPFUL HINTS AND STORIES; Will It Be There?

By Terrance Carroll, St. Paul

Several years of researching in Ireland produced a wealth of information on my great-grandfather. But there's always a possibility of more, as I found out. Using a copy of his death record, I proceeded to see if he left a Will.

On January 7, 1991, I wrote the following letter to the National Archives, Four Courts, Dublin 7, Ireland:

> To Whom It May Concern: I would like to find out if a Will exists for Patrick Carroll—Date of death - 24 September 1903; Registered district - Borrisokane; County - Tipperary; Townland - Ryehill.
> Please notify me of the fees to search for his Will, and, if found, to obtain a copy.

I signed the letter, clearly printed my address and mailed it. The postage was 45 cents. About two weeks later I received a letter from the National Archives, dated 11 January 1991: Dear Mr. Carroll, In reply to your letter received here on 11 January, a copy of the Will and Testamentary Papers of Patrick Carroll can be sent at a cost of ten dollars to include the mail postage.

I wrote out a check made payable to the National Archives, Ireland, in the amount of ten dollars and mailed on January 29 along with a photocopy of their letter to me. I do not remember the cost of postage, but I do advise you to have any letter mailed to Ireland weighed and stamped at a post office.

These documents revealed that Patrick Carroll, age 77, was a retired farmer and a widower. He was formerly of Macloon, late of Ryehill, both in the county of Tipperary. He owned a farm of 45 statute acres, and his gross principal value at the time of death was one hundred-eleven pounds, one shilling and three pence. In his own handwriting he leaves "his son John all that I possess, that he must give my two daughters Henritte and Jane the sum of fifty pounds each and also pay my lawful debts."

Researching takes effort. Hopefully, this article will inspire you in your own efforts. Let us know about your achievements by sending a brief write-up to the Septs. Ideas shared can open up new avenues of research for others.

DUBLIN SPEAKER DELIGHTS IRISH AUDIENCE

Dr. James Ryan, a 40-year-old-native of Dublin and author of several books, captivated participants at a seminar co-sponsored by the Irish Genealogical Society and the Irish American Cultural Institute held at the University of St. Thomas, St. Paul, on February 14, 1991.

Ryan, who has been researching Irish family records for a decade, shared his findings in an illustrated presentation that was much appreciated by the genealogy "sleuths" who assembled on a bitterly cold Minnesota evening.

A synopsis of Irish history was provided as a basis for understanding the origins of the Irish peoples, and types of records were explained to assist in ancestor tracing. Then the process of ancestor tracking was highlighted.

Records that were suggested, included: comprehensive national records in Ireland (church records, civil register of births & marriages and deaths), land surveys (Tithe Applotments 1820-30 and Griffith Valuation 1850-60), and government censuses (1901, 1911 and remnants of 1821-1861).

Catholic records are generally available from 1830s at the church itself, the National Library of Ireland (microfilm). Indexing projects are currently in progress in many counties.

Church of Ireland records usually date from mid-18th Century. About a third were destroyed in Public Record Office (PRO) fire of 1922. Records are available at the Representative Church Body Library, Dublin; National Archives (PRO), Dublin; PRO in Belfast; or local parish.

Other sources available include: commercial and social directories (from 1750's (Dublin), good series from 1809, usually well indexed but cover only urban-dwellers, featuring merchants, professionals and public officials); wills, administrations and marriage licenses; deeds and land rights; gravestone inscriptions; newspaper (earliest published in 1649 include biographical notices, trade advertisements, court cases and lists of freeholders); and family and local history journals/books.

Ryan is the author of Irish Records - Sources of Family and Local History and also of Tracing Your Dublin Ancestors. Currently, he is working on a book which will help researchers better understand Irish church records and sources tracing Irish military ancestors.

He, along with his partner, Brendan Wafer, will host a genealogy tour in Ireland for the IACI, "On the Ancestor Trail," from August 24 - September 4. Contact the IACI at (612) 647-5678.

IGS QUARTERLY MEETING NOTES

Don Lamm, a member of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, shared his thoughts on "The Famine in Ireland" at the IGS Quarterly Meeting on February 16, 1991, at the Wood Lake Nature Center in Richfield, MN.

Backgrounding the attendees sipping Irish coffee and eating Irish soda bread in the cozy confines by an open-hearth fire, Lamm explained why the 8.5 million Irish people were so poor and largely uneducated as they headed into the 1840s.

Starting with the various conquests of Ireland by the Vikings, the Normans and then the English, he described how the Irish had their land taken from them and given to Oliver Cromwell's troops in payment for their services: the Cromwell Settlement, which gave landlords control of most businesses, banks, newspapers and the government.

Absentee landlords living in England compounded the problems as they were, for the most part, unsympathetic to the Irish people's concerns.

Then with the "Flight of the Earls" in 1607 and the departure of the "Wild Geese" after the Siege of Limerick in 1691 came the "last straw" — the Penal Laws in 1695, which attempted to totally wipe out the Irish.

In desperation, eldest sons of Irish families became Protestants so they could own land, thus causing their brothers and sisters to leave for other lands to seek work. All that kept families together were a turf fire that continued to burn for 100 years and a diet of potatoes that supported many hungry mouths.

When the potatoes went bad, the Irish were forced to sacrifice everything to pay the rent on their land...even to the point of starving or dying of various diseases. The people resisted as best they could, resulting in many being shipped off to Australia and New Zealand. Meanwhile, their cottages were battered down so that landlords would no longer be taxed for them.

So off they went on "Coffin Ships," first one, who obtained work and sent back money to bring over another member of the family. Others hired out for five years to pay their way over...and when they arrived, they accepted misspelled or Americanized names, making genealogical research difficult if not impossible at times.

Other impediments to tracing back resulted from the churches not recording the births of boys, in order to avoid their being conscripted into British service.

Another highlight of the meeting's program was a demonstration of traditional Ceili and Step Dancing by the Knocknagow Irish Dancers, a group of eight women headed by Molly O'Brien and Cindy Tritz. The audience tapped their toes and clapped their hands as the lively music propelled them into a joyful mood.

ON FIRST ARRIVING IN KILKENNY
by Raleigh Franklin Seay, Jr.

I stood atop the softly curving bridge
That quickly crossed the gentle river Nore,
Whose Peaceful waters flowed beneath the ridge
Of moor and memory, lived long before.

The river now's a silent, sleeping sage,
And long I stood, its secrets to entice.
But, unlike Merlin, my times tend to age,
And step not in the chaning river twice.

What strange conflicting currents have I trod,
While forty seasons roared across the sea?
What cousins, living here on emeral sod
Gave birth to those whose lives gave birth to me?

To those who came before I honor give.
Without their lives, I'd have no life to live.

LIBRARY NEWS

One of the journals that IGS subscribes to is IRISH HERITAGE LINKS, published by the Irish Heritage Association, 162A Kingsway, Dunmurry, Belfast BT17 9AD, NI. Volume 4, Numbers 1 & 2, has a list of the Irishmen in the British Army who died in the Anglo-Boer War (1899-1903), a total of 1,782 names. This list is also on the death indexes held by the Library of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (LDS). You can check the list at your local LDS, and if you find your ancestor, write the following address for information on the ancestor's Army record: Army Record Department, Public Record Office, Kew, Surrey, England.

How long has it been since you have gone through some of the publications at the library? The above publication also has articles on the computer indexing of Church Registers in Liverpool, England; statistical survey of O'Neill, Maguire & Crawford in Northern Ireland and the O'Long family tree.

Another publication just received, eirephile #6, published by Andrew J. Morris, P.O. Box 535, Farmington, MI 48332, has articles on 750 Kelly marriages, the Bourkes of Clanwilliam, 1821 Census, Aghalurcher, Fermanagh, etc..

Don't overlook these resources when doing your research. Sometimes it's remote that you will find your ancestors but it is worth a try. We are now subscribing to three county historical society journals. Much of the information in them is not genealogical, but some is, such as the cemetery transcriptions in the Co. Cork journal. Also,all the information is interesting when it is about the area of your ancestors. Besides the Co. Cork and Co. Tipperary journals, we have had the Co. Kerry journal donated. If you are interested in subscribing to any of the county journals (and hopefully you'll donate them to the library when your finished with them) just let me know. Most are about $20 per year which would be just the one journal.

Many of our members are members/officers in genealogical societies all over the US and even one in Ireland. They have added us to their publication's mailing list. These newsletters emphasize what we teach in researching, to join a society in the area of your ancestors. One of these newsletters is the Windber-Johnstown Area Genealogical Society, c/o Tom Donaldson, Co-Editor, R.D. #2 Box 449, Johnstown, PA 15904. The November 1990 listed, among other things, Naturalizations Abstracts of Cambria County, PA. I picked out some of the Irish names: Peter Boyle, Peter Sweeney, John Sweeny, Dennis Gallagher & Thomas Cush. There were other Irish names throughout the publication.

Another newsletter received is the Idaho Genealogical Society, Inc., 4620 Overland Rd. #204, Boise, ID 83705-2867. Their latest issue advertised the Indexes for 1870 and 1880 census for sale as well as cemetery records.

For those of you who are descendants of Mexican War Veterans you may be interested in the organization The Descendants of Mexican War Veterans, 1114 Pacific, Richardson, Texas 75081. It is only two years old and could be of some help if you are researching someone in this conflict. Write their president, Steven R. Butler, at the above address for further information. (Membership begins at $10 per year.)

One of our members is compiling The Irish American Directory for Minnesota. It will include everything and anything of Irish interest throughout the state of Minnesota, where to buy Irish goods, books, Irish music and dance, and on and on. If you are interested in having your group, store, restaurant, etc., included in the directory, write McGraw's, P.O. Box 220, Cedar, MN 55011. This will be a welcomed resource for the Irish communities of Minnesota and long overdue.

In a recent issue of the newspaper, Irish Echo, I found an announcement about the Civil War Society dedicating their March 1991 issue to the Irish who fought in that war. Titled: The Fighting Irish: They Fought the North, the South and the Draft and They Never Gave Up! I received my copy and even though I know of no ancestors in that war, I thoroughly enjoyed the whole magazine. You can order the March-April 1991 issue for $3.95 plus $1.50 postage and handling from the Civil War Society, P.O. Box 770, Berryville, VA 22611.

CLANS OF IRELAND, 2 Kildare Street, Dublin 2, Ireland, is the official organization for the clan gatherings in Ireland. We have received information from them on the the gatherings planned for this coming year. Also listed are all the surnames that have registered with the organization. The lists are getting so long, that I believe we will forgo publishing them. However, anyone interested can either write the above office or send a SASE and we will copy our brochure for you. The Irish Tourist Board should have this also. Their US address is 757 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10017, (212) 418-0800, FAX: (212) 371-9052.

1ST IRISH GENEALOGICAL CONGRESS, 19-25 September, 1991, at Trinity College Dublin. It appears that there will be enough of our members there from all over the country that we will have to have an IGS night! If you are going, be sure and check for a notice.

DR. JAMES G. RYAN was in St. Paul February 14, as part of the Irish Perceptions series conducted by the Irish American Cultural Institute. The Irish Genealogical Society co- sponsored Dr. Ryan. He is the author of Irish Records and Researching Your Ancestors in Dublin. He was a most interesting speaker with information on records in Ireland that many of us have never been into. We found out that he had ancestors in Minnesota and in Iowa and had him submitted a query for this newsletter. I hope we can help him.

RESEARCH BY MEMBERS. Several of our members throughout the US have offered to do research for IGS members. Some charge a fee and some do not, that is between you and the researcher. We just pass the information along as a service to you. We've already received member's compliments on Steve Dennehy's services. Steve writes, "For free advice on researching Irish families, send family group chart(s) on problem and SASE to him at 620 S. Idaho, Butte, MT 59701".

This is a new address from what we published in previous issues. Michael J. Magee, specializing in Black Hawk County Iowa research, 638 Englewood, Waterloo, IA 50701-5846. Michael charges $6 per hour plus postage. He has offered to do Dr. Ryans Iowa research free of charge which we really appreciate.

Charlotte Ocain, 627 Lincoln Drive, Sun Prairie, WI 53590, says " I can check things at the Wisconsin State Historical Library if someone needs that kind of help".

RESEARCH EXPERIENCE BY MEMBERS

We encourage our members to share their experiences in research with us and, as you know, we have been publishing these in our newsletter. Remember, this newsletter goes out to around 735 members, plus 50 or so complementary copies to many libraries and societies. We have members all over the US, Canada, and some in England and Ireland. We also share the newsletter with the Irish Family History Society in Ireland. So, your queries and experiences reach many fellow researchers. Every experience is different and we appreciate all we receive.

A member, Dr. John L. Meyer, 703 Winter, Spring Lake, MI 49456, send the following: "The report of my trip to Ireland is long overdue, and because I promised to share the experience with you, these are the highlights of the trip. Mr. Pat Stafford of the Research Center in Tagoat, County Wexford, apologized when he couldn't be of more help due to the scarcity of information regarding the parish records in question. However, my letter to St Aidan's in Enniscorthy bore fruit. The address and name of the new administrator is: Very Rev. Mathias Glynn, Administrator, St. Aidan's Cathedral, Enniscorthy, Co. Wexford, Ireland, phone 054- 33447.

He was most helpful and saw me between the seven masses celebrated on a Thursday and while coordinating the affairs of the parish and supervision of three other priests. The parish records were opened for me to look over and I was successful in finding the birth record of my great-great grandfather in 1814. It made the trip worthwhile for his parents were also listed.

The county library in the town of Wexford also holds important information. There are volumes of tombstone inscriptions from church cemeteries throughout the county. Birth and marriage records are on file there, and while not open to the public, the clerk will look up anyone you supply information on. The address there is: County Wexford Library, Attn: Celestine Murphy, Abbey Street, Wexford, Co. Wexford, Ireland."

My wife and two teenage sons went with me to Ireland. It was a great experience for all of us. I would think several trips are required before you can master the road directions the Irish give, or is that part of their humor. Traffic in Dublin while driving in a right-handed car was a real challenge. We could see the Wicklow Mountains but couldn't figure how to get out of Dublin. We have to return to complete the northern route and just to be with the Irish people again."

GENEALOGICAL TOUR. We have had several inquiries about a genealogical tour. There are none planned for the year 1991, however, after attending the Irish Genealogical Congress in Dublin this fall, a decision will be made about sponsoring one for 1992. Further developments will be shared with you.

INDEXES TO ESTATE RECORDS IN IRELAND. This is a project which we have been working on for about a year. We, along with the National Archives of Ireland, are paying for researching and indexing the estate records throughout Ireland. THIS IS NOT AN INDEX OF PERSONS. It is an index of the records available and the type of information included in the records. For example, how far the records go back, and whether they contain information on all tenants or just the major tenants. The townlands included in each estate are also listed. We hope eventually to have all 32 counties.

We now have permission to make these records available to our members. WARNING! THESE RECORDS ARE UNDER COPYRIGHT AND CANNOT, REPEAT, CANNOT BE REPRODUCED. YOU CANNOT PRINT THEM IN ANY TYPE OF PUBLICATION OR CIRCULATE THEM. THEY ARE FOR YOUR OWN USE ONLY!

I should add that the National Archives' (Dublin) reference number is listed on each estate so if you wish to research these sources, or pay someone to research for you, you have the reference number.

The records currently available and their costs (which includes shipping & handling) are as follows:

COUNTY CORK (29 pages)	$10.00
COUNTY GALWAY (22 pages)	$10.00
COUNTY LEITRIM (16 pages)	$ 7.00
COUNTY MAYO (29 pages)	$10.00
COUNTY ROSCOMMON (24 pages)	$10.00
COUNTY SLIGO (13 pages)	$ 7.00
LISMORE PAPERS* (38 pages)	$10.00

* The Lismore Papers are an extremely large collection of manuscripts relating to the Lismore estates, centered in the town of Lismore in County Waterford, near the border with County Cork. Up to the 18th Century, these were in the possession of the Boyle family, the Earls of Cork, and then passed to the Cavendishes, the Dukes of Devonshire. Most of the area covered by the estates straddled the border between the two counties, but also took in some lands in Tipperary, and in and around the town of Bandon (Co. Cork).

IRISH SURNAME INTEREST LIST. Most of you received your free copy of our first attempt at a Surname Interest List. Thanks to member Joe Huber of St. Paul for all his work on this project. One member counted 2200 surnames! For those who did not receive a copy (you were not a member in good standing on January 1, 1991) we have extra copies for sale. The price is $5.00 plus $1.50 for postage and handling.

IRELAND'S GENEALOGICAL AND RESEARCH CENTRES

by Beth Mullinax

Last spring we published a book on Ireland's Genealogical & Research Centres (still available). We had published most of the same information in earlier newsletters. August 1990 we sent out letters to all the centres, libraries, etc., that were listed in that series, 64 letters in all, asking them to update the information we had published. We received answers from 35 of them. We also received the current membership list of the IRISH FAMILY HISTORY FOUNDATION (the groups that are doing the church indexing) from John Kearney of the Offaly Historical Society. All Centres on this list are so noted.

We are going to pass most of this current information on to you. The only exceptions are the long lists of publications that some of the centres have for sale, some long lists of parish records and application blanks. If we have this information, it will be noted. To receive the additional information just send a SASE (large envelope please) to IGS and let us know the county that you are interested in.

NOTES:

- IRL stands for Irish Pounds/Punts
- STG stands for English Pounds Sterling (the currency of Northern Ireland).
- Most of the resources listed for each organization/society/centre are not open to the public except in some of the county libraries. Write BEFORE you leave for Ireland if you plan on visiting them.
- If you write for information, include at least three International Response Coupons.
- This information is as current as possible but subject to frequent changes. Prices change also.

The organization that you would all find valuable to your Irish Research is The Irish Family History Society, P.O. Box 36, Naas, County Kildare, Ireland. This Society helped organize all the centres doing indexing of church records to have more conformity between them. Their annual journal, IRISH FAMILY HISTORY, is most interesting and useful to all Irish researchers, no matter which county your ancestors are from. Their annual fee is about $15.

1. County Antrim

1.1 Ulster Historical Foundation

68 Balmoral Ave
Belfast, Northern Ireland,
BT9 6NY

This organization has been in existence since 1956 and is a non-profit organization that promotes the knowledge of and interest in Ulster and Irish genealogy and history. Their primary service is a genealogical searching service. They receive over 1000 inquiries a year and undertake 350 commissioned searches for clients each year. Average searches are completed in nine months and charges include a registration fee (1989-STG 20 and search fees 1989 averaging STG 100).

Also a part of this organization, the Ulster Genealogical & Historical Guild was formed to spread research information and bring together people of similar interests. The Guild is managed very much like a book club. Subscribers receive an annual publication containing articles about Irish history and genealogy called "Familia: Ulster Genealogical Review". The Guild also publishes an annual Interest List of individuals being researched. Subscribers are allowed six free entries. Guild subscribers can also receive a quarterly journal, "The Linen Hall Review".

Holdings: The Foundation now has recordings of pre-1900 gravestone inscriptions for most of Northern Ireland and has all pre-1900 inscriptions in the city of Belfast and counties ARMAGH and DOWN and most of those in the other counties. Twenty seven volumes of inscriptions have been published, volumes 1 - 20 for Co. Down (new additions for volumes 2 & 5), 3 volumes for Belfast and 2 volumes for Co. Antrim. (IGS has most of these.)

The Archdiocese of Armagh has a project that includes an index to baptismal records of Catholics for most of County Armagh, part of TYRONE, a small corner of South DERRY and all of County LOUTH. They began seven years ago to computerize records of all the parishes in the Archdiocese. Completed are the baptismal records for those parishes which lie in Counties Armagh, Derry and Tyrone, all the baptismal and marriages records of County Louth. They are currently computerizing the marriage records for County Armagh, Tyrone and Derry. The burial details and headstone inscriptions for the Armagh Cemetery have also been put onto a computer.

Information is available for inquiries (1990 - $20).

Heritage Library
14 Bishop Street
Derry BT48 6PW, Northern Ireland

This organization has produced many indices and books of use to genealogists.

Computerized and indexed listing of the tithe books for Counties Derry, DONEGAL and FERMANAGH and the Griffith's records for Counties Derry and Donegal.

Index of passenger lists of Derry ship owners, covering 27,000 emigrants from 1847-1871. This record shows the addresses in Ireland for those debarking from the port of Derry (typically serving the Counties of Derry, DONEGAL and TYRONE). Available from the Genealogical Publishing Company, Baltimore, MD (GPC). They have now indexed those emigrants listed in the Ordnance Survey memoirs for Counties Derry and Antrim. These lists give the townland address of the emigrant. Available from GPC.

Index of 1831 census of Derry. This census names 38,000 heads of household only along with their townland and street address. The index is now available on microfiche*.

Townland maps for every civil parish in the Provinces of Ulster, Connaught and Munster (20 counties) plus Counties Kildare, Louth, Meath and Wicklow in the Province of Leinster. These maps are available on microfiche.*

Complete transcription of the 1901 census for the city and county of Derry.

Transcription of Australian transportation registers of 1839 to 1867.

The Centre will shortly be starting a project to computerize all per 1900 church registers for the Catholic Diocese of Derry.

General reference books for the Irish genealogist such as A NEW GENEALOGICAL ATLAS OF IRELAND,* A GUIDE TO IRISH PARISH REGISTERS* and A GUIDE TO IRISH CHURCHES AND GRAVEYARDS* have been produced. All available from GPC.

* IGS has these publications.

IGS QUARTERLY MEETING MAY 18, 1991...FRONT COVER

The Septs

August 1991 | Cead Mile Failte | Volume 12, No. 3

FROM THE PRESIDENT

- Dan Moriarty

Surprise! I'm back again. Yes, the members at the May 18th IGS Quarterly Meeting re-elected me to another term, along with Ginny Delaney, secretary; Bob Kelly, treasurer; and Beth Mullinax, moving up to first vice president. Ida Troye is our new second vice president and Patricia McGraw, book sales chair. Thanks for your continued support! And thanks, too, to Kathryn Smith, Merlyn Burk and Eileen Casey, retiring members from our IGS Board!

As you will see in this issue, a large part has been used for additions to our IGS Surname Index. We've found that this index is a popular addition to our array of services. Joe Huber, a loyal volunteer from St. Paul, continues to put together this information on his computer. If you were a member in good standing on January 1, 1991, you should have received free the introductory Irish Surname List. Members who joined later may purchase a copy to catch up (now at the bargain price of only $2.00 plus $1.50 for postage and handling).

From this time forward, new additions to the Surname Index will appear in The Septs each quarter. And, remember, if you haven't submitted the surname/s you are researching, just fill out the information on the IGS Membership Form, or simply send in the name, location in Ireland and location in U.S. (or other country) that you are researching.

Speaking of The Septs, which in ancient Ireland meant a clan, the IGS Board of Directors is pleased to announce that Mark Abbott, editor of the Minnesota Genealogical Society newsletter, has agreed to take on our newsletter as well. We welcome him...and hope that you will send him suggestions for newsletter improvements (P.O. Box 16069, St. Paul, MN 55116).

Some quick good news about our Long Island Chapter: John Rowane has sent in membership forms for 80 charter members so far. What an unbelievable start! Congratulations! And out in Edmonds, Washington, James King is forming a committee to consider a local. Nice going!

Finally, some cheering words from two members: Muriel Fitzsimmons, Fountain Valley, CA , says, "The Septs is so easy to read and printing is so professionally done. Keep up the good work and interesting articles!" And Carol Hansing, Belvue, KS, writes, "I just wanted to let you know that I think Beth Mullinax is a definite asset to the society (for all her help)."

CEAD MILE FAILTE -- "a hundred thousand welcomes" to our new members! And thanks to all who recruited someone!

Irish Genealogical Society Quarterly Meeting

Richfield Community Center
7000 Nicollet Avenue South
Minneapolis, Minnesota

Saturday, August 24, 1991

9:00	- 9:30	Registration
9:30	- 10:00	Business Meeting
10:00	- 11:00	Dr. Gambone, Church records
11:00	- 11:30	Break
11:30	- 12:00	Virginia Mahoney, Census Records
12:00	- 12:30	Q & A

MEETING TO FEATURE DIOCESAN ARCHIVIST

Dr. Robert Gambone, St. Paul Archdiocesan Archivist, will be the featured speaker at the IGS Quarterly Meeting on August 24, 1991, at the Richfield Community Center, 7000 Nicollet Ave. So., Richfield, MN.

He will make a presentation on "Archdiocesan Archives and Microfilm Collection" with an opportunity for questions following.

After a refreshment break, Virginia Mahoney, well-known IGS researcher, will share her knowledge of using Census Records.

The meeting will conclude with a Questions and Answers period.

NOTICE

The IGS Financial Report for 1990-91 will be delayed until the next newsletter, following the regular audit of the Treasurer's records.

SOME NICE WORDS FROM A MEMBER

Marie Bohan Schmitz, La Mesa, CA, writes: "Thank you for the generous packet of information and for the best newsletter of any genealogy society I have ever seen. This last issue (my first, since I am a new member) is magnificent. It is full of good information which I can use — particularly the info on the centers in Ireland and where the records are.

And, thanks for all the good materials! I'll share with my friends in the British Isles Genealogical Research Association (BIGRA) in San Diego."

AN AUTHOR CHECKS IN

In regard to an article published in the April 1991 The Septs, IGS was pleased to hear from Joseph King, a new member of our society. He and his sister Margaret E. Fitzgerald, co-authored the book The Uncounted Irish in Canada and the United States. He informed us that the first printing was a sell out, but the second printing is now on the shelves. It is published by the P.D. Meany Publishers, Box 534, Port Credit, Ontario, Canada L5G 4MZ. The price is [illegible] through our society.

ASSISTANCE REQUESTED

Thelma P. Julius, Minneapolis, seeks help from anyone who may have seen her fall while she was attempting to attend the Minnesota Genealogical Society Branch Meeting on March 9, 1991. As she walked toward the entrance of the Good Samaritan Methodist Church, she slipped on some ice and broke her right femur. Please call 866-2663 if you observed the accident. Thanks!

NO QUERIES THIS MONTH

You will notice that there are no queries in this issue of The Septs. The Surname List ran much bigger than we expected. In order to keep the page count to a manageable level, we left out your queries. You will see them again next issue.

LIBRARY NEWS AND NOTES

I want to call your attention to a couple of additions to the library. Everything is interesting and you members have been wonderful. You'll notice that our Donations list is much longer than our Purchases list!

We just purchased a three volume GENEALOGICAL EXTRACTION AND INDEX OF THE CANADA COMPANY REMITTANCE BOOKS, 1843-1847. This work was compiled and indexed by Ruth Holt and Margaret Williams. What it is is people, many Irish, going into the Canada Company and mailing money back to Ireland, England, etc.. It tells who it was mailed to, address, and at least the name of the sender if not their address also. Many of the Irish mailed money home to feed those left behind and to pay for passage of other family members. If your family member is on this list, you will probably find the home in Ireland or England.

Member Katherine Ronan Cooper wrote and donated a book on her RONAN descendents of Castlemartyr, County Cork. This book is beautifully done, all indexed by both name and place, and something you may want to look at if you are thinking of writing your own book some day. Remember what we have stated before about these family history books. They do not contain just the surname in the title. Many, many other Irish names are married into the family and with the indexes that many of them have, easy to check.

Speaking of family histories, member Francis Shellito Hill, has donated pages of his research on his SHELLITO ancestors. This family was originally from County Down, Ireland. He has contacted everyone of his generation of the John C. Shellito family. Any other SHELLITOs out there? I have not been able to find the name on any of the Irish resources that I have checked so far although I haven't given up.

CORRECTION/ADDITION TO Ireland's Genealogical and Research Centres in the last newsletter (May 1991). Page 110, the very top of the page, begins 11.1. Irish World. Above this should be: 11. COUNTY FERMANAGH. After that entry should be: 12. COUNTY GALWAY. Seems we had a leprechaun in the computer who just wanted to see if you were paying attention!

GLEANINGS FROM HERE AND THERE

by Beth Mullinax

THERE

Ireland has formed an Association of Professional Genealogists (APGI) in Ireland to act as a regulating body to maintain high standards among professional genealogists and to protect the interests of clients. If you use one of these members, you can be assured of professional research and have a recourse if you are not satisfied. We have a list of the members as of June 1990 and will send a copy to anyone who wishes it, just send us a SASE. Of course, the first on our list will always be John Grenham, M.A., Hibernian Research, Windsor House, 22 Windsor Road, Rathmines, Dublin 6 (tel. 966522). John is the researcher who did our County Indexes at the National Library in Dublin and is currently working on the Estate papers also in the National Library. The address of the APGI is c/o Genealogical Office, 2 Kildare Street, Dublin 2, Ireland.

FIRST IRISH GENEALOGICAL CONGRESS, September 19-25, 1991, Trinity College, Dublin. For a copy of the brochure, write Beth Mullinax, 5519 E. Oberlin Circle, Fridley MN 55432-6018 I am going as well as several others from this area and members from all over. An IGS night being planned!!

IRISH ANCESTRY RESEARCH COURSES, October 6-11, 1991, Dublin, Ireland, Directed by Dr. James G. Ryan author of IRISH RECORDS and other genealogical publications. The courses help you with the What, Where & How of Irish research and gives you a chance to visit the main sources of records for Ireland, North and South, with a qualified instructor. For information write Irish Ancestry Research Courses, Stratford House, Barnhill Road, Dalkey, Co. Dublin, Ireland. Ph. 353-1-2857731, FAX 353-1-768964

LIVERPOOL RECORD OFFICE, Eileen Crook, 25 Gerneth Road, Speke, Liverpool, L24 1UN, England, has indexed all Roman Catholic Marriage Records to be found in the Liverpool Record Office. A fee is required for research. Information from the Irish Family History Society Newsletter, Spring 1991.

IRISH MILITARY RECORDS - Gleaned the following information from NORTH IRISH ROOTS, Vol 2, No 5, Journal of the North of Ireland Family History Society, Belfast, NI.

ROYAL ULSTER RIFLES: The Regimental Museum Library of the Royal Ulster Rifles, 5 Waring street, Belfast BT1 2EW. The museum has records on regular officers from 1793 to date. Regimental Journals from 1888, histories, casualty lists from 1899, etc. The actual listing of holdings is quite extensive but the above would probably be the most useful for genealogical purposes.

ROYAL INNISKILLING FUSILIERS AND 27TH REGIMENT OF FOOT: Regimental Office, The Royal Irish Rangers, The Castle, Enniskillen, Co. Fermanagh BFPO 813, NI. Holds limited information about officers and soldiers who served with the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers and earlier the 27th Regiment of Foot. It includes the names of every Inniskilling who: served at Waterloo, served in the Boer War, was killed in WW I or WW II. Limited info and mainly officers. Service records prior to 1914 are held in England at the Public Record Office, Kew, Richmond, Surrey, England. After 1914 available from the Army Records Office, Bourne Avenue, Hayes, Middlesex, England. THERE WAS NO MENTION OF WHETHER OR NOT THEY WOULD ACCEPT MAIL INQUIRIES. If you find out, let us know.

CLANS' ALLIANCE INTERNATIONAL, 8916 Troost Ave., Kansas City, MO 64131, PH (816) 822-7431 FAX 816-333-5031. Maureen O'Brien writes us that the Alliance has been set up in the US to help identify all those with Irish ancestors who wish to be identified with their clans in Ireland. She promises to send the dates of the clan gatherings in Ireland in 1992 as soon as they are available. We already have many of those dates so if you are going to Ireland in 1992, just send me a SASE and I'll get any info I have on your clan out to you. We have no further information on this organization but will keep you informed.

DRUM HERITAGE GROUP OF COUNTY ROSCOMMON, Athlone, Co. Roscommon, Ireland. Have ancestors from this area of Roscommon? You may want to write this group. According to member John Bowen, they have been very helpful.

HERE

DR. BRIAN TRAINOR TAPES - We have audio tapes available of the seminar given by Dr. Trainor in St. Paul, Minnesota in June, 1990. There are 4 tapes, cost is $20 which includes postage. They can be ordered from John D. Bowen, 613 Chichester Lane, Silver Springs, MD 20904-3331. We received Dr. Trainor's permission to sell these, with a portion of the price going to the Ulster Historical Foundation of Belfast.

THE IRISH RIDGE OF MINNESOTA, FILLMORE COUNTY. Irish Ridge extends from the West end of Lanesboro for approximately 10 miles to the East end of Fountain, all in Fillmore County, Minnesota. The Irish families included: CASSIDY, BRESNAHAN, LYNCH, REDMOND, KINSELLA, REDMOND, QUINN, ENRIGHT, HENNESSY, CONNELLY, FITZGERALD, OHERN, O'SHAUGHNESSY, AND CUMMINGS. We have been collecting information from people all over the US on this area and now have it in our library. If you have anything to add, we would appreciate it.

RESEARCH FOR MEMBERS. This might be a good time to mention to our out of state and out of country members that if you see something mentioned that you would like us to check for you, we will gladly do so. Just let us know what you want us to check/copy, and send a SASE (legal size envelope, please). If we make copies of anything, including the microfiche, it costs us $.20 per page. If you would donate the cost of the copying, we would be grateful. Otherwise, there is no charge.

REMEMBER THE MAINE? Julio Vera, 1601 Greenfield Avenue, Los Angeles, CA 90025-3501, is writing a book on the U.S. Battleship MAIN, blown up in Havana Harbor on February 15, 1898. He is asking that any descendants of these men contact him. He is especially interested in locating letters. He sent us a list of the Irish names from the Index to Pension Files. The info gives place of birth in Ireland and names of parents in many cases. The irish names included are: BROWN, CONROY, CURRAN, DONOUGHY, FLYNN, GAFFNEY, GALLAGHER, GRADY, GRIFFIN, HUGHES, KANE, McGONIGLE, McDEVITT, McGUINNESS, MURPHY, O'NEILL, POWERS, SEERY and SHERIDAN. If you have an ancestor that was on the ship, please contact Mr. Vera. If you wish the extract on the above names, send me a SASE.

ADDITIONAL RESOURCES - Margaret O'Hara, a member from Chicago, Illinois, added resources to our article on finding the right county in Ireland. US DRAFT records are available for the Civil War, WW I and WW II. They are usually found in the State Archives but states may differ in this. MASONIC RECORDS can go back into the 1800's. Check your local Masonic organization. SOCIAL SECURITY RECORDS are now available at the LDS (Mormon) Libraries. Even though SS didn't begin until the 1930s, evidence of date of births had to be submitted. EMPLOYER RECORDS are very rare before the end of WW II, but if you find some, they could be very useful. Thanks, Margaret. Anyone have anything to add?

NOTE: The article, WHAT'S MY COUNTY? was published in the October 1990 SEPTS. A copy of that issue is available for $2 which includes postage.

NEW YORK STATE RESEARCH - The County Historians Association of New York State has recently published the 1991 DIRECTORY OF NEW YORK STATE COUNTY AND MUNICIPAL HISTORIANS. It is 80 pages and a valuable asset for New York researchers. The Directory costs $20, make check payable to CHANYS and mail to Richard Sherer, CHANYS Treasurer, RD #2, Box 228, Bath, NY 14810. Price includes tax, postage and handling.

THE INDIAN & COLONIAL RESEARCH CENTER, Main Street, Route 27, Old Mystic, Connecticut 06372. Member, Kathleen Greenhalgh, send information on the above Center including a list of printed genealogies. She says they have hundreds of names with bits and pieces of genealogical information that has been collected over the years. Sixty large 3 ring notebooks plus a 5 drawer file full of the research of Mrs Lucy Adams, a local genealogist. They charge $10 per surname for research plus $ .25 a copy for any copies supplied.

THE CENSUS PENSION SEARCHES PROGRAM (CANADA) - Member, Helen Stoltz-Wood, send information on this Canadian resource. Canada had a compulsory registration of all persons 16 years of age or older in the period 1940-1946. It is a valuable source though maybe a little late for some of us. You can obtain the information in these files if the person has been dead for more than twenty years, but you must have proof of death! The search fee is $48.15. For further information write Marilyn Stimpson, Census Pension Searches, Statistics Canada, Tunney's Pasture, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A OT6, Canada.

US VITAL RECORDS - The National Center for Health Statistics puts out a publication yearly on WHERE TO WRITE FOR VITAL RECORDS, Births, deaths, Marriages and Divorces. If contains information on every state on cost, dates of records available and addresses. The current edition was published in 1990 and costs $1.75 from R. Woods, Consumer Information Center-X, P.O. Box 100, Pueblo CO 81002. This is the Government Printing Office.

IRISH RESEARCH SEMINAR, Nebraskans of Irish Scotch-Irish Ancestry, ATTN: Nancy Archdekin, 13903 Gertrude Circle, Omaha, Nebraska 68138-6225. The seminar will be held on August 31, 1991 at the LDS Family History Center Cultural Hall, 10027 Martha St, Omaha. The speaker will be Brian Trainor, Ph.D..$8 fee (by 20 August) or $10 at the door.

ARCHDIOCESE OF SAINT PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS (Minnesota) - Dr. Robert Gambone, Director of Archives, writes us that the Diocese is in the process of microfilming the older parishes in the Twin Cities area. As of June 6, ten to fifteen parishes in each city had already been done. He writes, "Access is by mail. You must write a letter stating the names of the people you wish to have us research and either provide the church or a date. The cost is the cost of microfilming which is Twenty-five cents for a copy of the record. If there are several names to be requested then it would require a check of five dollars. We do not at this time have printed materials on our resources." The address of the Archdiocese is 226 Summit Avenue, St Paul, MN 55102-2197. We'll keep you informed of this project.

NEW YORK RESEARCH - The Irish Echo, March 13-19, 1991, had an interesting article titled CATHOLIC RECORDS AND GENEALOGICAL RESEARCH IN NEW YORK, by Charles Thomas Galbraith. The Irish Echo is a weekly Irish-American newspaper. Address is 309 Fifth Ave., New York, NY 10016. We can mail you a copy of the article for a SASE plus $1.00 (5 pages).

NOTICE - Dr. Jim Ryan, 4 Spencer Villas, Glenageary, Co. Dublin, Ireland, had a query in the last newsletter on his BYRNE, McMONAGLE, RYAN, ROCHE & PRANDY ancestors. One of you answered his query by an audio recording. You talked about riding in a car for the first time with James Ryan. That is Dr. Ryan's grandfather! He would like to contact you, not only to thank you, but to keep in touch. However, you did not give your name or address, just a St. Paul, Minnesota postmark. PLEASE write him, or us, or call Beth at 574-1436 evenings or weekends, and let us know who you are. Thanks!!

IRISH SURNAME LIST

HOW TO USE THIS LIST

This list has four columns. Each column has a specific use, as described below:

IGS# - this is the Irish Genealogy Society number for each member. When you find the surname you are interested in, you can look up the member that has listed the name. This list comes separately and is ordered by the IG number. Included here are only new members. The old members are in the original list.

NAME - this is the surname that the member is interested in getting information about. This list is ordered alphabetically.

IRISHLOC - this is the location in Ireland where the member knows or thinks their relative came from.

USLOC - this is the location where the member knows or thinks their relative came to. Most of these locations are in the United States, but many came to Canada and a few came to other counties.

ABBREVIATIONS USED IN THIS LIST

The abbreviations used in this list for U.S. states are the standard two letter abbreviations used by the Post Office.

C.	City	No.	North or Northern
Co	County	no.	north or northern
Cos	Counties	P.	Parish
E.	East	PEI	Prince Edward Island
F.	Falls	Pen.	Peninsula
Ind.Terr.	Indian Territory	Pt.	Port
Is.	Island	R.	River
L.	Lake	So.	South or Southern
N.	New	so.	south or southern
NB	New Brunswick	St	Station
NF	Newfoundland	W.	West

CORRECTIONS, ADDITIONS & CHANGES TO RECORDS

Always include your name and IG number. Always type or print the information.

DELETION - to delete a record, write Delete, give the NAME (surname) of the record to be deleted plus the rest of the information in the record.

CHANGE - to change the location in Ireland or the U.S., write Change, give the NAME (surname) on the record to be changed and whether the change is for the Irish Location or the U.S. Location. Then give the old information and the changed information.

CORRECTION - to make a correction in spelling, write Correct, give the NAME (surname) in its old form and the word in its corrected form.

ADDITION - to add new names, write Add, give the IGNO, the new surname and the location information.

The Septs

October 1991 | Cead Mile Failte | Volume 12, No. 4

FROM THE PRESIDENT — Dan Moriarty

Hello, again! What a significant IGS moment we celebrated on August 24 at our Quarterly Meeting, when we officially recognized our first local chapter! Our most sincere congratulations go to Long Island, New York, to its president, John Rowane, and all the other leaders and charter members! In just a short time, they put together an up-and-running organization! We are looking forward to seeing the charter ceremony, September 14, on VCR tape, which will take its place in our archives.

More good news! Our grant proposal to participate in St. Paul's 150th Anniversary Celebration was successful! We were awarded $650 to purchase a four panel, lighted tabletop portable display, which will be used to depict the role the Irish played in the development of St. Paul. Our exhibit will be part of the "Skyway Fair" on November 1-2.

Earlier, IGS participated for the first time in the Minnesota State Fair, passing out IGS brochures and talking to potential members. We distributed membership materials to an estimated 400 people.

Another achievement was receiving a "well done" from the Minnesota Genealogical Society's Audit Committee. Bob Kelly, our hardworking treasurer, must take a bow for that excellent report!

And as you will see in this issue, we finally have put together a revised constitution for our organization. Eileen Casey has headed up this project for two years. The results will be voted on at the November 9th Quarterly Meeting. Hopefully, we will receive a favorable response so that attention can then be turned to revising the by-laws. We are growing fast and need new language to help us do a good job.

Finally, we're already making plans for our big 1992 IGS Seminar on May 16. When Beth Mullinax returns from her participation in the First Irish Genealogical Congress at Trinity College, Dublin, speakers will be contacted for our exciting event. Lots of volunteers will be needed to make our seminar a success. Why not call Virginia Mahoney (612-776-5721) and find out how you might help?

Until next time, "May your blessings outnumber the shamrocks that grow , and may trouble avoid you wherever you go."

Celtic Library Now Open

The expanded and remodeled O'Shaughnessy-Frey Library at the University of St. Thomas, St. Paul, is finally completed. The Department of special Collections, which houses the Celtic Library, is now open Monday through Friday, from 8 A.M. to noon and 1 P.M. to 4:30 P.M. John Davenport, Coordinator of Special Collections, and Jim Kellen, Curator of Rare Books, are looking forward to seeing old and new friends.

The Library is located at the northwest corner of Summit and Cleveland Avenues, with access to Room LL09 through the north entrance. Just walk down the flight of stairs, and turn left. It is wise to call ahead and check hours for a given day. Their new phone number is (612) 647-4446.

Special Seminar Suddenly Scheduled

Word has just been received from Nora M. Hickey, a specialist in County Cork research, that she will be making a genealogical tour of the USA from October 2 to November 10, with stops in several U.S. cities. In St. Paul, she will conduct a seminar on "Researching in Ireland," November 1, 7 to 9 P.M., at the University of St. Thomas, O'Shaughnessy Education Center Auditorium.

From 1984 to 1989, Hickey worked at the Cork Heritage Centre in Bandon, County Cork, indexing parish records and gravestone inscriptions and computerizing the data. During this period, 400,000 birth/marriage/death records were indexed. Currently, she is the editor of the Irish Family Society, director of the Irish Family History Foundation, and editor of the O Mahony Record Society.

This seminar will be a joint venture of the IGS and the Irish-American Cultural Institute. Refreshments will be available. Registration: $3.00 for IGS and IACI members; $5.00 for non-members.

Long Island, New York members should contact their officers to determine if a seminar will be scheduled there from November 4 through November 9. Other opportunities for IGS members may be available at Washington, D.C.'s Gaelic League on October 22 and at the Illinois Genealogical Conference, October 25 and 26, at Champaign.

OOOPS!

In the August issue of The Septs the page numbers were incorrectly set. Instead of having page numbers from 1 to 36, they should have been pages 121 through 156. Having all sorts of sophisticated computer hardware and software at our command, and there is always room for human error.

The page numbers in ths issue carry on, as if the August issue had been numbered properly. The Editor appologizes for any inconvience the may cause anyone.

YOUR NAME HERE!

The editor of a newsletter is always looking for material. The Septs has been lucky to have people to draw on: Beth Mullinax, Dan Moriarty, Norm Patterson, and others.

However, when those same people keep appearing issue after issue, problems start to arise. Those seemingly bootomless sources of information start to dry up, burn out, or simply discover that there are other things in their life besides genealogy.

That's where you come in. Each one of you reading this article has stories, experiences, information, ruminations, a touch of the poetic muse, gossip. Share these with the other members of the Society.

Now, I know that every time I have read an appeal for contributions to a newsletter I think "Maybe I should do that", and then go on to something else at forget about it. So I am going to make it as easy as possible. Go and get a pen and paper, I'll wait...Got it? Great! Now make a list of two or three items you could write on. Send that list to me with your name and phone. That's it! This is not a commitment to write something! It will simply be an idea list to work from. You can make your commitment if I contact you.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Long Island Chapter Installed at IGS Quarterly Meeting

- Dan Morairty

With a video camera capturing the historic moment, the charter document for the Long Island, New York chapter was signed at the August 24, 1991, Quarterly Meeting held at the Richfield Community Center, Richfield, Minnesota. A group of about 50 IGS members participated in the ceremony, singing "Happy Birthday" to Long Island as an Irish Soda Bread 'cake', with one candle burning, signified that Long Island is the first local chapter in IGS's history.

John Rowane and 70 other Long Island chapter members will hold their first general meeting on September 14 at the Family History Center, located in the Church of Latter Day Saints, Plainview, New York. Presenting the parchment document to the group will be the Honorable Daithi O'Ceallaighi, the Irish Consulate.

In other business, Certificates of Recognition were presented to Beth Mullinax, Virginia and Bill Mahoney, Ginny Delaney, Bob Kelly, Terry Carroll and Jane O'Laughlin. Also recognized by the audience was Mary McNellis, one of the original IGS charter members who is still active.

For the program, the first speaker was Dr. Robert Gambone, St. Paul Archdiocesan Archivist for the past three and a half years, who outlined the many resources available to the family researcher (not only in Minnesota, but at diocesan sites throughout the United States). At St. Paul, the records include parish records, clergy files, correspondence papers, rare books, photo documentation and sacramental records, such as baptism, marriage and burials. At present, the microfilm collection starts with the oldest parishes in the Twin Cities area and some other spots in Minnesota (such as St. Peter's Church in Mendota from 1841 forward). Other valuable resources are old newspapers, parish questionairres and personal papers. The Northwest Chronicle is an example, dating from 1866 to 1935.

At the Chancery Office, 226 Summit Avenue, advance appointments should be made by calling (612) 291-4429. Services are available Monday through Friday, 9 A.M. to noon and 1 P.M. to 4 P.M. Only pencils are allowed to be used. In addition, at the Cathedral itself, a record is kept of the contributors who helped construct the building, no matter how little they may have contributed.

The second speaker was Virginia Mahoney, IGS Researcher and Publicity Chairperson, who claimed that "by using the U.S. and State Censuses you put the soul in your history -- you know your ancestors as real people." She distributed several resource sheets: 1) Microfilms available at the Minnesota Archives at 1500 Mississippi and old headquarters near the State Capital, plus the LDS Libraries at Golden Valley and Maplewood; 2) "How to Use the Soundex Index"; and 3) the Naturalization Records on Microfilm at the Archives.

In Minnesota, researchers have two additional resources: the Minnesota State Census, conducted every five years between the Federal Censuses, starting in 1865 and ending in 1905; and the Minnesota Agricultural Census, which contains interesting information related to the farm and crops grown.

Book sales and helpful table discussions concluded the morning, as participants partook of the Irish Soda Bread and other refreshments.

Treasurer's Report

by J. Robert Kelly

Your organizations finances continued in good order during the year. At our request, the Minnesota Genealogical Society audited our books for the year ending 30 June 1991 and reported, in part, "The financial records of the Irish Group were some of the best that we have audited." We have departed from normal non-profit accounting procedures in presenting the Balance Sheet. Normally, items are expensed and not noted in the Balance Sheet. However, much of our revenues have gone into equipment, library and book inventory, and it seems more informative and accurate to record things as the 'really' are.

GLEANINGS FROM HERE AND THERE

by Beth Mullinax

This will be a little short this issue as I must get it ready before I leave for Ireland. Hopefully, next issue I will be able to pass on all sorts of new information from the First Irish Genealogical Congress in Dublin. Let me pass on a personal experience that will reinforce what we keep telling researchers about joining the local groups in the area that they are researching, i.e., county, state, country, ethnic group, etc..

I usually do the mail for IGS and run through the applications, Ancestor Charts, etc.. Last June I had a new member application from Maurine Logue Taylor, Ocean Park, Washington. Checking out her surnames, I noted that they were all the same as mine and she listed Ward Springs Township in Minnesota. MY FAMILY!! To make a long story short, her grandparents were brother and sister (2 sisters married 2 brothers) to my great grandmother and grandfather. I have located most of the family in Ireland and she had information that I did not have and we will meet for the first time in Dublin at the Congress!

Maurine attended the National Genealogical Conference in Portland, Oregon and joined the Minnesota Genealogical Society, checking Irish as her ethnic interest. She received an IGS membership and joined! See, it does work! Anyone else had such experiences? Why not share them with us?

THERE

VITAL STATISTICS IN IRELAND.

The Registrar General has records from 1864 and Protestant (Church of Ireland) marriages from 1845. The address is: Registrar General, Custom House, 8-11 Lombard Street E, Dublin 2, Ireland. We have the forms if anyone needs one, just send a SASE. The cost is IRL 3.00 (a US check of $9 should cover it). Many new members are showing births, marriages and deaths after that date and don't have a place in Ireland. These records should give the actual townland and/or parish. We find many records from the West of Ireland not recorded even after 1864 but is certainly worth a try.

INDEXING PROJECT IN IRELAND.

Reminder - to new members especially - that Ireland is in the process of indexing all Roman Catholic parish records and Protestant records also when they are made available to the indexers. We have been running updates on these Centres but if we haven't covered your county, just send a SASE and let us know which county.

COUNTY DOWN.

Speaking of indexing, we just received information about a local group in County Down. The Banbridge Historical Society, ATTN: Mrs. McGladdery, Old Technical Building, Downshire Road, Banbridge, Co. Down, Northern Ireland BT32 3JY. They have an Historical Journal, cost STL 10, with an additional STL 3.00 for Air Mail. If you are a member of the society they will do a preliminary search for you for STL 5.00. Their parish records and other information are for the South part of County Down. We received a copy of their application so if anyone is interested, just send a SASE and $1.00 for copying. (STL means pounds Sterling which is running about $2.00 now. The cost of the Journal is about $20.00 US) I'm not familiar with this Journal but I subscribe to several and they contain historical and many times, genealogical information, such as cemetery inscriptions.

KEEN FOR BREEN!

The Irish Echo, an Irish newpaper out of New York City had a query from a Margaret Fitzpatrick, Coolowley, Errill, Portlaoise, Co Laois, Ireland. She is looking for two granduncles that left for New York about 1900. Their names, Joseph Breen, born March 8, 1883 and Patrick Breen, born January 18 1871. They were from Coolowley, Grogan, Portlaoise. Ms. Fitzpatrick was looking for relatives to see when she visited New York in September. Do these names, dates and places ring a bell with anyone?

HERE

ST PATRICK'S DAY is only six months away, so start planning. There is a town of St. Patrick, Missouri, that has a post office established in 1858. It has a new special postmark each year and will stamp and send your letters on to your Irish friends and relatives. Mail your addressed, stamped envelopes to Postmaster Harriet Johnson, St Patrick, MO 63466 for mailing on March 17 with the special postmark - free of charge. Or order a specially designed envelope from the Shrine of St Patrick for 75 cents. This will include the envelope, first class postage, cancellation, shamrock cachet and a St Patrick's Day greeting card inside. Send envelope orders to Shrine of St Patrick, Box 34, St Patrick, MO 63466. Make checks payable to the Shrine of St Patrick. If anyone wants to visit the town of St Patrick it is located just 5 miles off highway 61. This information received from The Irish Missourians Research Group, Inc., P.O. Box 783, Jefferson City, MO 65102-0783.

CLASSES.

Dr Eoin McKiernan, University of St Thomas, St

Paul, Minnesota is conducting a class titled Crises in Irish History, October 8 - November 26, 1991, 10 am - 12 noon at the University. For further information contact St. Thomas.

CLAN REUNIONS.

If you are planning to visit Ireland in 1992 you might want to check if your clan/surname is having a get together while you are there, or maybe you can plan your trip around the dates of the reunion. We have information on some of the clans and can refer you to either the Irish Tourist Board, 757 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10017 or Clans' Alliance International, 8916 Troost Avenue, Kansas City, MO 64131. We will try and publish dates if they are received timely for the newsletters.

KANE COUNTY, ILLINOIS, EARLY FAMILIES 1833-1885, fully indexed and published by the Elgin Genealogical Society, P.O. Box 1418, Elgin, IL 60121-1418. Over 1,100 surnames and 4,100 individuals, many of them Irish. Cost is $29.50 plus $3.50 shipping & handling per book. They will add one surname to the cover in gold for $2.50. If you have further information, write the Elgin genealogical Society.

BEGINNING IRISH GENEALOGY CLASSES.

We will conduct very basic, beginning classes this fall and winter as long as there is an interest. The dates of the classes are: October 18, November 15, December 13, January 17 and February 21 (these are all Fridays) from 7 pm to 9 pm, at the MGS Library, 1101 West 7th Street, St Paul. Please drop us a note if you plan on attending any of the classes. All we ask is that you are an IGS member and please bring your personal research. If you have questions, call Beth at 574-1436.

MINNESOTA IRISH HERITAGE FAIR.

Saturday & Sunday, October 26 & 27, 1991, at the St Paul Armory, 600 Cedar. Watch for news releases! IGS will have two tables at the Fair and need volunteers to assist with general questions about researching and about IGS. If you can help, please call Beth after October 5th.

DODGE COUNTY WISCONSIN

Member Florence Myslajek has recommended researchers Jeanne and Lee Dornfeldt for quick and reliable help with birth, death, marriage, plat books, probate and cemetery records of Dodge County, Wis.. For a complete list of their resources and a schedule of their reasonable charges, write Jeanne Dornfeldt, c/o Family Tree Research, W4402 Raasch Hill Rd., Horicon, WI 53022 or call her at (414) 485-4536.

INDEX TO BYGONES, NEW HORIZONS ON THE HISTORY OF KILLYBEGS (Co. Donegal, Ireland) by Mr. Pat Conaghan. HISTORIES LIBRARY NOTES: A short note to call your attention to the donations and purchases that are coming in and adding a wealth of resource info. Usually we do not purchase books that are not IRISH something or other. However, the Provincetown, MA Cemetery Inscriptions has a large number of Irish names. Also, the Worcester County Superior Court Naturalization records are mostly Irish, Scots & English surnames! Thanks, John Bowen. We'll try and have this indexed. Randy Burns donated a beautiful copy of the 1928 Fillmore County (Minnesota) Atlas & Farmers' Directory. This shows the owners of each section of land at that time plus the alphabetical list by township of the farmers. The wealth of info on Co. Donegal donated by Mary Drury is beyond words. We hadn't had many Donegal resources until this. She is the one who gave us the info on BYGONES which we eventually purchased. GO RAIBH MILE MAITH AGAT (THANK YOU) all you members who have helped our collection grow, both by your donations of money and materials.

REVISED IGS CONSTITUTION TO BE VOTED ON NOVEMBER 9

After two years of a committee study, led by Eileen Casey, Brooklyn Center, MN, a new improved constitution was adopted by the IGS Board of Directors on September 11 and will be recommended to members attending the IGS Quarterly Meeting, November 9, at the Richfield Communit y Center, 7000 Nicollet Ave., Richfield, MN.

Members unable to attend that meeting may submit written amendments to Dan Moriarty, 1410 2nd. Ave., Newport, MN 55055, prior to November 9.

Due to newletter space limitations, only the proposed changes to the constitution are posted here. Members attending the Quarterly Meeting will receive complete copies, as may others by writing to Dan.

Only two deletions (– –) are proposed, while new wording will appear in bold face.

ARTICLE II - PURPOSE

E. Collect and, when practicable, publish genealogical, biographical and historical material relating to (Minnesota) families of Irish descent and their forebears;

F. Encourage the establishment of Irish genealogical resources in genealogical departments in libraries (throughout the State of Minnesota), either on its own or in cooperation with an other organization, agency or muncipality.

ARTICLE III - MEMBERSHIP - GENERAL AND COMPLIMENTARY

A. Membership in the IGS shall be open to any person or organization whose interest is the study of Irish genealogy.

B. Membership in IGS shall require payment of dues annually. Dues shall be determined by the Board and approved at a General Meeting. Any proposed increase in dues shall be published in the IGS Newsletter prior to the General Meeting at which time a vote shall be taken on the increase. Failure to pay dues within three months shall end mailings from IGS.

C. The Board of Directors shall define what Categories of Membership will be offered and decide if, when and for how long Complimentary Membership shall be extended to an individual.

D. Membership shall entitle a member to receive mailings from IGS. These shall include the newsletters and notices of special events, such as IGS Seminars.

ARTICLE IV - MEETINGS

A. IGS Meetings - The IGS shall hold Genereal Membership Meetings at least four times a year. The purpose of these meetings shall be to provide genealogical information and help to members with their research questions.

B. Annual Meeting - The last General Meeting of the IGS Fiscal Year shall be designated as the Annual Meeting. Elections shall be held at this meeting.

C. Board of Directors Meetings - Meetings of the Board of Directors, hereinafter referred to as the Board, shall be set by the President. There shall be no fewer than four Board meetings per year. Special Board meetings may be called by the President.

D. Executive Committee Meetings - Meetings shall be called by the President to handle special or emergency business.

E. Quorum - A Quorum to act upon business at all IGS meetings shall be a simple majority of members in good standing who are present at the meeting.

Article V - OFFICERS, BOARD OF DIRECTORS, EXECUTIVE AND OTHER COMMITTEES

B. Board of Directors - The Board shall consist of the officers and the Chairs of each Standing Committee. Its responsiblilities shall be to:

1. Establish policy for IGS consistent with the policies of MGS.

2. Oversee and manage the business and all other affairs of IGS.

C. Executive Committee - The Executive Committee shall consist of the officers of IGS. Its duties shall be to handle special or emergency business.

D. Standing and Ad Hoc Committees - Standing and Ad Hoc Committees shall be formed at the discretion of the Board. The Chairs of each shall be appointed by the President, who shall be an ex-officio member of these committees except the Nominating Committee.

ARTICLE VI - NOMINATING COMMITTEE

A. The Immediate Past President shall chair and form the Nominating Committee, which shall present the Board with a slate of officers to be elected. This slate shall be published in the IGS Newsletter distributed immediately before the Annual Meeting.

B. The Nominating Committee shall determine the eligibility of all candidates for office and their willingness to serve.

ARTICLE VIII FISCAL POLICY AND FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

A. The Fiscal Year for IGS shall be July first to June 30th of the following year.

B. The IGS is a non-profit organization. It shall not issue shares of stock, and it shall pay no dividends or profits to its organizers, officers or members.

C. No activities of any IGS Board or Committee member, acting individually or as a whole, shall jeopardize the non-profit standing of IGS or MGS.

D. The Treasurer shall be required to make quarterly reports to the Treasurer of MGS.

E. The Treasurer shall present an Annual Budget to the Board for its acceptance before approval at the first General Meeting of the Fiscal Year.

F. Each year the Treasurer shall submit the IGS financial records to the MGS Audit Committee for consideration.

G. Dissolution Policy. The IGS shall protect its property, collections assets in the event of voluntary dissolution: first, to satisfy any liabilities and obligations, and, secondly, with the remaining assets, to distribute them for exclusively educational purposes to one or more genealogical or historical societies, libraries, museums or educational institutions in the State of Minnesota operated or incorporated in accordance with the provisions of the Minnesota Statutes and Section 501 (c) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code. In the event of involuntary dissolution, title to such property, collections, and assets shall be vested in the Minnesota Historical Society. The IGS shall keep proper records for the protection of the interests of its donors and contributors.

ARTICLE IX - PARLIAMENTARY AUTHORITY

The rules contained in the current edition of Roberts Rules of Order, Newly Revised shall govern the IGS in all cases where they are applicable.

ARTICLE X - AMENDMENTS

This Constitution may be amended at any General Meeting by a simple majority vote of the members in attendance provided that the proposed amendments shall have been published and explained in one IGS Newsletter prior to the General Meeting.

Share Your Family History

by Ida Troyc

What good is knowing without sharing? After all the work put into my research of the past and 'living' family, I wonder why I did it? If I can't share it, what is the point? I can't afford to publish it, and I am really not convinced that I have reached that point yet, but I would like to share it.

In a family of our size there are many graduations, weddings, showers, babies, etc., etc. I always like to give a unique gift at these events, but until lately I had run out of ideas. But now, I have the most unique gift of all -- their family history.

At weddings, I make up a booklet of their portion of the family, along with all the wedding pictures, past and present, and include them along with all the history I have collected of their forebearers. I cover the book with lace and put their name on it. What a way to welcome a new in-law to the family!

At baby showers, I make up a booklet of the new family member's family, along with all the baby pictures I can gather in that family. Cover it with quilted baby fabric, a ribbon and a rose, and you have a gift no one else can provide that new member.

At graduations, I have given the honored guest a history of their family, especially if he or she has an old family name. You would be surprised how enthused the younger generation gets over this information.

I always hope that this will become a family heirloom, passed on to future generations. What better way to share your knowledge? Try it - they'll love it.

More Information About Francis Conlin

In The Septs Newsletter of January, 1991, Volume 12, # 1, page 83, there is an article copied from the 1882 History of Nodaway County, Missouri, concerning Francis Conlin, who came from Ireland. This family lived in Barnard, in Nodaway County and some of the children of Francis are buried in the Barnard Cemetery.

Among those buried here with the dates on the gravestones are: Samuel H. Conlin 1855 - 1924; Francis M. Conlin 1848 - 1932 and on the same stone marker is his wife Sarah E. 1850 - 1931; Also here are some of his grandchildren: Samuel Conlin 1880 - 1961; Eli E. Conlin 1873 - 1915; Clemmie M. Groves 1880 - 1932 and Nellie Jobe 1874 - 1950.

The graves of the emigrant Francis Conlin and his wife Jane Malott were not found, although they are probably buried in this cemetery.

In order to learn more about this Conlin family, the Probate records were obtained from the Clerk of Court at Maryville, MO. It seems strange that the date of death of Francis is not shown in these records, although the Petition to Probate his Estate is dated 15 December 1887. These papers also suggest that he died in July, 1887. His estate was settled in 1890 with the heirs listed as William T.; Francis M.; Sarah A. Goforth; Margarat A. Currnutt the widow of John F. Conlin; Samuel H. Conlin; Eliza Gorsuch and Mary M. Conlin.

All of these heirs of Francis Conlin were living in Nodaway County in 1890. The priest was paid $30.00 for the funeral services, the doctor was paid $7.00 for his medical service and the coffin cost $45.00.

The photograph shows the dates of birth and death of Francis M. and his wife Sarah E. Conlin.

Minnesota Civil War Veteran Records

by Steve Nielson

If you dream of obtaining the Civil War records of your Irish immigrant ancestor from the National Archives, you first need to do preliminary research at the Minnesota Historical Society's Archives and Manuscripts reference area. The public reading room is located in the Research Center at 1500 Mississippi Street, St. Paul, MN 55101. (612) 296-6980. Hours are 9:00 - 5:00 Monday through Friday, and 9:00 - 1:00 Saturdays.

There are many muster rolls for the Civil War soldiers located within the Adjunct General records, which are part of the Minnesota State Archives. The records are fragile and in poor condition. The intent of this short article is to note quick and easy microfilmed collections that are located in the Reading Room.

The Adjutant General's Military Service Record cards are alphabetical service cards for Minnesotans who mustered in from this state. The catalog number is SAM 1 (State Archives Microfilm) and the record cards for the Civil War are on rolls 9-12. The microfilms are located in the State Archives microfilm cabinets on the west wall of the Reading Room. The cards list military rank, residence, place of birth, date of birth or age, when and where enlisted, the date and place mustered into, the company and regiment, remarks, when and where honorably discharged, if that was the case. These films are also available on the interlibrary loan.

Minnesota in the Civil and Indian Wars, 1861 - 1865, Volume 1 , list rosters of soldiers but they are arranged by regiment and company. An alphabetical list with the roster page number has been compiled and is on microfilm. It can be found in the microfilm cabinets in the Reading Room as M63, Minnesota in the Civil and Indian Wars, Index to the Rosters.

If your Civil War ancestor returned to Minnesota after service, it's obviously useful to check the 1870 Minnesota Census Indexes and the 1880 Minnesota Soundex. If found in the indexes, the censuses can provide a little more information about a veteran's family.

The 1890 Special Veteran's Census located in the census microfilm cabinets lists Civil War veterans and their widows. You may first check the 1890 Minnesota Veterans Census Index compiled by Brian Lee Dilts, Index Publishing, Salt Lake City, Utah, 1985. A copy is available on top of the cabinets. This published index is incomplete.

Ireland's Genealogical and Historical Research Centres
Part 2

by Beth Multinax

[Editors note: This is the conclusion of Beth's article, begun in the May issue of The Septs]

Last spring we published a book on Ireland's Genealogical & Research Centres (still available). We had published most of the same information in earlier newsletters. August 1990 we sent out letters to all the centres, libraries, etc., that were listed in that series, 64 letters in all, asking them to update the information we had published. We received answers from 35 of them. We also received the current membership list of the IRISH FAMILY HISTORY FOUNDATION (the groups that are doing the church indexing) from John Kearney of the Offaly Historical Society. All Centres on this list are so noted.

We are going to pass most of this current information on to you. The only exceptions are the long lists of publications that some of the centres have for sale, some long lists of parish records and application blanks. If we have this information, it will be noted. To receive the additional information just send a SASE (large envelope please) to IGS and let us know the county that you are interested in.

NOTES:

- IRL stands for Irish Pounds/Punts
- STG stands for English Pounds Sterling (the currency of Northern Ireland).
- Most of the resources listed for each organization/ society/centre are not open to the public except in some of the county libraries. Write BEFORE you leave for Ireland if you plan on visiting them.

- If you write for information, include at least three International Response Coupons.

- This information is as current as possible but subject to frequent changes. Prices change also.

The organization that you would all find valuable to your Irish Research is The Irish Family History Society, P.O. Box 36, Naas, County Kildare, Ireland. This Society helped organize all the centres doing indexing of church records to have more conformity between them. Their annual journal, IRISH FAMILY HISTORY, is most interesting and useful to all Irish researchers, no matter which county your ancestors are from. Their annual fee is about $15.

The Heritage Centre has indexed parish records of all faiths for the parishes of Bourney, Corbally, Kilcoleman, Kyle, Roscrea and Shinrone. They will do searches for a basic fee. They also publish a journal, EILE, which includes articles on genealogy. In addition, the society has a catalogue for its manuscript collection which spans four centuries. The Centre has a museum and exhibitions and besides genealogy, it is involved in environmental and archaeological surveys.

Publications include HISTORIC ROSCREA, A WALKING TOUR, by George Cunningham; ROSCREA ME DARLIN', by Kathleen Moloughney THE ANGLO-NORMAN ADVANCE INTO SOUTH-WEST MIDLANDS 1185-1221, by George Cunningham; and THE ROSCREA PEOPLE (an annual).

They have extracted all the entries for 20 of the 46 parishes in the Diocese of Cashel and Emly. The remaining 26 were done by other groups in the County. The parish records start at different times, e.g., Killenaule - 1792, and Clerihan - 1852, but the average starting date is 1810. They will conduct searches and will direct searchers to additional sources of information.

They have no publication but a major study of North Tipperary Protestant Migrations by Bruce Elliot has been published by McGill, Queen's University Press, Ontario, Canada.

Cead Mile Failte — "a hundred thousand welcomes"

From Our President. . .

A happy 1992 to you and yours! I hope that the new year will bring a life filled with satisfying accomplishments.

Dan Moriarty

From the IGS, I have good news and bad news to report, as we begin our 13th year as an organization.

On the upbeat side, I'm pleased to announce that our 1,000th member is Patrick Morissey of Cashel, Co. Tipperary, Ireland. Another 200 members have signed up since, so a warm Irish WELCOME to all!

Next, we finally have a revised IGS Constitution to work with. That should provide a framework for our future actions. Anyone desiring a copy should write to me: 1410 2nd Ave., Newport, MN 55055.

On the down side, twenty-eight inches of snow on November 1 buried our "Nora Hickey Seminar." Nothing was moving in the Twin Cities that night, but her visit did provide us with some helpful information. . .with more expected to be sent in the future.

Much more serious is our continuing problem with our mailings to you. We have tried various adjustments but still find people not receiving their newsletters or other materials. And more goofs appear in our newsletter, such as the failure to print the names and addresses in the last Surname Index.

In an effort to correct these disturbing problems, the IGS Board has commissioned Joe Huber, our Surname Index Coordinator, to make a complete investigation of the situation and recommend steps to make things right.

Hopefully, the Surname mistake will be corrected in this issue, but we need your help to correct our other omissions. The response to our Special Holiday mailing asking for "CORRECTIONS" has been encouraging. Thank you!

And, finally, I must again announce that we have changed the leadership of our newsletter. Ida Troye, our Second Vice President, has become editor, with Bill Conlan, handling the layout and design.

Again, thank you for your support and patience! We will make every effort to do better in the future!

From the Editor . . .

At a recent Executive Board Meeting of the Irish Genealogical Society, I was voted to take the position of Editor of THE SEPTS. I wish to express my thanks for this vote of confidence from the Board.

Ida Troye

My goal for this newsletter is to provide information and encouragement to you, the researcher.

The Irish Genealogical Society newsletter, The Septs', main purpose is education. We endeavor to create further interest in Irish Genealogy and to encourage participation from our members. We strive to make as much information available as possible. Any funds we have are invested in Irish Genealogical research tools.

For the persons who cannot attend the seminars, or the library, we produce this newsletter in hopes that we can provide some new ideas and, certainly, encouragement. We have a positive attitude that you can do MOST of your Irish research from your desk, or local facilities, whether it be genealogical/ historical societies, or your library. Many areas are fortunate enough to have a Church of the Latter Day Saints (Mormon) Library within a reasonable distance, which offers numerous avenues of research.

One of the most important achievements to accomplish is to encourage others that "it can be done." That Irish Genealogy is not so complicated that an "ordinary" person can't do the job. In that area, we can all help each other. If you can tell of ONE clue that helped find your family, pass it on through the newsletter. The simple clue that helped you might be a breakthrough for someone else.

We can educate you on how to use the material available and the sources to seek it from; however, your individual accomplishment might be "worth its weight in gold."

We strive to inform and communicate and hope that you, the researcher, will help us through this newletter. We welcome suggestions regarding what could be published in The Septs to help in research. The Septs - newsletter - will only be as good as you make it. Please use it to your advantage.

Clan meeting in Ireland

Submitted by Florence (Blaskfield) Myslajek, whose great grandparents were Sughrues.

If you want information on Sugrue/O Siochru, join the clan organized by Denise Sugrue, 4 Elderberry Ln., #205, Reading, MA 01867. The clan publishes a newsletter, and their genealogy committee hopes to have all SUGRUE family records on computer before the clan gathering in Ireland in July, 1992. Members are invited to send in names/dates of their family tree and the committee will use them to connect families.

Annual dues are $10.00/household, covering all family members at the same address. Join the clan. Send in your name/address/home & work phone numbers along with dues. Checks should be payable to Sugrue/O Siochru Clan, % Bill Conole, 4 Chamberlain Road, Westford, MA 01886.

The original and present-day name SUGRUE, in Ireland is almost entirely confined to County Kerry. It seems appropriate that the clan gathering will take place in the Dunloe Castle Hotel, in Beaufort, near Killarney, Co. Kerry. It takes place during the Irish Ancestors Homecoming Festival on July 10 – 12, 1992.

Readers Digest "Quotable Quotes" has one that is applicable to genealogy:

"Don't undertake a project unless it is manifestly important and nearly impossible."

by Edwin H. Land

and the storm of the century arrived the same day.

In our October Septs we announced a special seminar by Nora Hickey on November 1. Up-dating this long awaited visit and presentation, Nora arrived on one of the last flights into St. Paul from Ireland via Springfield, Illinois. Of course we had no idea that the Twin Cities would have an alltime record breaker blizzard that night. After facing "grid-lock" traffic, her seminar & dinner being cancelled, plus 28 inches of snow, she left for San Francisco.

I was fortunate enough to have two days with her to exchange information. Nora was surprised to find the wealth of information available to us here, both from our own government records and what we can access through the Mormon Family History Centers, and of course our Irish Genealogical Library. She did make it to our library before she left.

One of the most interesting bits of information from her was the use of a different family name, in everyday life, by families living in a specific area where one name was very prominent. ie: when I mentioned researching the Lorden families in Enniskeane and Ballineen area she told me they were really O'Briens. There were too many O'Briens in the area, so they began using different names for each family. She noticed this in County Cork as she worked the records. (In our library, there is a book entitled "Surnames In Ireland" by Matheson. Chapter 3: "Use of Different Surnames Interchangeably" discusses this and gives some examples. Check your local library or historical society to see if this book is available on inter-library loan.)

Before she left, we had time to discuss the need for this type of information. We hope to have something from her in this line. She also indicated that she hopes to return to St. Paul, but IN THE SUMMER, please. Watch for later details.

Researching tips top IGS Quarterly Meeting

by Dan Moriarty

Two valuable research sources, the "Griffith's Valuation" and the "Spinning Wheel Records" were explained by Virginia Mahoney and Beth Mullinax at the IGS Quarterly Meeting on November 9 at the Richfield Community Center.

The Griffith's Index is an accounting of the householders surveyed in the years 1848-1864. This was done to determine the amount of tax each tenant was to pay for the support of the poor in his district.

The Index is arranged by counties and lists the surnames of the occupiers within the baronies, breaking down further into civil parishes. This index indicates whether your surname appears at least once in the barony.

Working through the Griffith's is a two part process: 1) locating your surname in the county by baronies to identify which civil parish the surname exists; and 2) ordering the micro film by civil parish to discover the first name of these householders, amount of land, etc.

That film is available through the Family History Library of the Church of the Latter Day Saints, ordering through a local chapter or Salt Lake City.

Film numbers are as follows: 919.001 – Counties Antrim, Armagh, Carlow, and Cavan; 919.002 – Clare, Cork and Derry; 919.003 – Donegal, Down, and Dublin; 919.004 – Fermanagh, Galway, Kerry, Kildare and Kilkenny; 919.005 – Leix, Leitrim, Limerick, Longford, Lough, Mayo and Meath; 919.006 – Monaghan, Offaly, Roscommon, Sligo, and Tipperary; and 919.007 – Tyrone, Waterford, Westmeath, Wexford and Wicklow.

The 1796 Spinning Wheel Records indicate the owners who ran "cottage industries." 85% of these machines were located in Ulster.

During the IGS business meeting, the revised IGS Constitution was adopted with only one amendment: in Article III, B, the last sentence was deleted ("Failure to pay dues within three months shall end mailings from IGS.") This section was determined to be a matter for the IGS Board of Directors not in the IGS Constitution.

For loyal service to IGS recognition certificates were presented to Eileen Casey and Karin McInnis.

IGS's new tabletop display was set up for the first time, depicting the Irish who made noteable contributions to the development of the City of St. Paul over the last 150 years.

Dear Septs

11/4/1991 Curtis C. Roselle (IG # 1008) says:
"Your society looks very dynamic and full of information opportunities. I look forward to a long and exciting association with you."

Thanks Curtis!

11/18/1991 Laura A. DeGrazia (IG # 13) writes:
"Please let me express my sincere appreciation for the high degree of professionalism in all correspondence I have had with your organization. I am pleased by the wonderful newsletter, introductory package of research materials and personal attention. I will continue to recommend membership to anyone doing Irish research."

We love to be appreciated!

Mary J. Gartland of Lakewood, Ohio (IG # 471) has some information that may be valuable to researchers.

Archives of religious orders may include personnel records of members with each member's - parents' names, including mother's maiden name;

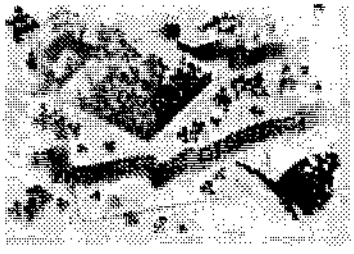
- parents' places of birth;
- baptismal name, exact birth date, and home parish location of member of order;
- brief biography of member or order.

While doing my research I was able to trace three collateral lines through the 19th century. The Sister Archivists of the orders gave information. They responded promptly and graciously to my requests, which included SASE's.

I would think that archivists of religious orders of priests and brothers would be equally cooperative in responding to inquiries.



"I am sending you this little card to mark the occasion of the Feastday of St. Patrick, our National Apostle, which I understand is a great day for the Irish in the USA."

The Irish origin of the name of Patterson

by Norman G. Patterson

Most people interested in their own family surname often wonder just how it was that they inherited the name they are now holding. It was my own curiosity in the name of Patterson that I began searching for the meaning of our name about 1928. Since that time, my searching has led me to many sources in books such as Blacks Surnames of Scotland , A.M. Lower's Patronymica Britania and other books about Irish names.

Various writers have expressed their opinions of the ancient origin of the Patterson name, however, it certainly did begin with St. Patrick, who it seems, was given the name "Patricius" by Pope Celestine in Rome. Since most surnames had hardly started until the 12th century, except for Irish families, it is interesting that the first use of the name seems to be that of "MacGillePhadruig" meaning the son of the servant or follower of St. Patrick. The family that first used this name was one of the ruling Irish families of Ossory, now Gowan barony, County Kilkenny, who took the name of MacGille Phadruig. This Gaelic name is the origin of such names as Fitzpatrick, Kilpatrick, Gilpatrick, M'Ilpatrick, MacPhadrig, Patrickson, later to be "Englished" in Scotland as Paterson and Patterson. There have been many different spellings of this old Gaelic name used over the centuries. It would seem logical for a name such as Macgillephadruig would have its origin in Ireland due to the presence of St. Patrick, who converted so many from paganism and who inspired the building of so many chapels in many parts of Ireland. It was in the ancient barony of Ossory that the Macgillephadruigs became such a numerous family, tribe or clan. It is most probable that as a family or clan that the name was taken over to Scotland in the 12th century or before when the Irish started to expand their control beyond the shores of Ireland. A.M. Lower, in his book shows that Macgillepatrick, Chief of Ossory, was slain in 995 A.D., and the Lord of Ossory, Brian MacGillapatrick died in 1511.

It is not known for certain just when the family went into Scotland but they were there in 1236 when as Macgyllepatricks they signed a Moray Charter. It would appear that this family or clan known as the Macgilphaderians settled on the north side of Lochfyne where they established a forge and there became famous iron workers in producing armor, swords and iron arrow heads. They may have remained here for many years, but as is so often the case, the smaller clans became septs of the larger, more powerful clans. Considering the skill and capability of the Macgyllepatricks to make such weapons, they would certainly be more than welcome to unite with another clan. It is for this reason it would appear that families of MacGilPatrick, Patrickson, McPatrick and Paterson became associated with the Clan McLaren.

In later years during the Reformation, persecution for religious reasons, and in the 1600's of the establishment of huge areas in Ireland having b een granted to the guild of London as well as to wealthy landed Scottish families, the doors were open for people of Scotland and England to come there as tenants on these large estates. Among these plantation settlers, the Pattersons were settled mainly in the counties of Donegal, Antrim, Down, Londonderry and Tyrone. The Ironmonger's guild of London was granted thousands of acres, mostly in Aghadowey Parish, County Derry, and neighboring parishes. It was from this Aghadowey Parish that our Patterson family came with their minister, neighbors and relatives in 1729 to settle at Pelham, Massachusetts, from which place over the years there was a steady movement away to more productive farm lands. It was these people of ancient Irish family origin who in America became, years later, known as the Scotch-Irish, only to be discriminated against by the earlier settled colonists, because they were at that time considered to be Irish.

SUCCESS STORY

Contributed by Carole Dunn Vaughn, Princeton, Illinois

I remember from my very early years, the stories of my Great-Great Grandfather, Michael T. Dunn, who emigrated to the States as a teenager from County Galway. He married the first white child of East Grove Township, Lee County, IL and produced 13 offspring. I got the genealogy bug and came to the conclusion that I must find out exactly where my ancestor came from and see it for myself.

For over a year, I searched through existing family histories, dusty trunks filled with pictures & letters, cemetery plots, libraries, courthouse records, census reports, etc. Still, I had nothing new for my efforts; "new" being a parish, town or townland in Ireland. I began corresponding with elderly relatives from both coasts and everywhere in between in the hopes that someone, somewhere knew something I didn't. Finally my Grandpa (age 91) dropped a clue that was the beginning of my success. A distant cousin and his nephew, while visiting, asked a lot of family history questions. This cousin lived in California, but his brother and mother lived only about 15 miles from me. I went home and began making phone calls, discovering that this same cousin had put together a family history, focusing on his surname, Scully. I was given his address and wrote to him. Within a week, this dear man sent me copies of his work. From his efforts, he concluded that the Scully and Dunn ancestors were born in the same region and emigrated together. A month or two later, I was able to get a copy of my ancestor's "Declaration of Intent," which listed the exact parish my cousin felt was our ancestral home. I was able to get a copy of my Aunt's obituary. She was a sister to Michael T. Dunn. This obituary listed the nearest town to my ancestor's parish.

Once I had these three confirmations of the locale, I obtained the address of the local parish priest. In writing to him to inquire if he had families of my surname recorded in his records, I learned that he did have, and he said "please come visit sometime."

Well, visit we did. I found the grave of great-great grandfather's sister, Bridget Dunn Hanney, and many references in the parish records to other family members. Instead of this trip being the end of my ancestor quest, I feel it it only the beginning. I really had a "love at first sight" experience with the part of Ireland my Dunn family came from and came home with many new ideas and addresses that I am convinced will help me open many doors -- genealogically speaking.

Ireland is more than a beautiful country. Its people are "real". In some ways, Ireland is a state of mind. One we could all benefit from adopting.

Thank you for your publication and the encouragement it gives all of us that are yearning to know more about our Irish Heritage.

P.S. The locale in Ireland is Civil Parish Killeenadeema, the Catholic parish is Killnadeema, the nearest town is Loughrea in County Galway. Through the phone book, I contacted two Dunn families in Aughrim, Co. Galway and found that they are the same family and are now corresponding.

Anyone who has not checked our growing collection lately is in for a surprise. Remember, you members out of the area, if there is something in the library that you wish us to check on, just send us an SASE and let us know what you want. We're always eager to share our collection. We do not loan out books, but can make copies of most information for you.

A few notes about some donations and purchases. I do not know the history of The Irish Standard, but the two issues that were donated contain a wealth of information about the Catholic community, and the communities in general, of Minnesota and parts of North and South Dakota! The two issues of the Record of the Maynooth Union were purchased in a used book store in Ireland. They list the members of this organization by Diocese in Ireland and outside of Ireland. For those who are not familiar with Maynooth in County Kildare, it is probably the largest seminary in Ireland or at least the most famous. The members listed appear to be all priests. The book, 'Twixt Skellig and Scattery, was also purchased in a used book store (called Antiquarians in Ireland). It's an interesting history of the towns and people around Tralee in County Kerry.

From HERE and THERE

THERE:

County Galway: The County Galway Family History Society, has a new address. It is 34 Upper Abbeygate Street, Galway City, Co Galway, Ireland. Telephone # (091) 67922

County Clare: We have just been notified of the East Clare Heritage, St Cronin's 10th Century Church, Tuamgraney, Co. Clare, Ireland. Telephone # (0619) 21351, Gerard Madden. They say that they have the records for eight parishes in East Clare. (A member has had good service from this group.)

County Louth: We received information from Mary Patricia McConnon, M.A., Seabank, Castlebellingham, Co Louth, Ireland. She does historical and genealogical research and has pamphlets for sale on four Co. Louth townlands. For copies of her material, send a SASE to IGS. We have no information on Ms. McConnon other than what she sent us. If you write her, be sure she knows that you are a member of IGS and let us know how satisfied you are. We don't like to recommend people or organizations that we have not dealt with but we believe in giving everyone a chance. The 1992 Genealogical Contact Reference: An Australian organization is putting out a publication to assist in tracing family history. The name of the company is: D.W. & P Lawson, PO Box 337, Beechworth, VIC 3747, Australia. For one of the brochures about the publication send a SASE to IGS.

England Wales and Scotland: Member Steve Dennehy writes about an organization that may be of interest to some of us whose ancestors went to one of these countries:
The Catholic Family History Society, Mrs.Barbara Murray, Gen.Sec., 2 Winscombe Crescent, Ealing, London W5 1AZ, England. Membership is 8 pounds per year, about $15.00.Enclose 2 International Coupons with inquiry. They have a computerized surname interest list and publish three journals a year. Sounds like something IGS should join!

Co. Waterford: Member Jo Birkbeck, Finty's Cottage, Creaden Head, Dunmore East, Waterford, Ireland, has offered to photograph any buildings (churches, village or town) within 30 miles of Waterford town. All she asks is for the cost of the film and postage. She has a Pentax 35 mm camera and will take the pictures you wish and mail the undeveloped film to you. What an opportunity for our Waterford members!

Calvary Cemetery in Queens, NY.
Member Nancy Brennan picked up the following info on her Prodigy computer program: "Irish Info. Irish Dead-End. Calvary Cemetary in Queens, NY. Section of (old Calvary) Irish Immigrants are buried: Headstones with the words--Native of _____parish, county_____, Ireland." Nancy suggests that some local group/groups in NY get involved and write down the information on the tombstones. Anyone familiar with this cemetary or interested in the project???

The Munster Plantation, MacCarthy-Morrogh, has member Steve McCarthy stumped. He has the publication and says that in the foot notes it makes reference to biographies in Appendix Two of the book. His book does not have an Appendix Two. He is wondering if he has an incomplete book or if the author published another book of the same title? Can anyone help him? His address is 1664 Trap Road, Vienna VA22182.

Illinois & Ohio:
Member Shana Callanan sent information on Kane County, Illinois, Dundee Township, Washington County, Illinois and Matamoras Area Historical Society, Ohio. The Matamoras Area Historical Society has a book out on the records of the township trustees, clerks, etc., from 1803-1843. The book contains over 400 names of early settlers and is indexed. For further information contact the society at PO Box 1846, New Matamoras, OH 45767. The Elgin Genealogical Society, PO Box 1418, Elgin, IL 60121-1418, also has a book out on the Kane County EARLY FAMILIES 1833-1885, with over 100 names fully indexed. Irish names in both of these publications. IGS does not have either of these publications.

A New Church in Newmarket-On-Fergus, 1856

The Roman Catholic parish of Newmarket-on-Fergus is located in south-central County Clare. In fact it surrounds what is now the community of Shannon and the International Airport and extends north perhaps fifteen kilometers. It is made up of seven old parishes: Bunratty, Clonloghan, Drumline, Kilconry, Kilmaleery, Kilnasoolagh and Tomfinlough.

At one time there was a Jesuit Mission located in Newmarket-on-Fergus but it was officially closed on April 27th, 1856 with a Solemn High Mass; the Right Rev. Dr. Vaughan, Bishop of the diocese, presiding.

Immediately following the closing of the mission, a meeting of influential parishioners was held to discuss the need for a new church to replace the old one which was inadequate in size for the number of parishioners. A record £500 was either given or pledged toward the new church at that meeting. In addition, Lord Inchiquin donated a suitable site for both the church and a parochial house. Both Bishop Vaughan and Mr. Edward Fitzgerald, Bart, gave subscriptions of £100.

County Clare researchers will find this parish history a good account of the residents in this area. We have, in our library, an index prepared by Richard Sneil, Fredonia, New York which will give you a quick insight into its value for you. Check the end of the publication for your name where you will, in most cases, see the name of the townland the contributors were from. Then check the book entitled Index to the Townlands and Towns, Parishes and Baronies of Ireland and you will identify the civil parish where the family lived. This will be your entry into the Irish records available to you through the Mormon Library.

This source should remind our members that any such publications they might have in their possession are a invaluable contribution to our collection and your fellow researchers. We appreciate the donation of this by Margaret Hempl, St. Paul, MN. Thanks!

If there is a name you would like to have checked, please send a SASE and we will search this publication for it. If you would like to have it copied, we ask for 20¢ per page.

On the Geegan Trail

by Jane O'Laughlin

I had baptismal records for my Geegan's from churches in Hurley and Ashland, Wisconsin. The comprehensive Wisconsin civil birth, marriage and death microfiche index, available at Wisconsin Area Research Centers, included a birth record for my great-uncle, Joseph Patrick Geegan. I wrote to the area research centers at Ashlandand Madison for a copy of the record but four months later, still had no response. My only recourse was a trip to Ashland on beautiful Lake Superior.

The Ashland County Courthouse is in the process of computer indexing all their records. It is an impressively fast and well-organized system. I knew the date of birth from the microfiche index so I went to the original record book.

"That's odd," said I. "The original Ashland County birth record lists Joseph Gegen. Both indices list Joseph Patrick Geegan. How could there be more information on the index than in the record?"

Armed with this inconsistency I went to the Area Research Center at Northland College. They had the microfilm of the State (Madison based) birth records for the area. When I located Joseph Patrick Geegan, I discovered notations on the state record that weren't on the county record. His birth record in Madison had been corrected by self in 1943. There was a second notation dated January 24, 1967. The first correction added his middle name and corrected the spelling of his own and his father's name; hence the discrepancy between the county book and the index.

"What's this," said I. "He disappeared in 1919 and never contacted anyone though he knew where all five of his sisters lived."

According to the family story he was on his way out west to join his father in Seattle. He never arrived. I didn't want to get my hopes up but surely a correction by self meant he was alive in 1943 and 1967, didn't it? He was born in August 1901. The January 1967 notation could have been for social security purposes.

Back at home I called the local genealogy expert, Virginia Mahoney, who I knew had worked with Wisconsin records.

Virginia suggested I check the new Social Security Index (SSI) at the Family History Center library. The SSI was NEWS to me! I was so excited I was at the Family History Center at 9 am the next day to look for him.

I typed in the name, Joseph Patrick Geegan, and two people came up. Based on the date of birth, I knew that one was "mine." He died in New York in September 1974. His social security number was issued in New York. By paging down one level, I found all five boroughs of New York City listed under death residence localities. There were no benefit locations listed. By paging down another level, I found the address for writing for his death certificate. (The $5 cost listed in this 1988 version was the only information out of date. My initial request for a death record was returned because the cost is now $15 for New York.)

The Social Security Index is available on the new computerized compact disc system at the Church of the Latter Day Saints (LDS) Family History Centers. The index contains 39.5 million deceased people. It includes those people with social security numbers who died primarily between 1962 and 1988 and whose deaths were reported to the Social Security Administration. In theory it starts in 1937 but the data is scarce for pre-1962 deaths. It lists name, birthdate, social security number, state of issuance of social security, month and year of death, death residence localities and death benefit localities.

I came home with a printout of all the information available. I didn't even have to worry about copying anything.

While his obituary still eludes me (the New York Times, are you kidding?), friends enthusiastically propelled to the Family History Center have located some of their "long lost's." With the place of death known, they were able to request the appropriate newspapers for obituaries. This newly available research tool has much potential.

Thanks Virginia!

Céad Míle Fáilte — "a hundred thousand welcomes"

From The President – Dan Moriarty

On June 6, a new IGS president will be elected, so this is my last opportunity to write to you as your president. It doesn't mean that you won't be reading something from me ever again. . . perish the thought! I love writing, and I'm happy to serve our organization.

Dan Moriarty

It does mean, though, that we've reached another milestone in our society, a moment that calls for reflection as well as looking ahead.

I feel good about our past two years, and I hope you do too. We've grown not only in numbers but also in service. We've seen the birth of our first local chapter in Long Island, New York, and an exciting new concept, the Surname Index. At the same time, we've provided genealogical assistance by way of Irish Days, Quarterly Meetings, Seminars, Workshops, book sales, and personal guidance via the mail and in person.

But there is much yet to be done: speedier service to members, more thorough coverage of what's happening in the genealogy world, more additions to our library which we hope to have indexed this year, and last but not least, continuation of our indexing projects in Ireland. Yes, in case you aren't aware, IGS has been spending close to $1,000 a year to support work being done in Ireland. Our reputation is growing in the Heritage Centres as they learn of our contributions to the cause.

To do what we'd like to do will take more money. . . there is little fat in our budget. Our volunteers don't even get coffee or mileage.

Here's what I think we need to look at: 1) new members to replace the 200 we lose each year; 2) new sources of funds such as grants; 3) more donations to the library fund; 4) fees/charges for some of our current products (Surname Index); and, if all else fails, 5) a dues increase.

Please help us with your thoughts and ideas! No matter how far from St. Paul you may be, you may have an answer to one or more of our problems. I thank you in advance for your assistance!

And I thank you, too, for your wonderful support the past two years! It's been a privilege to serve you.

Dan Moriarty

IGS Surname Index Update

From The Editor . . .

The Irish Genealogical Society is in its 14 year. Welcome again to THE SEPTS, a name we adopted two years ago. It means a clan. This issue has information covering both local and Ireland research possibilities, including the tithe records that are available to you.

Ida Troye

THE SEPTS is a tremendous bargain. We are, hopefully, linking researchers through the Surname List and letters from the readers in Dear Septs. As a family researcher, you may have become discouraged or indifferent concerning your research efforts. You probably feel that you have tried every available lead, but all of your results are negative. Please dont give up. Each year many new subscribers join The Irish Genealogical Society [illegible] for other users.

For more positive results, you can be more assertive in your search efforts. Enter your own queries for publication about your own family lines. You can share, at no cost, items of interest about your genealogical activities, such as free help that you may want to share, announcements of seminars of family meetings, your personal ideas or thoughts concerning genealogy related subjects, news about new periodicals or items concerning the organization of a genealogical society.

Dont miss a single opportunity to introduce THE SEPTS to your friends, family members or to anyone who might have just a tiny spark of interest in Irish family history research. When they receive their first issue, it may fan that tiny spark into a full blaze of interest and dedicated efforts as they strive to extend their family lines and learn about their Irish ancestors and descendants.

Enjoy!

Sugrue/O Siochru Clan sponsors Ireland tour

Denise Sugrue of Massachusetts, organizer of a world-wide gathering of the clan in County Kerry, is planning a tour to Ireland July 3 to 13, 1992.

Overnights in Galway, Dublin and Cork will provide opportunities to meet local members of the clan. Emphasis on County Kerry, the ancient "Kingdom" of the Sugrue/O Siochru clan will be made. Participants will stay two nights in Dunloe Castle Hotel, center of the clan gathering, with a special celebration for that clan from all over the world.

The Ring, the lakes of Kerry and Dingle Peninsula will be included in the tour. Other highlights are two special Masses for clan members, a visit to Derryname House, home of Daniel O'Connell, and an optional trip to Skellig Island.

The package includes round-trip from Boston or New York via Aer Lingus, superior first class/deluxe hotels for nine nights, double occupancy; fully escorted sightseeing via motorcoach, full Irish breakfast daily, plus dinner every evening (except in Dublin).

For further information contact Mike Landers, Evergreen Travel Agency, Inc., 80 Bridge St., Dedham, MA 02026 (phone 1-800-443-0070).

Researching stories captivate large quarterly meeting turnout

by Dan Moriarty

A packed house of interested Irish researchers enjoyed learning of the experiences of two IGS members' who shared their successes at the Quarterly Meeting on February 15 at the Richfield Community Center.

Bergetta Monroe, author of The Hendry Family, told of her "Quest for Publishing a Family History," stressing that "When a person dies, a library dies . . .since each person's life contains so much information. That information must be captured by someone who cares and wants to pass it on."

She pointed out that there are two ways to preserve that information: 1) through a family history presented in a narrative style, or 2) through a family tree using a numbering system that is understandable. She chose to do both within one hard-cover work.

To assure that her work would be understood 100 years from now, she explained carefully what she was doing, was consistent throughout her work, and involved as many people and sources as she possibly could.

Her own method of numbering starts from the furthest back generation, giving number one to the earliest member and working forward from there to the youngest.

Her sources – in addition to interviewing every living member of the family – included family stories, recipes, and heirlooms (dishes, quilts, furniture, books, and tools, describing each item in minute detail as to color, size, and purpose or use, and what family member has it now and its trail from the original owner.)

Other sources included family letters, Christmas form letters, family traditions, newspaper articles, town histories for background, maps, diaries, scrapbooks, charts poems, photographs, cemetery lists and autographs, when possible.

Her last admonition was to computer users: "Store your data often and in another place other than your computer. Ask yourself how much you're willing to re-type . . .then you'll back-up yourself often."

Florence Mysiajek, IGS Hospitality Chair, spoke on "Filling the Blanks," in which she detailed the interesting and amusing experiences she encountered as she attempted to complete one family group sheet.

Starting with only a handful of confirmed facts, she set about to put together the story of Michael Baskfield, her great uncle (her grandfather's brother), using her childhood memories and family stories as her only clues, she traveled to Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, to pick up his trail. From a helpful librarian, she found some newspaper stories that later led her to the Minnesota Dept. of Health, where a death certificate confirmed some vital statistics and his occupation as a harness maker.

With that, she searched cemetery records, used materials at the Minnesota Historical Society and the Social Security index at the LDS Library. Then it was on to the Census Records, starting in 1870, finding him listed as five years old.

Her sheet continued to fill up as she obtained a marriage certificate, used the St. Paul city directory, looked through legal directories and other specialty books, then began her personal interviews via the mail, telephone and actual visits. In her search, she found additional information in the Vital Records of the States and old photos that produced unexpected "rewards."

Her "fun" lately is in taking current pictures of the houses in which the people on her sheet once lived. These she shares with all who help her in her searches, giving her even more satisfaction.

Earlier, during the IGS business meeting, Jay Gallagher was introduced as the new Volunteer Chair, and Katherine Smith was presented with a Certificate of Recognition for her past service to the organization.

Be sure and check the list of Library Donations and Purchases. In the donations, our members are contributing a wealth of information. Some are extracting information on the Irish in their areas and submitting it to our collection. Of special note are the donations of Elizabeth Clark of Charlotte, Vermont birth, death and marriage records and those of Laura Heisler and Mildred B. Roe on the various Michigan records. Patricia Hackett Nicola donated all issues of the Hacket Heirlooms which she publishes on the Hacket/Guckian families. Read the detailed information on ALL the library additions.

Several donations by our members are not listed because they will be added to the library of the Minnesota Genealogical Association. One is the Illinois Libraries, Newspapers in the Illinois State Historical Library, donated by Marcy Obermeier. Another is In the World War 1917-1918-1919, Fillmore County, Minnesota. This includes the Irish Ridge area of the county on which we have been gathering information. Donated by member Randy R. Burns, 22343 Sandy Drive NE, Bethel, MN 55005. Mr. Burns has donated other information on Fillmore County and the Irish Ridge. Both these donations will be of use for all research, not just the Irish.

Library Donations

As always, our members are continuing their generosity.

THE BOOK OF CRESTS, Scottish American Clans, by Mike McLaren. Softcover, illus., 1990. Available from Heritage Books, Inc., 1540-# Pointer Ridge Place, Suite 300, Bowie, MD 20716. $20.00 plus $3.00 shipping. Reviewed by Beth Mullinax.

This is a collection of authentic Scottish crests which will be of particular interest to our Scots-Irish members. Mr. McLaren not only gives you an illustration of the crest for 250 clans but the U.S. Societies (if there are any) of each clan, their Blazon (the official description of the crest) and their motto. The introduction gives a brief description of the crests, their use and meaning. The glossary explains heraldic terminology and defines the symbolic meanings pertaining to the devices used in the crests. A welcome addition to our collection.

A GUIDE TO TRACING YOUR KERRY ANCESTORS, by Michael H. O'Connor. Softcover, illus., maps, charts, 1991. Available from Flyleaf Press, 4 Spencer Villas, Glenageary, Co. Dublin, Ireland. $15.00 includes Airmail postage. Also available from Irish Genealogical Society, P.O. Box 16585, St Paul, MN 55116, for $9.95 plus $2.00 postage & handling. Reviewed by Beth Mullinax.

I was told that Mr. O'Connor is an Australian who was trying to trace his County Kerry ancestors and decided to write the book to aid other Kerry researchers. He has done just that. My family is from Kerry so I was particularly interested in the information. You could probably dig through 10 or more other resources and come up with the same information, if you knew where to look! However, here it all is in one book. He lists all resources available for Kerry, where they are and what you can expect to find. I found several resources mentioned that we have in our own library and I didn't think to check. He not only tells the resource but, in some cases, the pages also. Several categories that I found especially unique are Military Records, Education Records, Family Histories and General Kerry References. This book is a must for County Kerry researchers. I've already got my copy marked up and intend on taking it with me to Ireland this fall.

POCKET GUIDE TO IRISH GENEALOGY, by Brian Mitchell. Published by Clearfield Company, 200 E. Eager St, Baltimore, MD 21202, 1991, 63 pp, $9.95 plus $2.50 postage & handling.

This is a small paperback with only 72 pages. It is nevertheless a well organized and well written overview of how to conduct genealogical research. It will provide the reader with all the information and sources needed to plan a search for ancestors in Ireland.

There is a wide variety of sources to tap into when embarking on a search for roots in Ireland. The trick is to locate these sources and know how to use them.

Mitchell brings the researcher along in a series of carefully planned steps that will give the reader the necessary expertise to start off on his or her own research. The addresses of all major sources are listed and the strategy needed to access these sources is explained in detail. Mitchell has listed 20 different depositories of genealogical information and the variety of these sources will amaze those who are not familiar with the subject.

Ancestors are often located, sometimes with ease, in spite of the scores of families with the same surnames. For a quick study in how to go about it the "Pocket Guide to Irish Genealogy" will be of great assistance.

IRISH GENEALOGICAL ABSTRACTS FROM THE LONDONDERRY JOURNAL, 1772-1784, by Donald M. Schlegal, Clearfield Company, 1991 pp. 153. Donated by Clearfield Press. $25.00 Reviewed by Florence Myslajek.

Items of genealogical interest have been abstracted from the Londonderry Journal published in Londonderry (Co. Londonderry) Ireland beginning with its first issue in 1772 and continuing through to the end of 1784. An index makes a quick reference to the news items which include marriages, notices of separation or non-responsibility for debts, death notices, accidental and violent deaths, execution of criminals, administrators' and executors' notices and conversions to the Church of Ireland. A few births are reported. Of special interest are notices of passenger ships and causes of emigration. The abstracts cover news from all of Ireland, but the notices should be of special value to those tracing Ulster scots who migrated to America.

BOOK OF IRISH NAMES: FIRST, FAMILY & PLACE NAMES, by Ronan Coghlan, Ida Grehan and P.W. Joyce. Sterling Publishing Co., Inc., New York, 1989, 119 pp. Donated by Clearfield Press, 1001 N. Calvert St., Baltimore, MD 21202, $8.95 plus P&H (IGS sells this book) Reviewed by Florence Myslajek.

The book is divided into three parts. Book I by Ronan Coughlan is a comprehensive dictionary of names found in Ireland. It lists all Irish first names which originated in the Irish language, plus a number of names invented by Irish writers. Inclusion of the meaning of the names, their history and usage in Ireland makes the book fascinating for the general reader as well as those seeking to identify Irish names.

Book II, Irish Family Names by Ida Grehan, provides a brief account of 80 family names out of a possible 3,500 names. The family coat-of-arms is also illustrated.

Book III, Irish Place Names, by P. W. Joyce, includes an introduction explaining how the process of anglicizing names changed the ancient Irish names but attempted to preserve the pronunciation. He also explains the mysterious appearance of the letter "h" before some Irish names as an indication that the consonant should be aspirated, which changes the pronunciation. Examples of other names which have been contracted and corrupted are also given. The book lists the meaning of many Irish place names, e.g. Ardpatrick, St. Patrick's height. Appendices give a brief chronology of Irish History and a list of Irish root words.

TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS OF CASTLEBRACK (Co Offaly), Compiled by Rosaleen Campbell and Bridie Dunne. Published privately, Tullamore, Co Offaly, Ireland, 1990, 32 pp., Illustrated. Donated by Offaly Historical Society, Tullamore, Co Offaly. Reviewed by Florence Myslajek.

Alphabetical recording of tombstone inscriptions of Castlebrack Graveyard from the 17th through 20th centuries. Includes list of some persons buried there without inscriptions. The booklet, published in conjunction with restoration work done on Castlebrack graveyard, also includes very brief accounts of the history of the area, its castle, church and the old Gaelic family of O'Dunne.

Index to the Prerogative Wills of Ireland, 1536 – 1810

by Sir Arthur Vicars, published by Edward Ponsonby, 1897

Among sources of information open to the genealogist, it is generally admitted that wills occupy the most important place. From a testamentary document, it is often possible to obtain particulars of three or four generations of a family, besides a general insight into the extent of civilization and social position of our ancestors. Included in this volume is the index to prerogative wills, index to alliances and aliases, index to the Hawkins collection of wills, and a table showing the relation between the counties and dioceses of Ireland. This index in and of itself is a valuable genealogical tool due to the method of indexing used by Sir Arthur, who was Ulster King of Arms at the time of his writing in 1897. Example entries:

1698 Hartwell, John, Senr, armourer to the train of artillery
1705 Hartwell, Margaret, Dublin, widow
1712 Donovan, Cornelius, Kilmacabe, Co. Cork, gent.
1746 Donovan, Daniel, Dublin
1758 Donovan, Daniel, Dublin, merchant
1773 Donovan, Edward, Dublin, esq.
1808 Donovan, Frances, Dublin City, widow
1788 Donovan, Harriet, Dublin, spinster
1795 Donovan, Harriet, Enniscorthy, Co. Wexford, spinster.

Many of the entries are cross-referenced to the index to alliances and aliases. The Hawkins collection of wills, 1771--1852, comprises two pages, following the same format.

(We have this book in our library and this information may be very helpful to a researcher. If you are from elsewhere, you might check with your genealogy/historical society for a copy of this book.)

COUNTY DONEGAL - Member, Anne V. Walsh, 442 Whittier Drive, Langhorne, PA 19053, has recently found a copy of the book ARRANMORE LINKS, by Barney Gallagher. She states that the book, while short of dates, gives quite a bit of information on how the various families are linked together through marriage. She has offered to copy information from it for anyone. Just send her the individual(s) you want searched giving her as much information as possible. She doesn't list the cost, but send her your information and a SASE and she can contact you.

SASE - We get letters quite often asking us about a SASE. For those that don't know, it is a Self Addressed Stamped Envelope and please use the large 4 X 9 1/2 inch envelopes.

GREAT LAKES REGION NATIONAL ARCHIVES - The Archives, located at 7358 South Pulaski Road, Chicago, IL 60629, tel: 312-581-7816 is having a session on Irish Genealogy in September, date not yet set. They had one in March but we received the information too late for the last newsletter. Write the Archives for further details.

CLANN AINLE (HANLEY, HANLY, ETC.) - Member, Joseph Hanly, 62 Maple Street, Blue Point, NY 11715, sent application forms for the next Clann Ainle reunion, September 12th and 13th, 1992, in Athlone, County Roscommon. If you wish to have one of these forms, please send us a SASE. The address in Ireland is John J. Hanly, Deerpark, Dundrum, County Tipperary.

PHILADELPHIA IMMIGRATION STATION - The February issue of the Irish America Magazine answers a query from a reader about her Irish ancestors coming through Philadelphia in the early 1900s. They editor stated that the station that served Philadelphia was actually located in Gloucester, New Jersey, from 1912 to 1942.

IRISH INTEREST GROUP - The Eastside Genealogical Society, Bellevue. Washington, sent us a copies of their October 1991 and January 1992 newsletters. I thought it was quite unique and very informative. Besides giving their local information and news, they had copies of articles from various Irish publications. This is a great way to share the genealogical information in these publications since most of us don't subscribe to ALL of them. Good idea, especially for small groups.

IRISH VITAL RECORDS RESEARCH - B. Graham, Researcher, writes that she will research the following vital records for Ireland for $3.00 plus LSASE per surname, per year, per event: Birth or Death 1864-1910 - ALL counties; Marriage 1845 -1910 - ALL counties. Write B. Graham, 12317 S.E. 19th St, Vancouver WA 98684.

COUNTY MAYO CHRONICLES - Andrew J. Morris, P.O. Box 535, Farmington, MI 48332, publishes this periodical which is all about County Mayo. We just received #16, December 1991, and have all the back issues. It is indexed in each issue and he did an index of the first 10 issues. You might want to write him for information on this publication, if you are researching in Mayo, this is a valuable aid.

A NEW GENEALOGICAL ATLAS OF IRELAND, by Brian Mitchell - This valuable research book was out of print for several months. It has been reprinted and we have an adequate supply to take care of all orders. The price is still $18.95 plus $2.00 S&H

NEW YORK, CALVARY CEMETERY IN QUEENS - Member Theresa Heller writes the this old cemetery memtioned in prior SEPTS has buried in it most of the Irish Catholic immigrants who settled in and around New York City. They are buried in the Old Section of Calvary. What a contribution to Irish genealogy if someone would inscribe this cemetery!

IRISH ROOTS - A magazine on Irish genealogy has just been started by Belgrave Publications, Belgrave Avenue, Cork, Ireland. Cost for one year (4 issues) is $13. CAN $15, IR 8, UK Stg 7.50. The publicity on the magazine sounds interesting but we'll know nothing about it until the first issue is received. We'll keep you informed.

MINNESOTA IRISH HERITAGE FAIR, Minneapolis/St Paul, Minnesota, will take place on October 24 & 25, 1992. Mark it on your calendar.

MILWAUKEE (WISCONSIN) IRISH FEST, takes place on August 14-16, 1992, in Milwaukee. This is the largest Irish Fest in the US and well worth a trip for our midwest members.

IRISH WORLD - 26 Market Square, Dungannon, County Tyrone, Northern Ireland BT70 1AB, was listed under County Tyrone in the articles we run on the Irish Heritage Centres. They have asked us to let you know that they have a full All Ireland service having researchers based in Belfast and Dublin. They also have a new book published titled YOU DON'T SAY, A Dictionary of Ulster Dialect, which costs STG 6 which includes package and posting. (STG is pounds in English Sterling) They included a brochure on their services.

O'DONNELL ASSOCIATION IN IRELAND - A clan gathering June 12-14, 1992, Donegal Town. For information contact Nora O'Donnell McConville (708) 966-8284, 8457 N. Olcott Ave, Niles, IL 60648.

MERRIGAN/MERIGAN/MERGAN/MERGIN/MURRICANE/MURIGAN - If your Irish surname is any of the above, you may wish to join the Clan Merrigan Society, Dun Laoghaire Genealogical Society, 14 Rochestown Park, Dun Laoghaire, County Dublin, Ireland. Michael Merrigan is organizing this society.

COUNTY WATERFORD - We have just received the County Waterford Estate Records Index. This is part of our on going research project to research the estate papers in the National Library in Ireland. The IGS and the National Library are each paying one half of the cost of this research, our half of Co. Waterford was $632. This is not an index of people but of estate records available in the National Library, the kind of records, the townlands they cover and the library call numbers. The April 1991 THE SEPTS carried an article on this project. Other counties completed are Cork, Galway, Leitrim, Mayo, Roscommon, Sligo and the Lismore papers. County Waterford will be available for sale shortly. For further information on this project, write with a SASE and give us the county you are interested in. Co Fermanagh is being researched now.

COUNTY FERMANAGH DEEDS 1708-1810, PART I, BARONY OF CLANKELLY 1708-1738 - Brian McDonald who did the research for us on County Waterford, also did this project. He is actually looking for funding to complete the project. He has indexed by surname and by area (townland, county, etc.). These deeds contain memorials on land transactions, wills, marriage settlements, etc.. He has also encluded copies of these deeds. What a valuable resource.

Dear Septs

When she sent in her renewal, Anne Marie Watson of Tucson, AZ says, "I have found my membership in your group very rewarding. We belong to the Prodigy Interactive Service and I am always singing your praises on their Genealogical Bulletin Board."
Ed Note: We long to hear that song

Steve Dennehy, 620 So. Idaho, Butte, MT 59701 says that he is willing to help anyone with an Irish research problem if they send all the known information (preferably on a family group chart), and list all avenues already used, with a SASE.
Ed Note: An SASE is a small courtesy when you are asking for assistance anywhere

Surname: Brothers in Tipperary
"I greatly appreciate the help from the Irish Genealogical Society. I have not located the townland/parish of my great grandfather, William Brothers in County Tipperary. I received a wonderful reply from Thomas Brothers of Co. Wexford but no real help.

We did travel through Ireland for two wonderful sunny weeks in September and did some inquiring in Cahir, Co. Tipperary.

The highlight for me was to walk the fields of my grandmother Byrne in Bawnboy, Co. Cavan and see the remains of their house along with a visit with a cousin. I'm the first one of our very large family to do so and it was a wonderful, unforgetable experience.

I understand that work is now being done on the records of Tipperary. Thanks, I enjoy reading THE SEPTS."

Ed note: you can find the address of the Heritage Centers in our recently published book covering them all

A letter from Pat Dooley of New Hope, MN says:
"I enjoy receiving THE SEPTS and find it full of useful information." However, she goes on to correct a much-used error. Instead of using "The Church of the Latter Day Saints (Mormon)" as the title of the Family History Libraries, she says we should use The Church of Jesus Christ – L.D.S. (Mormon), as this is the correct name.
(Ed Note: thank you Pat – I stand corrected.)

Florence Dweck of No. Miami Beach, Fl. says: "January, 1992 issue of THE SEPTS – great!" She also sends us the correct address of Calvary Cemetery in Queens, NY.

Success Story

Around every corner awaits a new surprise!

by Jim Meece, West Paterson, NJ

I had never known any of my grandfathers. My mother's mother would tell stories of an Irish coachman who fell in love with Lady Hamill, who was a Princess to the Irish Throne. They married and moved to America to escape the wrath of the royal family. My father's mother knew almost nothing of her husband's family so she wasn't able to help satisfy my curiosity. When she died in 1980, I found very few family documents and nothing to really give me any answers on my ancestry.

About a year ago, my brother received a letter from a Meece in Florida who was researching her past. This was exactly the fuel that I needed to start my research. The time was right. I wrote to anyone that I could think of who might have any information on my family, not limited to relatives and genealogical societies.

My correspondent in Florida gave me an address of a Meece in Massachusetts who claimed he was from North Carolina. I wrote immediately, sending him a copy of my family group chart which displayed my line up to my great-grandfather. Since I did not know his date of birth or death, I left that portion blank.

A letter arrived a few weeks later with a picture of my great-grandfather's grave stone, complete with birth and death dates. It seems that on a trip to North Carolina, a year before, he had coincidentally taken that picture. My next step was to write to the cemetery caretakers.

Months went by without a word, when one day I received a letter from a caretaker. He explained that he was one of many caretakers, but the reason he was given my letter was because his wife's grandmother was a Meece. We corresponded for a few months which resulted in my collecting pictures of my great grandfather and grandmother and a list of many relatives.

I had heard rumors of a town called Meece, Kentucky, outside of Somerset, Kentucky in Pulaski County. The Pulaski County Historical Society was very helpful in my research. I found a large number of researchers who were gathering their family history relating to the Meeces, concentrating only on their immediate families. What I had accomplished (in one year's time) was to gather together all the family records from the 50 or so researchers that I could contact and coupled with the LDS (Mormon) Libraries and the Social Security Death Index, I amassed a huge conglomeration of Meece names.

I now had a total of 1,648 Meece names beginning in 1716 to the present. That is a total of 73 Meece family lines spanning over 9 generations. Of all those names, I have been able to connect over 1,100 relatives to each other.

I have published my first edition of the Meece family this past August, and I am now preparing for my second edition. Genealogy does hit many dead ends, but the "good leads" can be very rewarding.

(Editors note: my theory proven — if you write only one letter a week, it could mean 52 answers a year.)

My Gilvary's are really from Donegal!

by Jane OLaughlin

I began my genealogical activity by collecting and searching for information on living relatives. It didn't taken long, given large Irish Catholic families, to massively expand the list of relatives. Not only did I discover wonderful people but I learned the Wisconsin branch had done some genealogical research. The vague family story about three GILVARY sisters was replaced by a family of seven, all of whom emigrated from Sligo to Wisconsin, Minnesota or Michigan.

One of my newly discovered cousins told me the GILVARY's were in the IGI. Great! What's that?

The Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints (LDS) produces the International Genealogical Index (IGI). It is an index to primary records for births, christenings and marriages of deceased individuals from around the world. The information is extracted from the original record books by LDS volunteers and added to this enormous database. The current version includes over 147,000,000 individuals. With each event is listed the source for the information. It is organized geographically so it is possible to search for your names in the U.S and Canada, Australia, Ireland, Scotland or England, etc.

The IGI is produced on microfiche and the new computerized compact disc (CD). Because the microfiche are updated more frequently than the CD's there may be more information on the microfiche IGI than on the CD IGI. The versions are clearly marked. Copies of the IGI are available at the Family History Center branches around the U.S.

I found the GILVARY's on the microfiche 1988 version. The listing included the Co. Sligo, Calry, Roman Catholic, marriage record for Dionysius (Denis) GILVARY and Catherina FEENY. I found Co. Sligo, Drumcliff & Magherow, Roman Catholic, baptisms of Anna, Brigida, Margarita, Maria and Patritius and the Carney district civil birth record for Margaret. The parents were listed on the birth and christening records though not on the marriage records. This was only five children but there was a lot of information so I was happy.

When the CD system was introduced this year, I decided to repeat the search to see if more information was available. Because the computer search was more inclusive than my manual search of the microfiche, I found Catherina GILVANY in addition to the others I had found previously. In the process of extraction, the surname was interpreted as GILVANY rather than GILVARY. I hadn't checked that spelling variation but fortunately the computer did. I also found a John GILVANY from Killala, Co Mayo. Might he be a GILVARY as well?

Though I was happy to find this additional information, there were a few inconsistencies and I had a few other questions. Margaret's civil birth was indexed as 5 April 1865 and her baptism as 3 April 1865. Why was Margaret's the only civil birth listed of the six children I had found? Where was the seventh child, Isabella? I decided to request the original records on microfilm from Salt Lake City.

The reference numbers (batch and source call number) of the records are included for each event listed. The source call number (film number) for my Denis & Catherine marriage was 989736. Checking the library catalog for that number I found a microfilm for the Parochial registers, 1858_ 1880, Parish Church of Sligo, Calry, Carraroe, Coolera, Strandhill and Ross's Point. It was in the civil parishes of Killaspugbrone, Kilmacowen, St. John's and Calry. It contains Baptisms from 1858-1864, 1864-1870, and Marriages from October 7, 1858 - December 21, 1880.

Looking up the source call number for my baptisms (989735), I found there was a microfilm of the Parochial registers, 1841_ 1880, Parish Church of Drumcliff, also called Drumcliff and Magherow. The microfilm contains Baptisms from 1841-1864, 1865-1880, and Marriages from 1865-1880.

Four years after finding my GILVARY's in the IGI, I finally ordered these two films.

All seven GILVARY children were in the Drumcliff baptismal register (in Latin), including Isabella who didn't appear in the IGI. The early years (1858-1863) included the child's name, date of baptism, parents names, godparents names and the Priest. The records for 1864-1880 included child's name, date of birth, parents' names, parent's residence, date of baptism, Priest, and godparent's names. Isabella's absence from the IGI may have something to do with being baptized Feb 29, 1880, a leap year day.

Having located the children, I switched to the marriage records of Calry. The marriage records (in Latin) included groom's name and residence, bride's name and residence, their parents' names and residences, date of marriage, Priest, witnesses names and residences as well as special dispensations and miscellaneous comments. The special dispensation column was particularly interesting because it listed the degree of consanguinity of the bride and groom when they requested special permission to marry. The miscellaneous column stated if either bride (sponsa, mulier) or groom (sponsus, vir) had a previous marriage (autier matr. conj.).

Catherina FEENY was from Dunally as were her parents, Martini FEENY and Brigida MEEHAN. My Denis' residence was Bundoran. His parents were Patricii GILVARY and Maria MELLY, Bundoran. The witnesses were Guliemo DEVANS and Maria FORAN from Ahamlish. Ahamlish is the northern most civil parish of Co. Sligo, closest to Co. Donegal. Bundoran is in Co. Donegal. An entirely new pathway has just opened up for me.

Why didn't I look up this marriage earlier? Why didn't I stop to visit the GILVARY's living in Bundoran when I was in Ireland? Is there a statute of limitations on swift kicks?

I wouldn't even begin to list all Irish records already extracted and added to the IGI. The IGI includes fully extracted civil birth records of Ireland for 1864 through 1868 which explains why I found only Margaret's civil birth record. The time periods vary for the church records extracted. And lest you fear it includes only post-famine records, one record from my family searches was an 1818 marriage of Catherine GEOGHEGAN in Kilbeggan, Co Westmeath.

Local Studies in Ireland (Part I)

by Nora M. Hickey of Cork Family History:

This is a list of all the small historical and genealogical societies throughout Ireland. Many of them are study groups and do not do research, but maybe you can join them and receive a newsletter, and/or some special information. You can certainly write and inquire if they will search for you in a specific area and if you send them (4) International Reply Coupons and a self-addressed envelope, you may get an answer.

We have an extensive list and in each newsletter we will publish a few of these addresses. If you are searching a particular area and wish the information, please send a SASE to our office and we can forward the addresses to you. In the meantime, keep looking in your SEPTS for further groups.

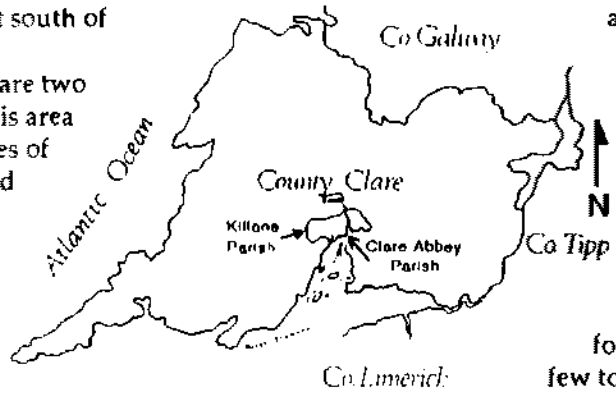
A History of Clare Abbey and Killone

Civil parishes in County Clare 1692 - 1698

reviewed by Virginia Mahoney

The town of Clarecastle in the Civil parish of Clareabbey lies just south of Ennis, County Clare.

Clare Abbey and Killone are two civil parishes in this area. This area included the ancient churches of Kilglassy, Killone, Killerk and Killow. There are five main burial places in the parish; namely Clare Hill, Killone, Clareabby, Killow and Ballyea Chapel grounds. The earliest in Clare Abbey commemorates Charles Hallinan (1692) and Darby McMahon (1698).



We were fortunate to be able to purchase this fine history, written by Joseph Power of Ennis. Besides burial information you will find Tithe records for the 1826-29 years. We were able to purchase six copies of the history, which are for sale through our Society. The following tithe records, for a few townlands, will give you an idea of what you can find.

Long Island Chapter Reports

Recently the Board of Directors of the newly formed Long Island Chapter of the Irish Genealogical Society travelled to the New York City office of Ireland's Consul General, Daithí O'Ceallaigh to receive their CHARTER. He presented the charter to the board members on behalf of Dan Moriarty, the national President of the Society. In making the presentation, Mr. O'Ceallaigh thanked the board "most sincerely on my own behalf and on behalf of the Irish Government for what you are doing in building up interest in Ireland, in America."

Céad Míle Fáilte — "a hundred thousand welcomes"

From The President – Beth Mullinax

Your new Board has been selected and is already busy getting ready for a new year. The new officers have all been actively involved in IGS for years, some just changing offices. We still do not have a 1st Vice-President, but hope to soon. Ginny Delaney, our former Secretary, is the new 2nd Vice President, Dan Moriarty our past President is now our Treasurer and Eileen Casey is the new Secretary. Eileen has been involved in many jobs with IGS, the latest as Chair of the committee that revised the Society's constitution and by-laws. Eileen continues to keep a record of our library collection on her computer.

Beth Mullinax

We have had a great past two years under Dan's leadership and we plan on continuing in the same way. Irish Genealogy has "exploded" all over the US and Ireland. IGS now has approximately 1200 members all over the US, Canada, Ireland, England and one new member in Holland! As the majority of our membership has shifted out of Minnesota and even out of the Mid-west, we have made adjustments to our services and will continue with this. Our most valuable services appear to be our newsletter, THE SEPTS, and the members' Surname Interest Lists. We have a valuable collection of research materials at the library of the Minnesota Genealogical Society in St. Paul, however, most of you are unable to take advantage of this.

As many of you already know, we will go through most sources in our collection and check for your surname(s). We plan on compiling a list by county in Ireland of what is available. If you are at a dead end in your research, write and let us know your problem and we will try and give you some answers and suggestions.

I cannot thank all of you members enough for the information that you are sharing with us. Check the Library Donations & Gleanings columns for a small sampling of this. Members have submitted information on books available, organizations, collections, as well as their offer to assist their fellow members in local research.

Our surname list is growing by leaps and bounds – the new edition, published in June and advertised in this issue, is quite impressive.

In this issue is an article about the Jessenland Settlement in Sibley County, Minnesota. This article is an accumulation of information from many sources. Similar research in your area may be helpful to others, so if you have any such research, please share it.

This edition contains another portion of the list of small historical and genealogical societies throughout Ireland. This was provided by Nora Hickey of Cork Family History and we believe this list is previously unpublished. It could be your fortune to find one of these small societies that could help you. Enjoy!

Ida

From the Editor

The newly elected Board of Directors are starting out their elected tenure and, of course, will need your help for a successful year. You will see many familiar names among the Board and Committees and we are always looking for new people to become involved. One of the best ways is to serve on a committee or even on the Board. There are several areas where we could use help and all of us started out "green." We would love to have someone become a "historian" of the Society. It would be so nice to have a history of the Society, not only in previous years, but kept up from year to year.

Ida Troye

This is a great summer for genealogy and Irish celebrations. Beth and I went to the Gene-A-Rama in LaCrosse, Wisconsin and met a great number of terrific people searching and displaying. It just gets your juices going to attend one of these meetings, including our quarterly meeting. It makes you want to start digging again and encourages you. With the Irish Festival in Milwaukee and the Fair in Saint Paul yet to come, you have an opportunity to fertilize your green blood – just helps it to grow and grow. I'll see you in Milwaukee!

INDICES TO IRELAND PROPERTY VALUATIONS: TITHE APPLOTMENT BOOKS AND GRIFFITH'S VALUATION

by Jane O'Laughlin

I. HOUSEHOLDER'S INDEX - MICROFILM

This index is known as the Index of Surnames of Householders in Griffith's Primary Valuation and the Tithe Applotment Books (HOUSEHOLDER'S INDEX). It is an alphabetical index of surnames by parish, county and barony. The Tithe Applotment Books include Surname incidence for the period 1823-1838. The Griffith's Valuations include Surname frequency for the period from 1848-1864. The index was compiled and is held by the National Library of Ireland. The Church of Jesus Christ — L.D.S. (Mormon) microfilm numbers for this index are as follows:

LDS Film #	Counties
0919,001	Antrim, Armagh, Carlow, Cavan
0919,002	Clare, Cork, Derry
0919,003	Donegal, Down, Dublin

II. Andrew J. Morris, P.O. Box 535, Farmington, Michigan, 48332. (Old address: P.O. Box 8825, Fort Collins, CO, 80525.) [MORRIS INDEX - MICROFICHE]

The microfiche available from Andrew Morris include a full name (surname and given name) index and the Griffiths Valuations. The full name index is two columns of easy to read typeface with better resolution than the HOUSEHOLDER'S INDEX. Mr. Morris organized the full names by Poor Law Union (U) & Civil Parish (Cp) rather than by Barony and Civil Parish as was done in the Householder's Index. He included a listing of the parish abbreviation codes he used for the indexing.

There is no tithe applotment information on this index. He includes surname frequencies and first name frequencies by sex

EXAMPLE: Co. Mayo.

Kilivary, James blsk BLN 34
Kilivary, Michael - blsk BLN 34

"blsk" is the code for Ballysakeery Cp. "BLN" is the code for Ballina U. "34" is the page number on the actual Valuation of Tenements.

IGS HOLDINGS

Co. Mayo. Full Name Index, Fiche 1 - 5.
Valuation, 16 Fiche by Poor Law Union.
(Belmullet, Ballina, Ballinrobe, Clifden, Claremorris, Castlebar, Castlerea, Killala, Newport, Oughterard, Swineford, Westport).

Co. Wicklow. Full Name Index, Fiche 1 & 2.
Valuation, 6 Fiche by Poor Law Union.
(Enniscorthy, Gorey, New Ross, Shillelagh, Wexford)

III. Irish Microforms, Ltd., 124 Ranelagh, Dublin, 6, Ireland. [IML INDEX - MICROFICHE]

European Microforms (formerly Irish Microforms) have provided the HOUSEHOLDER'S INDEX on Fiche so this index does include tithe applotment information. It was produced from the same books as the microfilm Householder's Index so the typeface will be familiar to anyone who has worked with the microfilm.

IGS HOLDINGS

Co. Clare. Householder's Index, Fiche 1 & 2.
Valuation, Fiche 1 - 11.

Co. Kerry. Householder's Index, Fiche 1 & 2.
Valuation, Fiche 1 - 14.

Co. Leitrim. Householder's Index, Fiche 1.
Valuation, Fiche 1 - 7.

IV. All-Ireland Heritage, Inc. (A-IH), P.O. Box 7, Dunn Loring, VA, 22027. [HERITAGE INDEX - MICROFICHE]

The All-Ireland Heritage Index to Sir Richard Griffith's Valuation of Ireland gives us different information for urban and rural locations (see EXAMPLE). There is more specific information in the form of a full name index and the townland name. We lose the Barony-Union location and the Tithe Applotment information available on the HOUSEHOLDER'S INDEX. It is impossible to exactly correlate full names from the Tithe Applotment Books and the Griffiths Valuation so that information will be lost whenever a full name index is done.

Nora Hickey of Dublin Ireland is to appear at our November Quarterly Meeting —watch for an announcement.

Dan's plea for suggestions to improve our services brought a few responses, all very good, but we need more. Remember, this is your organization. If you have suggestions to help us improve, or are especially pleased with something we are already doing, please let us know. We welcome all suggestions and yes, even criticism. We are all volunteers and try to do our best but there is always room for improvement.

Thank you all for your support and the new Board, including all of our faithful volunteers, will continue to offer our best.

QUARTERLY MEETING. Catherine Spottke spoke at our June 6th quarterly meeting. Her subject was Canadian research, with emphasis on the Province of Ontario. The talk was most informative. Many of our Irish and Scots-Irish ancestors came through Canada, living, marrying and having children there before the migrated to the US. Catherine detailed the Canadian census records, parish records, land records and much more. Thank you, Catherine, for sharing your expertise and experiences with us.

MINNESOTA IRISH HERITAGE FAIR, Minneapolis/St Paul, Minnesota, will take place on October 24 & 25, 1992. Mark it on your calendar as it promises to be the best ever!

NEBRASKA - The Nebraskans of Irish Scotch-Irish Ancestry, Omaha Chapter, (NISIA) are having their Second Annual Irish Genealogy Seminar featuring Carol Warren on the 25th and 26th of September, 1992. For information on this write: Nancy Archdekin, Vice-President, 13903 Gertrude Circle, Omaha, NE 68138-6225.

A GUIDE TO TRACING YOUR KERRY ANCESTORY, by Michael O'Connor was listed in the last THE SEPTS as costing $9.95 plus $2 shipping. This was a misunderstanding, and the book is $12.95 plus the $2 shipping. We now have a good supply of the book. We had run out and the new shipment was delayed because of the postal strike in Ireland. Sorry about this.

WISCONSIN - The Irish Genealogical Society of Wisconsin has just been organized (no connection with the Irish Genealogical Society). Their first newsletter was great and we wish them well. Their aims are to collect information on the Irish of Wisconsin and assist their members in the search for their Irish in Wisconsin. We wish them luck. For further information write them at 2476 Lefeber Ave, Wauwatosa, WI 53213.

KANSAS - Member Carol (Songs) Hansing, Belvue, Kansas, sent a list of Irish burials in the Pottawatomie County, Kansas area. She states that the zoning department of that county put together a list of persons buried in the different cemeteries of Pottawatomie County. She has the book and extracted the obvious Irish surnames. There are more names in the book. This area of Kansas was crossed by the Oregon Trail so she is sure that some of these people do not have family members there, but died on the trail. However, there were quite a number of Irish settlers in the area also. For a SASE she will be glad to extract any information from this book for you. We will try and publish the list at a later date as space permits. Most burials on the list show DOB, DOD and County in Ireland. What a nice addition to our collection of US cemeteries with Irish burials.

IRISH HOMECOMING FESTIVAL, 10TH - 15TH SEPTEMBER 1992.
Ireland is having this countrywide celebration with the emphasis on ancestor-tracing matters. The Festival is sponsored jointly by the Irish Tourist Board and the Northern Irish Tourist Board. There are events scheduled beginning the end of August through the end of September. Many clan rallies are scheduled. The calendar of events is 8 pages long so you might want to call or write your nearest Irish Tourist Board or NI Tourist Board for information. If someone is interested in just the clan rallies, we can mail these 2 pages for a SASE.

COUNTY DONEGAL - We mentioned in the "HERE" colume last issue about the book ARRANMORE LINKS, by Barney Gallagher. Another member, Anne Marie Watson, writes that she was able to purchase a copy of this book from Aidan Gallagher, son of the author. His address: Aidan Gallagher, 24 College Park, Terenure, Dublin 6W, Ireland. The cost was $12 which included postage. She also suggests that the book is most interesting to people researching the following surnames: Anderson, Boyle/O'Boyle, Bonners, Byrne/O'Byrne, Colls, Conaghans, Conighleys, Connolly, Daly/O'Daly, Early, Gallagher/O'Gallagher, Gillespie, Green, Henry, Howard, Kelly, McCafferty, McCauley, McGinley, McGowan, O'Donnell, O'Hara, Rodger, Sharkey, Sweeney and Ward. We'll try and get a copy of this book for our library.

COUNTY FERMANAGH ESTATE RECORDS - We have permission to sell our members a copy of these. The cost is $10, which includes postage. These are NOT AN INDEX but a guide to the documents available in the National Library of Ireland. They are copyrighted and IGS has exclusive permission to distribute in the US at this time. If you are interested in information on the estate records held by IGS and the current counties available, please send a SASE. NOTE: This Co Fermanagh list is only a few pages as most of the estate records that are not in private collections are in the Belfast Public Records Office.

Book Reviews

EMIGRANTS AIDED IN CHAUTAUQUA COUNTY, NEW YORK, 1853 – 1876 by Norwood and Lois Barris, 755 Park Avenue, Dunkirk, New York. Published by Chautauqua County Genealogical Society. $35.00. Reviewed by Virginia Mahoney.

Part 1. October 1855 – September, 1863
This is an excellent computerized index of individuals and groups of people helped by the Chautauqua County relief for the years 1853 through 1876. The information taken included, besides the name, the age, name of vessel, date of arrival plus date of help received. In many instances another name may also be included in the notes.

Part 2. Record keeping changes to include the nativity of the emigrant. 1863 – 1876. Emigrants from fifteen different countries.

Part 3. Researchers finding ancestors, included in these lists, will do well to check the vessels listed alphabetically. Seldom do we have the opportunity to find names listed together which could be a help for identifying our ancestor and their traveling companions.

Emigrants listed here arrived at the landing depot called Castle Garden, New York. An island off the southern tip of Manhattan. The introduction has an excellent account of emigration at that time and should be read in full. Emigrants proceeded from this area along a route across the southern part of New York west, finally turning north up towards the town of Dunkirk on the shore of Lake Erie.

THE JOURNAL OF THE AMERICAN-IRISH HISTORICAL SOCIETY, VOLUME 1 – 1898, VOLUME 2 – 1899, Edited by Thomas Hamilton Murray et al. Published by Heritage Books, Inc., 1540 Pointer Ridge Place, Bowie, Maryland 20716. $12.50, $15.50 respectively.

The American-Irish Historical Society was established in Boston, Massachusetts in 1897 to gather information and promote historical research into the tole the Irish have played in American History. The first volume of this work gives us an insight of the Society's beginnings with a list of members, addresses and information of individual members' biographys plus an occasional obituary, picture and account of papers read at their meetings.

Volume Two is a genealogical find for researchers interested in the early years of this country. Some highlights of the contents include Irish Emigration during the 17th and 18th centuries; the "Scotch-Irish" and "Anglo-Saxon" fallacies and early information on Irish pioneers of Texas, Kentucky, Peterborough, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Virginia.

Although the books are indexed to some extent and together provide us with almost 400 pages of events, names and dates genealogists will have to scan them carefully to extract information. This is the best series of information on the early settlement of this country that you will find before the "Famine Irish."

THE JOURNAL OF THE AMERICAN-IRISH HISTORICAL SOCIETY, VOLUME 3 – 1900, VOLUME 4 – 1904, Edited by Thomas Hamilton Murray. Published by Heritage Books, Inc., 1540 Pointer Ridge Place, Bowie, Maryland 20716. $19.00, $17.00 respectively.
Genealogists familiar with the first two publications of this society will again find, besides the business and membership list of this group, two volumes filled with historical accounts and names of the participants.

The papers presented by speakers at meetings and accounts of events provide us with an insight into life during the beginnings of the emigrant's experiences in the "New World."

Some highlights cover Irish pioneers in Kentucky, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, New Hampshire, etc. These are not books to be read quickly as every page needs close inspection for names and dates but you will not duplicate information on early Irish to this extent easily. Although much of the publication is indexed the bulk of it needs careful perusing.

Genealogical Tour of Ireland

Beth Mullinax is planning a genealogical tour to IRELAND for the last two weeks in MAY, 1993. For more information, please send SASE to Beth in care of the Library.

Dear Septs

John McGowan of Bloomington, MN writes: "The value of THE SEPTS to family research was recently confirmed by a phone call from Mamsen Brown, of Descanso, California. Mamsen said she is researching the McGowan and Cavanogh families who settled in Plymouth, MN in the 1840's. As we compared notes, we realized that her great-grandfather and my grandfather were brothers, who were born in Manor Hamilton, County Leitrim, Ireland. My cousin Mamsen, whom I never knew existed, and I are now exchanging family history as we discover it!"

Terence T. Quirke, Jr., 2310 Juniper Court, Golden, Colorado 80401-9107 states that he will serch the following lists of Quirk(e) or Morrissey names from the parish of Carrick-on-Suir.

QUIRK(E) Baptisms from 1784 -- 1915 (76 total)
QUIRK(E) Marriages (grooms) from 1790 -- 1957 (12 total)
MORRISSEY Baptisms from 1780 -- 1914 (over 200)
MORRISSEY Marriages (grooms) from 1790 -- 1955 (total 55)

"Sure enjoy your newletters. I always learn something. I wish I lived closer so I could attend the meetings and workshops. Keep up the good work." This from Kathryn Dyer of Chandler, Arizona.

Success Story

From Kathy Deiss, Rt. #3, Box 25, Ellsworth, WI 54011, we received this inspiring story:

This is being written in the hope that it will give encouragement to those who feel that they are up against that infamous brick wall in their search for those elusive Irish ancestors.

My sister and I had searched for years for any record of the parents and the homes in Ireland of our great-grandparents, Thomas MURPHY and Dorothy DEVERAUX, who had met and married in the 1850's somewhere in New York State, and then moved west to Pierce County, Wisconsin. We had hunted for naturalizations, but the index at our local courthouse didn't include Thomas or his brother-in-law, Richard DEVEREAUX. Then, while scanning an 1870 Pierce County Herald, I found a list of men who had been naturalized, including Richard DEVEREAUX! Armed with the date, we went back to the courthouse and found the unindexed record, but the only information given was that he had made his declaration of intent on September 13, 1854, in Genesse County, New York. From that county we received a copy of his declaration, as well as those of brothers-in-law Thomas MURPHY and Patrick STAFFORD, all on the same page of the records, and again giving no information other than that they were living in Caledonia Twp. of neighboring Livingston County.

The next step was to look for churches in the hope of finding a marriage record for Thomas and Dorothy. Letters to the dioceses of Rochester and Buffalo brought lists of parishes in that area that had been in existence in the 1850's, and we wrote to every one of them. Each wrote back, stating that they didn't have a record of the marriage and one wrote that all of their early records had been burned – Please, Lord, don't let them have been married there! Back at the map, we noted that Caledonia Twp. wasn't far from Monroe County, so another letter to the diocese brought another list of parishes. St. Mary's in Scottsville was the nearest, so we tried it first and struck gold – a wonderful church secretary whose father had been a genealogist, and who photocopied for us the writing of blessedly through Fr. McGlew, and I still feel some of that first thrill every time I look at his words: "Feb. 20, 1854. Married in the R.C. Church of Scottsville, Thomas MURPHY, son of James MURPHY and Mary CARTY, Parish of Davidstown, Co. Wexford, to Dora DEVEREAUX, daughter of Thomas DEVEREAUX and Margrett GAHAN, Parish of Monageer, Co. Wexford. Witnesses present, Patrick STAFFORD and Margrett DEVEREAUX." We now know that these parishes are on opposite sides of Enniscorthy and look forward to seeing them for ourselves in June of 1992.

So, if you feel that you've exhausted every possibility and there can't be a record anywhere in the U.S. that will answer your questions, maybe approaching your problem from another angle will give you the kind of great good luck that we had.

St. Thomas Church, Jessenland, Sibley County, Minnesota

by Ida Troye

The church, cemetery and parsonage began in 1855. The church has been honored by being included on the National Register of Historic Places this past year.

The Minnesota River Valley constituted the eastern border of Sibley County and was accessible from the Minnesota River by steamboat. The earliest recorded white immigrants entered Sibley County in 1852; they were two French-Canadians and an Irish immigrant, Thomas Doheny.

At the Church of St. Thomas, Jessenland, there is a monument erected to honor the nucleus of Minnesota's first Irish settlement. It states: "In 1852 Thomas, Walter and Dennis Doheny staked claims a short distance from this spot. This marked the beginning of Minnesota's first permanent Irish settlement. Within a few years the Dohenys were joined by scores of other families."

The following research shows the first two generations, their birthplace if possible, and the number of children of each partnership. The current list of one of the couples (Thomas & Honora) is up to 1099 persons as researched by Ida Troye, who is not giving up yet.

This comprehensive list of "majority Irish" churches in Minnesota may be very helpful to anyone searching their Midwest roots. This list is dated 1987 but includes the very early churches in the state. If these churches have been closed, the records still exist - they would have been moved to the Diocese files.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

OR: People Who Live in Glasshouses Should Not Throw Stones

by Nora Hickey, speaker at the November Quarterly Meeting

Virginia Mahoney's reference to our conversation re surnames has provided the theme for this article about ancestral research in Irish parish and other records. Five years of parish indexing in the Bandon Heritage Centre in County Cork (and please note that the centre closed December 1989 - and that letters addressed personally to me at that address are not passed on) has indicated that much of the failure to find that elusive progenitor may lie in not recognizing the form of the surname. The following points to consider are based upon my genealogical and research experience in County Cork, but I firmly believe that similiar developments in surnames happened throughout the country. Much research remains to be done into this question of surnames, and it must be approached on a local and regional, and not national, basis.

One obvious reason for these variations records are the alternative spellings. For example, there were twenty-nine ways of spelling Maloney/Moloney in the Church of Ireland registers in Bandon alone. Remember that surnames were written by the minister, according to his version of the name, and probably phonetically. And even if one could read what is written in the register - and today the baptismal registers is not written usually within sight of parents and godparents - one would not dare contradict the priest or minister. Therefore Maloneys should always look for Moloney, Mullowney and so forth. The parish registers will show the surname and all other records, Tithe Applotment Books, Griffith's Valuations, etc. as perceived by the writer. Very few indexes make allowances for the different spellings/versions of the same surname, even separating e.g. Flynn from O Flynn. Surnames written in the Griffith's Valuation depended on the perception of the surveyor. For example, in the Bantry area Keohane was spelt Keohane; in Barryroe the local engineer wrote it as Keoghane - a form never found in the many variations in the parish registers. The form "Cohane" is also represented in the GV.

All indexes, e.g. National Library GV list, the legal BMD indexes show surnames as spelled and therefore one will have to search in several parts of all indexes. Surnames beginning with such letters as C and K, e.g. Carney/Kearney, Cavanagh/Kavanagh or H and A, e.g. Ahearn/Hearn, Anglin/Hanglin or E and H, e.g. Enright/Henright, and H and Wh, Whooley/Hooley, Houlahan/Whoulahan are obvious examples. Houlahan is anglicized as Holland - and I have seen the different versions refer to the same family in both church and legal records. The Anglo-Norman names of "de" or "d" should also be treated with caution. Courcy/Coursey is interchangeable with de Courcy, d'Arcy has became Darcy, and D'Amery has developed into Amery or Dammery. In other words, there are always two areas in indexes to search for these surnames.

Interpretation of difficult, and often carelessly written handwriting often leads to surname confusion. Examples of this include: Buckley/Brickley, Long/Song, Lidwell/Sidwell, Sugrue/Lugrue and Feagan/Teagan. The capital letter "C", when written in nineteenth century hand is often read as "E", so Carbery is misread as Earbery. Therefore if you do not find what you are seeking under the normal spelling, think where else it might turn up. One major area of confusion is in deciding whether a name is Regan or Ryan. Among the Bandon RC parish entries were families that were definitely REGAN; there were also families that were definitely RYAN, but the majority of families were mixed- and how can one decide, in the absence of other information, whether they should be indexed

Hope your summer was a good one, here in Minnesota we are still waiting its arrival! I'll make this short as our space is limited with all the great articles coming in from all our members and friends. I wish to pass on a few tidbits to keep everyone informed of what IGS is doing.

Beth Mullinax

IGS has been asked to be a sponsor of the next Irish Genealogical Congress in Ireland. What an honor! The first congress was held in September 1991 in Dublin City and three of the board members at that time attended, along with at least 10 other members from all over the US and at least one from England. The Irish government was so pleased with the success of this first congress that they have decided to have one every three years. Watch for information on this and a possible tour to coincide with the congress.

The genealogy tour planned for May 1993 has not been finalized. The proposed itinerary went to the Irish tour company and we are waiting for their report, giving us specifics and costs. We have had an excellent response to the initial letters that went out to those interested and will have everything finalized before the next newsletter.

A very, very few of our members get upset with us if we don't answer their correspondence within a week. I'm sorry but it is usually impossible to answer that soon. We are a small staff, all volunteers, with most of us still working full time jobs. This is a hobby with us, as it is with most of you, and we love it or we wouldn't be doing it. In fact, I'm retiring in December because my job is starting to interfere with my hobby! Although our membership is close to 1300 now, a small percentage of that number lives in this area or even in Minnesota. Answering queries is done in between all the other work of making this organization operate. We love the queries, and I personally would rather be researching than doing anything except playing with my grandsons. Also, with weddings, deaths, illnesses, vacations, work, etc., etc., it has been a summer and a half.

So please bear (or is it bare) with us, we'll answer all your letters, usually within 30 days. I might add that besides the letters from our members, we get letters and calls from all over the world (almost) asking us questions about Irish research, our society and where gg grandfather Sullivan came from! What fun!

Your Board has plans that should be completed by next spring that will benefit most of you in your research and offer you even more for your membership. I can hardly wait!

From The Editor – Ida Troye

Well, what do you think? Are we going international, or what? A prominent Irish researcher, Nora Hickey from the Cork Family History Society in Kinsale has written an excellent article on name variations, one of the "glitches" we run into on occasion. She is also a "survivor" of the Halloween snowstorm of '91 – remember, she was going to appear at St. Thomas on November 1. She came to St. Paul and spent the next four days inside, doing research with one of our members. She is brave – she is going to try again on November 21 at our Quarterly Meeting. We have to have a good turnout, after all she is coming from Ireland to try again.

Ida Troye

Another discovery – this newsletter tells of 24 million names on draft registration cards from World War I – the news inside will tell you how to find them.

A wonderful job was accomplished by Joe Huber, our computer whiz! He has alphabetized the Poor Law Unions for us to use with one of the most helpful books published. He tried to find this in other books to no avail, so he made one for us. It's in this issue.

If you could send your family surname out to over 1,000 people, would you think you might get a clue? That happens when you subscribe to a membership in the Irish Genealogical Society. The Septs goes to over 1200 active members and if you put in a query – just imagine! In addition to that, you can enter it in the Irish Genealogical Society's Surname List, which is updated quarterly and published as a single edition at the end of each year. So, the number grows; persons who see that publication is larger than our circulation. Just two of the services you receive as a member.

We now have available a 97 page 2nd Annual Edition of the IGS Surname List with over 4700 surnames. This list enables you to contact other persons searching the same surname, a very valuable tool.

An Irish Blessing: "Those who bring sunshine into the lives of others cannot keep it from themselves." Keep shining.

Poor Law Unions (districts)

"A New Genealogical Atlas of Ireland"

by Brian Mitchell

This list was taken from the referred book. It contains the alphabetical listing of Poor Law Unions (districts) and the county(s) that these Poor Law Unions encompass.

There is an alphabetical listing for the Parish and the Barony in the "General Alphabetical Index to the Townlands and Towns, Parishes and Baronies of Ireland." The Poor Law Union, however, is very important in order to search births, marriages and deaths. This index would be very helpful in looking in the Atlas and other sources, such as the film you might search at the Church of Jesus Christ LDS Family History Centers.

America's First Immigrant Through Ellis Island

Excerpt from IACI brochure

A 15 year old Irish girl, Annie Moore, was the first immigrant processed through Ellis Island on January 1, 1892. She stepped ashore and was greeted with fanfare and awarded a $10 gold piece.

Annie Moore, from County Cork, Ireland along with her two young brothers came aboard the S.S. Nevada to join their parents who had immigrated nearly two years previously. The Moore family lived in New York for a while and eventually settled in Texas and New Mexico. Miss Moore went on to marry a descendant of the famous Irish statesman, Daniel O'Connell.

To commemorate Annie, and as a fitting tribute to the millions of immigrants who followed, the Irish American Cultural Institute, with official endorsements from the U.S. and Irish governments, has commissioned noted Irish sculptor Jeanne Rynhart to create a life-sized bronze statue of Annie Moore to be erected on Ellis Island. The event is planned to coincide with the Centennial & Rededication of Ellis Island in 1992.

Simultaneously, the Queenstown (Cobh) Restoration Project in County Cork has adopted Annie Moore as the focal point of its new Emigrant Museum & Heritage Centre. President of Ireland, Mary Robinson, will unveil the Cobh Annie Moore on October 8, 1992.

For information on donations to this monument, contact: The Annie Moore Project, The Irish American Cultural Institute, 300 East 42nd St., 17th Floor, NY, NY 10017-5947

Dear Septs

"I am one of those people who love helping another, and if I find information that I think will help someone else, I'm more than willing to share same. Therefore, I sure hope this will be of help to someone.

Or like you said, maybe it will give someone else a place to start searching. Also, maybe it will give others the idea of what then can contribute to society.

Happy hunting - that's what we're all doing."
This from Carol K. (Songs) Hansing, Rural Route 1, Box 84, Belvue, KS 664-9614.
Carol also sent us information on two more cemeteries in Jackson Co., Kansas – see "Library News". Thanks, Carol, these donations make our library expand. If you readers want to search a name – please send SASE and 20¢ per page for copies to the Irish Genealogical Society Post Office box number.

A long letter from Joy Yockey of Montesano, WA – here is what she has to say...
I know that most people go to Disneyland, but the past two years my understanding better half has hauled me to Canada, Washington, Idaho, Montana, and back to Nebraska looking through cemeteries for long deceased relatives. I've made contact & friends with people in Minnesota who took their time to go find and take a picture of one grave, and a person in California who found and recorded our Great Grandpa, also cousin took some in Arizona. I gave my husband a list of the towns and cemeteries we needed to find and we met some great people and visited family.
How many of you have ever gone bouncing over hill and dale to a family cemetery on the open range and paid respects to family who immigrated to this country?
Editor's note: sounds like you could write a book.

From: Marie Bohan Schmitz of LaMesa, CA...
Thank you for the generous new member packet and for the best newsletter of any genealogy society I have ever seen. This last issue is magnificent. It is full of good information which I can use, particularly the info on the centers in Ireland and where the records are, etc.

Again, thanks for all the good materials. I'll share them with my friends in the British Isles Genealogical Research Assn in San Diego.

Editor's note: We are so glad that this information is helpful. We try to put some U.S. and some Irish research in each newsletter.

Carole Dunn Vaughn from Princeton, Illinois, as always, has good, helpful hints. Here is her latest...
I'll tell you briefly of my experiences in New York. First of all, I have only been an amateur genealogist for two years and I tend to be rather impulsive when I take on something new. I did not know about IGS at that time, so I referred to my home resource – World Book. In the New York section, they had a list of addresses for information. I wrote to the address listed under the "History" subtitle and asked if they would send me addresses for any historical societies in my county of interest, Ontario County. They complied rather promptly and I began correspondence with the Phelps and Ontario County historical societies. Through the latter, I discovered a county archives from which I was able to get copies of Naturalization papers of my ancestor, which listed his exact location of birth (HURRAY!) and a copy of his brother's will.

Altogether, through the help of World Book, I was able to get copies of obituaries; current addresses for people of my surname in the area; a copy of the 1900 census listing my ancestor's brother; 2 sets of naturalization papers and a copy of a will. I am tickled by the information I have added to my "file" but feel this is only the tip of the New York genealogical iceberg.

Thank you for your continued dedication to IGS.

Papers of the Continental Congress

Kim King, Edmonds, Washington

Another hint in search of your ancestors

A very interesting record group found at the United States National Archives is worthy of consideration and review from both a historical and genealogical viewpoint. A five volume index covering 50,000 documents are contained in records of the Continental Congress. These documents reproduced on 204 reels of microfilm can be found under schedule "1M247". Check with the branch of the National Archives nearest you.

The Record Group of the Continental Congress consists of documents, letters, and journals written by generals, statesmen and council presidents. They deal with events covering the period 1774-1789. The index is straightforward, listed by name, subject, place as well as being cross-referenced.

I used these records in my search for an officer in the Irish Volunteers. My attention was drawn by the subject, "Prisoners of War, Convention troops." I knew my subject had been in Pennsylvania or New Jersey, in the 1770's, since he married the daughter of a local sheriff. They also had issue one or two children in America before returning to Ireland. There is some evidence he came to America about 1770 and returned to Ireland about 1781. The possibility existed that I might trace him in America by exploring letters and lists of prisoners, which were exchanged between generals of the convention troops and generals of the Continental Army.

The indexes, arranged alphabetically, note lists of loyalist prisoners from North Carolina to Philadelphia, prisoners in Pennsylvania, Canadian prisoners, notes and letters on prisoners, complaints, etc. Many included names, rank and origin of county and country. Besides the British and Irish troops, the reports also include German and French troops, too. I found the correspondence between certain generals of the Convention Army and generals of the Continental Army to be quite interesting. At times to humorous, intriguing, yet extremely polite and proper in their dealings with one another. Comments noted in the exchange of several letters dealt with "Poor Treatment" of seven British officers, covering a complaint of "being assigned a room only 10 x 10 foot square, barely enough space to lie down," and another letter complained of "not receiving adequate rations, fire or candle," and still another letter complained "that their servants had better conditions than they."

The Committee on Secrecy, War and Intelligence for the Congress of North Carolina sent prisoners, all British officers, to Philadelphia because the Committee said, "their rank and influence over an ignorant and restless part of our inhabitants to be capable of doing us the most mischief," and further stated, "the security of our country makes it indispensably necessary for should they have an opportunity of exerting their pernicious influence at a time when we may be invaded by a powerful army the consequences might and probably would prove fatal." Attached to the letter were names and rank of 26 officers of the Convention Troops being sent to Pennsylvania, putting them at the disposal of the Continental Congress. My elusive ancestors were not among those listed.

The papers of the Continental Congress should be of interest to everyone, not just history buffs, but for those engaged in genealogy as well. Consider looking through these documents as you search for that missing British or Irish ancestor. You will find the records fascinating educational and well worth your effort. The papers contain the spirit and thinking of our forefathers during this important time in our country's history.

Draft Registration Cards

A significant new microfilm collection is a set of 24 million cards created during the World War I draft. There were three draft registrations which eventually included all men (whether native born or alien) between the ages of 18 and 45. The information on the cards includes: full name; full date and place of birth; race, citizenship, occupation, personal description and signature.

Not all men who registered actually served; not all men who served registered for the draft. The draft cards are not military service records.

At the Church of Jesus Christ LDS Family History Library (FHL), search the catalog section on micro fische no. 0013 under UNITED STATES GENERAL. At the bottom of page 245 through 251 it lists "United States Military Records. U.S. Selective Service System WWI (1914-1918) Draft Registration Cards.

In checking with the reference section in Salt Lake City, Utah, they stated that all states are now available. You search by STATE, then COUNTY to get the film number(s) for County and order film. This will show the alphabetical list of persons.

SURNAME COUNT BY COUNTY

This article shows the count of surnames (taken from the 1992 complete Surname List) in each county of Ireland. It shows the count where a county was named or where a major city (i.e., Dublin or Belfast) was named. Many members named a geographical division without a county and the author was not able to track these down. Also, the author tried not to duplicate counts for name variants. So, if a member had the names: Connell, McConnell, O'Connell listed for a county, it was only counted once. Or if the member listed: Boran, Borin, Boren for a county, it was counted only once. However, if one of the variants was an anglicized form (e.g. Morrison for Fitzmaurice or Rabbitt for MacAneany), the author may not have recognized it as such.

Antrim	90	3.3%	Leitrim	27	1.0%
Armagh	57	2.1%	Limerick	95	3.5%
Carlow	29	1.1%	Longford	40	1.5%
Cavan	54	2.0%	Louth	30	1.1%
Clare	124	4.5%	Mayo	194	7.1%
Cork	461	16.8%	Meath	53	1.9%
Derry	48	1.8%	Monaghan	38	1.4%
Donegal	103	3.8%	Offaly	30	1.1%
Down	69	2.5%	(Kings)
Dublin	81	3.0%	Roscommon	106	3.9%

Laois	37	1.4%	Wexford	50	1.8%
(Queens/Leix)			Wicklow	25	0.9%

The membership also listed Ulster 33 times and Munster 1 time. The author also welcomes suggestions on other things to do with the Surname List. Some members have asked for dates to be included, but there are too many kinds of dates that could be included. There are dates for birth, marriage, death, emigration and migration. So far I have not figured out how to merge these into the Surname List in a workable fashion.

Tithe Composition Applotment

Act of Parliament of 1823

This provides for tithes due to the Established Church to be paid in money rather than in kind. The new method of tithe payment involved a valuation of the entire country, parish by parish. The amount of tithe payable by each individual landholder was fixed. The record of this great survey is contained in the Tithe applotment Books.

These books, numbering some two and a half thousand volumes ranging from 1823 to 1837 lists, by townlands, the landholders or tenants. This valuation was the first comprehensive register of people in relation to the tenancy and working of the land of Ireland.

Virginia Mahoney researched the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints (Mormon) library index and copied the following directly from the film to show a sample of what can be discovered. It is listed by townland and, of course, the head of household in a certain year. You can order any of these tithe records through that library by film number.

Here is a sample:

Gleanings

From HERE and THERE

HERE:

NEW YORK - We have mentioned several times in past THE SEPTS about the Calvary Cemetery, Woodside, NY, where many of the early Irish settlers in the area were buried. Member Norma Freeman of Lakeport, Calif, suggests that all members who have ancestors buried there, submit their names and plot numbers and all else you have on the grave site and we consolidate everyone's information as a start to a transcription of the cemetery. Sounds great to me so just submit all you have and we'll see what we can do for you. Norma also sent copies of a map of the cemetery with the sections numbered. We may just have something going on this!

CALIFORNIA - If your relatives were in the area of Pomona Valley California, you may want to contact the Pomona Valley Genealogical Society, P.O. Box 286, Pomona, CA 91769. They have compiled an impressive list of genealogical publications for sale, with extracted names going back as far as 1851, for example the CALIFORNIA STATE MARINE HOSPITAL, San Francisco, Patient lists, 1851 for $11.50. Also, cemeteries, land grants, military, etc..

THE ONTARIO REGISTER - One of our members researched in these books in the Peterborough Public Library, Ontario, Canada and thought they should be in our library. There are seven volumes Edited and Published by Thomas B. Wilson, Lambertville, NJ. Does anyone know if these books are available for purchase, and if so, where? Thanks!

WISCONSIN - Member Carol Wilson of RR 1, Box 139, Mason, WI 54856, writes that she has information on three Wisconsin counties that she will check for IGS members. They are Langlade, Monroe and Vernon Counties. She also has the Centennial Book for the town of Grandview, WI (Bayfield County), unindexed, that she can check. The town was also called Gribben, Prattsburg and Pratt. She says she also does research in Ashland and Bayfield Counties but must charge for this as she takes time off from work to work when the offices are open. She is interested in doing this research in exchange for research in Albany/Rensalaer Counties, NY, Fayette County, PA, Weymouth/Plymouth Counties, MA, Berkeley County, VA, and Dickenson County, VA. Carol also tells us that the state has an index, on microfilms, of the Births, Deaths and Marriages for the entire state, PRE-1907. They are alphabetical by name, give the date of the event, and tell what county the event took place in. These can be viewed in the different "area research centers" throughout the state, but are also available for sale from the State Center for Health Statics, Rm 172, 1 West Wilson St, Madison, WI 53703, ($22.03 for deaths, $25.39 for marriages and $22.60 for births).

GROSSE ILE, ONTARIO, CANADA, The Irish Echo dated July 15-21, 1992, carried a Letter to the Editor from Gearoid O Branagain of Bramalea, Ontario, about the Canadian government's proposed development of Grosse Ile into a theme park called Canada, Land of Hope and Welcome. For those of you not familiar with Grosse Ile, this was the Ellis Island of Canada. Many Irish are buried there, dead of cholera or other diseases after they were quarantined after arriving from Ireland in the 1800s. IGS has several books on this and one contains a list of some of the orphans who were adopted out after their parents died on the island. There is a beautiful Celtic cross at Grosse Ille as a monument to these immigrants. Personally, I believe that what is already there is enough to symbolize the "Land of Hope and Welcome". If you agree with me, please write to Mr. Brian Mulroney, Prime Minister of Canada, House of Commons, Room 309S, Centre Block, Ottawa, Ontario KIA OR6.

HOUSE OF BOYD SOCIETY, Mr. M.J. Boyd of Canberra, Australia, wrote about his Boyd family who went to Sydney, Australia in 1826 from Killarney, County Kerry. He also wrote about the House of Boyd Society which was formed in 1988. Anyone interested in Clan Boyd may write the membership secretary, Henry F. Boyd, 5200 Brittany Drive South, #1301, St Petersburg, FL 33715.

CLANS REUNIONS, we receive quite a bit of information on the different family name groups/ clans, both in Ireland and elsewhere. Some we publish as we do above, but we receive long lists from the Irish Tourist Board and Clans Alliance International. If we receive the 1993 information in time for our Spring newsletter we will try and publish it, otherwise if you are interested in a certain surname, write with a SASE and we will sent out what we have, if anything.

THERE:

COUNTY ARMAGH - An update on the Irish Genealogical Centre for County Armagh. They wrote to send their new address which is: Armagh Ancestry, 42 English Street, Armagh, BT61 7BA, Northern Ireland; Tel: 0861-527808. They are currently indexing to the computer the pre-1900 Church Records, pre-1900 Civil Records, Tithe Applotment Books, Griffith's Land Valuation, Gravestone Inscriptions and any available Census or substitute data. They welcome genealogical searches in these resources and also state that visitors are welcome to the Centre. Grace McParland is the Project Supervisor for the Centre.

HERITAGE CENTRES IN IRELAND, for new members, we have published a list of the centres in Ireland that are indexing the parish records, primarily Catholic but all denominations that are made available to them. They are also indexing all other materials that are of a genealogical help to researchers. We published this list throughout the 1991 issues of our newsletter and then published all of in a book, with all 32 counties included. This book is for sale for $6 plus $2 postage and handling. The Centres have been sending us updates on their services as well as brochures, etc., to keep us informed. The following two centres were heard from since the last newsletter.

COUNTY DERRY - The Genealogy Centre, Heritage Library, 14 Bishop Street, Derry, NI BT 48 6PW, is now welcoming guests into their centre. They sent information on their holdings which we will copy and mail to you with your SASE.

COUNTY TIPPERARY - The Bru Boru Heritage Centre, Rock of Cashel, County Tipperary, sent a colorful brochure on their new centre. It appears that they are not only doing genealogy but having folk theatre and other good things. We'll try to plan our trip through there.

NOTE: When writing ANY of the centres, please let them know that you are a member of IGS. This makes them more aware of us and encourages them to send us current information without having to write them. THANKS!

NEWFOUNDLAND AND LABRADOR GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY, INC. - This Society which is at Colonial Building, Military Road, St John's Newfoundland, Canada A1C 2C9, wrote for information on IGS. We have offered to share newsletters with them as many Irish, Scots-Irish and Scots came through their ports. We hope to share information with them and will certainly pass it on to all of you.

Success Story

Dear Madam Editor:

I had a rather startling experience while in Ireland a few weeks back that I believe is worth every one's consideration when hunting for ancestors. I know exactly where my great grandfather lived and farmed. I had been in the parish church (really a cathedral) on previous trips to the area and had looked through the parish record books. I was able to find the baptismal records for some of my grandfather's brothers and sisters, but not for my grandfather. I was frustrated and disappointed.

A friend of mine who lived in the area and whose grandfather had been a friend of my grandfather said to me one evening that I "should mind the Hennesey's" as well as my own name. Having nothing to lose, I started to look under "Hennesy." My great grandfather must have been a man with an ironic sense of humor, because he used the name "Hennesy" rather than "Ennis" when my grandfather was baptized. He used the same name for others of his children as well.

I thought about this for a while and I came to the conclusion that we American Irish are quite naive when we go delving in the events of mid 19th century Ireland. This was the period when the Irish people were beginning to use English as their everyday language but many still had knowledge and memories of Gaelic. I assume that my great grandfather knew that there were several transliterations of O'hAongusa and was probably trying them out to see which suited him. My grandfather immigrated as "Ennis" and became a citizen of the United States using that name.

Researchers should always be wary of alternate English spellings and even alternate English transliterations of an Irish name. I think our ancestors were not as particular about these things as we are. Using another English version of a name may have been just another way of thwarting authority and giving the lion's tail a bit of a nip. The priest who recorded the events in the parish record books wrote mostly in English and I would guess it was they as much as anyone who set the standard for spelling. Talk to the people of the area. I was surprised how much lore they had of the people who had migrated. My family is still remembered though more that twelve decades have passed.

Warmest regards,
Capt. Robert Ennis, USN (retired)

under REGAN or RYAN? I opted for majority rule, with notation at the beginning of the indexes, but I cannot be positive that this resulted in a 100% correct allocation. However, anyone looking for either Regans or Ryans in Bandon, or anywhere else in Ireland, should be aware of this problem - and I know a few people in Ireland who are not 100% happy about the Ballyporeen REGAN entry!

Another example of surname confusion is shown by Coughlan and Coholan - and their spelling variations. All the experts, including Edward MacLysahgt {THE SURNAMES OF IRELAND} and Kenneth Nicholls, University College, Cork {lecture to the O Mahony Society, 1986} state that these are two separate surnames, with completely different origins. I do not dispute this statement, but the reality in the parishes of West Cork is that the two surnames are used synomynously. Even today, I know of two brothers, and a father and son, who use the two surnames [1] Cogan appears in the Bandon registers as Cogan, Gogan, Googin, Goggin and Cogane; when one also discovers that the surname of Gookin also developed into Googin...! More headaches for the researcher. we developed a saying: "Some Archdeacons are Codys; some Codys are Archdeacons; but not all Archdeacons are Codys, and not all Codys are Archdeacons!"

Members of the same family/sept who had the same surname -and the development of the surname is outside the range of this brief explanation - would add another name to differentiate. Thus MacCarthy Mor, MacCarthy Reagh or Riabhach {striped or swarthy}, MacCarthy Spainneach {Spanish}, MacCarthy Cairbreach, MacCarthy Rabach, MacCarthy Glas {green}, and MacCarthy Crimeen, now the name Cremin. Mickie Cremin of Barryroe parish was listed as Michael MacCarthy only twice in his life - Butlerstown School register and his obituary notice in the CORK EXAMINER. His funeral was poorly attended, and so when his sister, Katie Cremin, died, the death announcement included both Cremin and MacCarthy! (Cremins are lucky because the "real" surname is always MacCarthy).

What causes problems for research is the dropping of the actual family name and thus the secondary name becomes the surname used today. An example of this is Whooley, Hooley, Coffey. Cadogan, Kerukan, Bohane - all of these are O Driscoll surnames. Bohane may also be an O Sullivan surnames as in Bogue/Bouig. Lordan, Hourihane, Grahan, Mongain, Manning and Corcoran are among the secondary names for O Brien in the Barryroe area.

Another method of identifying families of the same surnames was by adding a description: Donovan Ban, Barrry Ban, were the families with white hair. Was the Ban dropped favour of the real surname? Was it anglicized into White? Or confused with the English name of White? I do not yet have a definite answer to these questions, because, as is true of so many of these surname variations, the answer lies in whatever was the local custom, and will only be revealed with a locally based search for your ancestor - or detailed research within a parish. {2} Maol (bald), Meirgeach (generous), Liath (grey-haired) are other examples of descriptive surnames - and vary from locality to locality. {3} And if you have a Canniffe (Caniv) ancestor, you are really an O Mahoney, from Ceannduibh, the black-haired Kean.

In Barryroe parish the family secondary name of Mac an Mhaighister (son of the master) was given to one of the many Fleming families in the parish because William Fleming was the school master of a hedge school in Vallinvillish, townland of Ballinvrokig, and he is listed in Griffith's Valuation as William Fleming (Master). My father was at school with some of this family - and never knew until we were doing our own family research that their surname was really Fleming!

The same principle applies to topographic names. In the Sheeps Head peninsula the surname Mountain is among the register entries. These were the Donovans living on the mountain. The Hurleys Carriga were those descended from the Hurleys of Ballincarriga Castle (Enniskeane parish), but in neighbouring bandon parish Carriga means MacCarthy. the 021 County Cork telephone directory lists three "Carrig" surnames, from a family originally on a rock, but which rock? and where? And in Barryroe, "The Randals" were a branch of the Hurleys, descended from Randal Hurley and the name "The Yeardleys" was given to another family of Hurleys.

The Rosscarbery RC registers show exactly what I mean by the several secondary names given for O Donovan. In the earlier years the two names were listed, Donovan Rua, Donovan Bui (yellow/fair-haired), Donovan Rossa, Donovan Asna, and so on. Gradually, only the secondary name was given. Father James Coombes, eminent historian and P.P. of Timoleague, Co. Cork, has listed all the secondary names from the parishes of Barryroe and Timoleague, in his TIMOLEAGUE & BARRYROE. Again, I stress that these secondary names are very localized.

Now to discuss the "O" and the "Mac". During the nineteenth century these were NOT usually written in the parish registers. Why? Remember that Daniel O Connell, the Roman Catholic clergy et al. were preaching the doctrine that the only way to improve one's status and move out of the land was to learn English and become upwardly mobile - and indeed this was true. Therefore Irish names were anglicized, and "O" and "Mac" omitted. With the development of nationalism and the Gaelic Revival towards the end of the century, "O" and "Mac" were returned to the surnames. Before I incur the wrath of historians, I stress that this is a very simplistic statement for a very complex issue - but it illustrates the point that you may or may not find your surname with or without "O" or "Mac". And several Irish experts deplore the habit of writing O', deeming it an English term, meaning "of the", and insist that O, as in O Mahoney or O Brien, is the correct form. Likewise the Norman Fitz (fils=the son of) was often left out of the register entries, e.g. Gerald or Garrett for FitzGerald. Some surnames did not bring back the "O", Murphy and Crowley being notable examples.

These two surnames also illustrate the usage of "-y or -ey". Most early nineteenth century entries were "-y" (or "-ey"). By 1900 several surnames, but not all, were using "-ey" instead of "-y". Buckley, Crowley and Hurley are among the surnames that included the "e" but Murphy and Mahony did not. A few families in Ireland do use the Mahoney spelling to this day, but these are in a definite minority. The reverse is true in the U.S.A.

Which leads to another surname thought, ripe for research! I do not think that Irish surnames in the USA and Ireland developed at the same time, or to the same extent. For example, most of the O Mahony sept in the USA use the Mahoney spelling and a three syllable pronunciation e.g. Ma-ho-ney, without the "O". When one thinks of the Gaelic form O Mathuna, (Ma-Hu-na) and the Irish pronunciation today of Ma-ny, one wonders who is keeping the correct version? I believe that the Gaelic versions of pronunciation, if not also the spelling, were transported across the Atlantic, and retained there for longer than in Ireland, where the process of anglicization continued until the early twentieth century. I found proof of this during my US visit in 1991.

The Keohane name is found in the USA as Cohane, a version of O Ceochain - the Gaelic form, far far later than in Ireland, but it developed into Keohane (usually) in both countries. (Remember that the old Gaelic language of 20 letters did not include "K"). I found an excellent family history of the descendants of William Cohane and Johanna Burke of Bandon, Co. Cork, in the library of the Western Reserve Historical Society, Cleveland, Ohio. William McCourtie, prior to writing the family history in 1914, had visited Bandon and found no one of the name left there. He wondered if his William Cohane ancestor had wandered in from Wexford? Alas, by the time of his visit, the name in the Bandon area was Keohane - and nobody he spoke to recognized Cohane. So now I know that distant relative, George M. Cohan, did not change his name, as previously thought! Cousin Jim in Florida still uses the Co-Han pronunciation, whereas I say Keogh-hane (courtesy of a British education) and in West Cork it is said as Q-hain.

The point of the sub-title, which might also read "The biter bit!" Within the past year, I found out that the Keohanes, a surname found only in West Cork and South Kerry, were the Crowleys that were lost in a mist, and thus became the Crowley Ceochains!

NOTES: {1} Mathieson's SURNAMES OF IRELAND records several examples of this anomaly, e.g. Falconer & Faulkner use different spellings within the same family. {2} I have grave reservations about the standardization of surnames in the IGP database. Not least is the fact that the base names are those from Co. Sligo, but because I firmly believe that each parish should be computerized separately and then analyzed for the surname variations. These often show up by looking at the mothers' names. After that process is completed, standardization may take place. In the IGP database, entries are standardized almost immediately. {3} The Irish Folklore Commission Schools Manuscript Collection of 1937-1938 was a National Schools Survey. The pupils collected the oral traditions of their areas, including many of the local secondary names - now lost, alas, from the Irish oral tradition. (The discovery of television has much to answer for!)

U.S. Has Counties Also

By Florence Myslajek

Our Irish ancestors are often elusive when we search for them. Many of us have spent a lot of time searching Irish records, looking for finding aids, ready "how to" books. But how much attention have we paid to resources closer to home in filling out our Irish ancestors' stories? Searching for birth, death or marriage data for nineteenth century family members before the statewide indices were in place is often difficult and time consuming. Below are just a few examples of some information on Minnesota counties. This works equally well wherever LDS has filmed. If you know the location of the event and the approximate time, you can inquire directly to the county. You may know your grandmother died in Waseca county about 1902-3. It is not difficult to go directly to county records, either in person or by mail.

But sometimes your information is not so exact. You think your great-uncle lived in Redwood County, Minnesota around the turn of the century. You can request searches of specific areas. But there may be an easier, quicker, perhaps less expensive way to do it.

The Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints (LDS) has microfilmed many county vital records. I found the following readily using their "Family Search" program on the computer at the Family History Library during a recent visit.

I entered the Family History Catalog section of Family Search and typed in "Redwood" in the appropriate space for a county, followed by "Minnesota" in the space for the state. I left the "Topic" spot blank, because I wanted to see the full list of topics, everything they had on Redwood County. I could have specified any one of the standard topics such as "Church records", History", "Vital records." The computer quickly told me it had found 11 topics for this locality:

Topics                                                Records Found
 1. Archives and libraries ..................................... 1
 2. Biography .................................................. 1
 3. Cemeteries ................................................. 1
 4. Church history ............................................. 1
 5. Church records ............................................. 5
 6. History..................................................... 1
 7. Land and property .......................................... 3
 8. Maps......................................................... 2
 9. Probate records ............................................. 1
10. Taxation .................................................... 1
11. Vital records ............................................... 1

By pressing the function key "F6" on the top row of the keyboard, I saw the listing of standard topics and how many records under each topic. By moving the highlight bar down to #5 Church records and pressing "F7" I got a brief list of the records found under that topic (see right).

From The President – Beth Mullinax

I hope that you all had a great Holiday season, getting together with family and friends. This is my favorite time of the year when I see and hear from family and friends all over the country.

Looking at the past year, it certainly has been an exciting one for IGS (Irish Genealogical Society).

Beth Mullinax

As I write this, our membership is over 1400 and we just received our first member from Australia!

We are looking forward to being bigger and better in 1993. We had several speakers from Ireland this year and this reminded me of something a group of us discussed at the First Genealogical Congress in Dublin September 1991. That is to set up a NETWORK of groups that would be interested in speakers from Ireland. With this, the speaker could contact IGS when they are going to be in the US or Canada, and we could put the message out to everyone on the list. With a group effort, the actual cost to each group would be minimal. Any arrangements for a speaker would be between the group and the speaker. If your local group would like to be on the list, just send us an address and a contact person with a telephone number.

Our genealogical tour is progressing nicely. I had hoped to have a flyer out by now, but it took us a while to get all the information we needed and I'm just too busy at work. Those who have returned their information sheets on the tour will have received the information already.

We will be researching in Counties Galway, Mayo, Donegal, Carlow, Wexford, Limerick with possible stops in Waterford and Clare. We will have two complete days in Dublin City with an information meeting on the Dublin Archives. The cost of the trip is $1650 for the LAND TOUR which includes 14 nights with full breakfast, dinner for each night except the three nights in Dublin, and a medieval banquet. The airfare round trip from Minneapolis/St Paul is $887. Airfare from other locations to JFK in New York City will be adjusted accordingly. If you are interested, and have not already done so, send a SASE for more information on the trip. Space will be limited.

Since my job is interfering with my genealogical projects, I will be retiring. My last day is December 31st so I can begin the New Year out right! This has been planned for over a year now and I'm looking forward to just being home for awhile and working on my own research as well as continuing to work with IGS. No, I'm not moving South, I love Minnesota. My husband was career military and we lived all over the US, France & Belgium and I found no place I love better!

A prosperous New Year and a special thank you for all of your many contributions to IGS!

From The Editor

A new year is upon us and all of our resolutions are made. What can we do as an organization to better serve you? Last year our resolve was to never be late with the publication. But, as with nearly all resolutions, this one was broken. The only excuse is that since our organization is all volunteer, things happen over which we have no control. All we can do is beg your forgiveness. We will make that same resolution again. Also we will try very hard to live up to our new "international" theme and get Irish writers included in our newsletter.

Ida Troye

Nora Hickey was here in November at our quarterly meeting and we had wonderful participation. We believe everyone went away with some useful research information. Knowing that for the new researcher, there must have been some confusion but rest assured there was nothing we could not instruct you in. If you have questions, please either see us at the MGS Library on Irish Day or drop a line and we will try to answer your inquiry.

Speaking of inquiries, keep them coming in. It is an important part of the SEPTS and there is a chance that someone will see yours. Just advise us of all you know about your ancestor and we will sort it out and put it in the correct format. Don't forget the siblings and the children, because someone out there might be looking at another branch of the family and come across that name in your inquiry.

This issue has the most exciting description of "how-to" check the United States counties. We make such an issue of the counties in Ireland, and have a tendency to forget our first, important information here in the U.S. Florence Myslejek has told of her first discovery of searching county information at the Family History Centers that can be used at any FHC. It is fine to do it by mail, but this is so much easier and quicker. It makes me want to try it as soon as possible. Don't let the work "computer" frighten you. They have people to help you and it is a very easy program to follow. You don't even have to be able to type well. Hunt and peck will work fine.

We have so much news in this issue, I don't want to take up space to tell you about it. We have a lot of new books and I want to remind you that you might be able to borrow these books on an inter-library loan at your local library or at a university or historical society library. Don't hesitate to ask.

Let us be the first to wish you HAPPY ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

Enjoy.

IRISH EPITAPHS

One of our members, who has recently retired, has undertaken a long thought about personal project to collect gravestone inscriptions on Irish immigrants and enter this into a database for use of researchers.

The project is to accumulate a data base of Irish Epitaphs that list the county and or townland in Ireland of the individual. It is believed that this will be helpful on both sides of the ocean. The Irish immigrants seem to have been proud and particular to have their place of origin inscribed on their tombstones.

Contacts in Ireland are particularly interested in trying to locate where a relative ended up in the world, when they left Ireland. Descendants in the US, Australia, Canada and New Zealand are interested in locating in Ireland the place from where their ancestor(s) came. As anyone doing Irish research knows it is extremely important to know the county and townland in Ireland in order to make any progress. Another unique aspect of Irish tombstones, particularly in Ireland, is that these epitaphs many times have the name(s) of the erectors whom are often children or a spouse.

If you feel that this will be of value, the transcription of any stone(s) having information that the deceased was from Ireland would be welcomed. The name and location of the cemetery would be appreciated. The database will be capable of being searched by surname, cemetery name, cemetery location, townland, county or parish, country of death, and any other combinations of birth or death data. Presently there are some transcriptions from Australia, New Zealand and the United States.

Please send transcriptions or other information of Irish immigrants for which their location in Ireland in other parts of the world is known to: John D. Bowen, 613 Chichester Lane, Silver Spring, MD 20904-3331.

Explanation of the "8870" formula

(excerpt from Genealogical Helper, Mar/Apr 1992)

Briefly, here is how it works: Let's say you have the death date of an ancestor as 6 May 1889, with the tombstone note that he was 71 years, 7 months & 9 days old at the time of death.

Write the date:	18890506	(1889 May 6)
Subtract:	710709	(71 yrs, 7mo, 9 dys)
Result:	18179797
Subtract:	8870
Result:	18170927	(1817 Sep 27 date of birth)

NOVA SCOTIA IMMIGRANTS TO 1867, Compiled by Leonard H. Smith Jr., C. G. and Norma H. Smith. Clothcover, map, 560 pp., 1992. Available from Genealogical Publishing Co., Inc., 1001 N. Calvert St, Baltimore, MD 21202-3897 (toll-free 1-800-296-6687) $37.50 plus $3.00 postage & handling. Reviewed by Kathryn Smith.

The authors have abstracted data from a wide variety of sources relating to immigrants entering into Nova Scotia prior to 1867. In the preface, the authors detail sources of entries, also omissions. In the introduction, there is more attention spent on land and probate records, vital records, church records and passenger lists as well as a general history of Nova Scotia.

The book is divided into Part 1 - from manuscripts. Names of immigrants are indexed with pertinent information. In the appendix, immigrant vessel names and manuscript numbers are given. A bibliography follows listing the manuscripts extracted.

Part 2 indexes names obtained from Nova Scotia periodicals. Included also are the names of some blacks with no surname. The appendix lists immigrant vessels as well as others. The bibliography gives publications screened also articles abstracted.

This publication should be an excellent source for tracing of family names of people who immigrated into Nova Scotia, particularly where the original data is scattered. As the authors admit, the indexing is not complete but for genealogists this book should be a good place to begin searching.

ULSTER EMIGRATION TO PHILADELPHIA, 1803-1850 by Raymond D. Adams, Baltimore, MD, Genealogical Publishing Co., 1992, 102 pp. DONATED BY & AVAILABLE FROM: Clearfield Co, 200 E. Eager, Baltimore, MD 21202 $14.00 plus p & h. Reviewed by Elizabeth Delmore.

This is an alphabetical index in soft cover, compiled chiefly to provide researchers with basic information on the place and date of origin of those Irish who emigrated from Ulster during the first half of the nineteenth century

The index is divided into three sections: Emigrant List, Towns and Townlands Found in the Index and End Notes which lists addresses found in more than one county. Example: Carrakeel - Derry, Donegal. A sample entry in the index looks like this:

LAST NAME FIRST NAME AGE FAMILY AGE ADDRESS COUNTY

Fulton Margaret 18 Samuel 14 Ballyclough Derry James 12 Date/Ship Port Mary Ann 10 1833-34 Derry Thomas 8

Northern Irish descending from Scotland, Ireland, England and the Scandinavian countries will find this book a useful source.

EMIGRANTS FROM IRELAND TO AMERICA, 1735-1743, by Frances McDonnell. Baltimore, MD, 1992, 134 pp. DONOR AND PUBLISHER: Genealogical Publishing Co., 1001 North Calvert street, Baltimore MD 21202. Available from publisher for $18.50 plus $3 p & h. Reviewed by Elizabeth Delmore.

As the sub-title states, this is a transcript of the Report of the Irish House of Commons of enforced emigration to America, published in the Journal of the House of Commons of the Kingdom of Ireland (V. 7, 1796).

The report materialized when the Irish Government became aware and concerned that children were being kidnapped and shipped to America. The responsible committee attempted to poll county by county to discover names, crimes, date of arrest, date of embarkation, ship and American port of entry.

For the more than 2100 names listed the data is necessarily uneven. In some cases, names appear with variant spellings. The surname index and listings by county are the most useful features of this book.

DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM BROWN (1819-1908) AND ISABELLA KENNEDY (1820-1894) OF IRELAND, SCOTLAND AND HAMPTON FALLS, NEW HAMPSHIRE, by William T. Regan and Laird C. Towle. Bowie, MD, Heritage books, 1992, 165pp. PUBLISHED & DONATED BY: Heritage Books, Inc., 1540-E Pointer Ridge Place, Suite 300, Bowie, MD 20716. Available from publisher for $17 plus $3 p & h.

The historical background of Northern Ireland, the Brown Families, an area Scottish Gazetteer and Descendant Chart form the contents of this compilation.

In the Brown Families section, the bulk of the contents, the compilers have chosen to list every descendant of William and Isabella who were born with the Brown surname and about whom there was sufficient information. Cut off date is 1970. Quotations from documents are peppered throughout.

The Scottish Gazetteers is limited to a very small locale in Scotland where the early Browns originated.

The Descendant Chart and surnames indices are alphabetical and ease the researcher's task. Numerous photographs enhance the text.

THE SCOTCH-IRISH IN AMERICA, by Henry Jones Ford. Baltimore, MD, Clearfield Co., 1992, 607 pp. PUBLISHED & DONATED BY: Clearfield Company, Inc., 200 E. Eager St., Baltimore, MD 21202. Available from publisher for $39.95 plus $3 p & h. Reviewed by Ida Troye.

This is the starting point of any study of the Scotch-Irish migration from Scotland to Ireland to America and the reasons for their exodus of their homelands.

Although it is more "history" than "genealogy", it tells the story of the influences that formed the character of the Scotch-Irish.

It includes an appendix listing the Scottish Undertakers of 1609, or person who applied for Ulster Allotments. It has a chapter on Pioneer Preachers and their families and a wonderful list of sources consulted in the preparation of the work, along with numerous chapters on the Presbyterian Church and the spread of popular education in America. A good source to learn to understand the people.

Includes two maps and a pattern. Surnames are arranged alphabetically, for quick reference to the right tartan for you. The Tartans listed are for Scottish, Scotch-Irish, Irish and North American surnames.

MURPHY GENEALOGY AND RELATED INFORMATION 1788-1992, by Donald V. Murphy, Astoria, IL, K.K. Stevens Publishing Co, 1992, 80 plus pp.. Available from K.K. Stevens Publishing Co, P.O. BOX 427, Astoria IL 61501, for $23.50 which includes p & h. Reviewed by M. R. Obermeier.

The first generation of Murphys begins with Michael C. Murphy (1788-1890) and his wife Catherine at Clounaglaskin, County Cork, Ireland. One of their sons, Daniel D. Murphy, born in 1818 at Clounaglaskin emigrated to the US about 1853.

After disembarking, Daniel and Alice Brady travelled to Hannibal, MO, where they married and became the parents of twelve children, but longevity was not the strong suit of the third generation. Cornelius J. Murphy was the only child in that family of twelve to have children.

John P. Murphy, the oldest child of Cornelius and his wife Anna Smith married Alma Peterson. Parents of eighteen children, fourteen boys, two girls, two stillborns and in time had over 60 grandchildren.

There are many family pictures, letters from the Peterson family and maps of Ireland, Sweden and the US at the back of the book.

Did you know... that the Social Security Administration may prove invaluable in your genealogical research?

A letter of inquiry mailed to the Social Security Administration - Missing Persons Service could bring you intriguing news. Through its vast network of data on every American citizen, the Administration could put you in contact with a long-lost relative who may have dropped out of sight. The government will "forward" your letter to a person only when a "humanitarian consideration" is involved. To take advantage of this program, follow these instructions to the letter:

a. Write a letter to the person for whom you are looking.

b. Do Not enclose checks, cash, or any personal items you would not want to lose.

c. Send the unsealed letter to the Social Security Letter-Forwarding Unit, 6401 Security Blvd., Baltimore, MD 21235, along with a cover letter explaining your relationship to the missing person and your urgent reason for needing to contact that person.

d. Include the missing person's full name and social security number. If the number is not known, give the date and place of birth, together with the names of both parents. This will assist the government investigators in finding the number, and through the number, the lost person.

From HERE and THERE

Our members continue to share their knowledge and talent. I just hope I can do justice to all that is coming in. I'm always amazed when people tell me that other researchers and/or societies, are reluctant to share their knowledge. We have not found that so with our members nor with the many societies that share their newsletters and information with IGS. The following is an example of their generosity.

HERE

ELLIS ISLAND & COBH, COUNTY CORK - We have mentioned before about the project at Ellis Island to erect a commemorative statue to Annie Moore, the first immigrant at the new station on Ellis Island. The Irish American Cultural Institute (IACI) is now heading a project to put a similar statue at Cobh (was Queenstown) County Cork, where Annie sailed from in Ireland. For more information, write the IACI at 300 East 42nd St, 17th Floor, New York NY 10164-1117.

OREGON - The IRISH AMERICA MAGAZINE, Jul/Aug 1992 issue, published an article PORTRAIT OF JOANNA by Evelyn Leahy Hankel. This is all about a County Tipperary family of Noonan who ended up in Oregon by way of Connecticut and San Francisco. Other Irish name connected are Leahy and Donaghue. Very interesting story.

CEMETERIES - Do we have cemetery information! We had an article in the last newsletter on the Calvary Cemetery of New York. One of our members suggested that we asked members to send in the names of ancestors that they know of in the cemetery and compile a list. We received entries from Marcella Garrick Peters, Apple Valley, CA, Florence Galvin Dweck, North Miami Beach, FL, Ruth A. Robertson, Virginia Beach, VA, Lorraine Mannix, Montgomery, NY, Marybeth Tormey Stevens, Westport, CT, and Mary A. McKeon, Sherman, CT. Mary McKeon is very familiar with the cemetery having lived in New York most of her life. She has some helpful information on the cemetery and will answer questions if you send her an SASE with your questions. Her address is P.O. Box 175, Sherman, CT 06784. Thanks, Mary.

MORE CEMETERIES - Another member, John D. Bowen, has taken on the task of accumulating a data base of Irish Epitaphs that list the county and or townland in Ireland. See the article in this newsletter titled IRISH EPITAPHS. What a project, John!

AND MORE CEMETERIES - Debra Dirks, 3069 S Cavell Ave, St Louis Park, MN 55426, donated copies of indexes to three volumes of the Pembina County, North Dakota, Cemeteries. She has offered to answer inquiries on these indexes if you send her an SASE.

NATIONAL ARCHIVES has published a second edition of IMMIGRANT & PASSENGER ARRIVALS: A SELECT CATALOG OF NATIONAL ARCHIVES MICROFILM PUBLICATIONS which contains detailed descriptions of records relating to the arrival of passengers, crew members, and vessels in US ports. Five new ports of entry (Detroit, Galveston, the St Albans, Vermont District, San Francisco and Seattle) have been added. To order the catalog, send $2 plus $3 shipping and handling to the National Archives Trust Fund, P.O. Box 100793, Atlanta, GA 30384. (from Minnesota Genealogist, Vol 23, No. 2)

MINNESOTA - Kathryn Adams, 5651 Miller Trunk Hwy, Duluth, MN 55811, writes about her grandfather, Gregory McGowan keeping a journal while living in both Ireland and Minneapolis. The journal mentions McGowans, Loughlins and Rauens in County Leitrim and Minneapolis. She has pictures of Mary Loughlin Rauen which she will share with any family members. There are other names mentioned in County Leitrim (Doyle, Gafaney, Conly, Clancy). If any of these names sound familiar you will want to write Kathryn for more information. Don't forget the SASE.

TIPPERARY - Member Norman Patterson donated the following book to the Minnesota Genealogical Society and it is well worth a mention: TIPPERARY'S FAMILIES BEING THE HEARTH MONEY RECORDS FOR 1665-6-7 by Thomas Laffan. We can check it for your surnames with an SASE.

COUNTY DUBLIN - The Dun Laoghaire Genealogical Society, 14 Rochestown Park, Dun Laoghaire, Co Dublin, sent us a copy of their Spring 1992 Journal. We also received a letter from Michael Merrigan, Secretary, on the different projects the society has taken on. They include 1) the indexing of the 1901 and 1911 Censuses for Kingstown (now Dun Laoghaire), Dalkey, Monkstown, Blackrock, Stillorgan, Killiney, Ballybrack, Glasthule and Rochestown in South County Dublin. They plan on publishing this when completed; 2) Dean's Grange Cemetery in Dun Laoghaire, an indexing of the Memorial Inscriptions to be published; and 3) working toward opening a research centre in Dun Laoghaire for use by all. This group is doing what we hope all areas in Ireland will eventually do. Mr. Merrigan promised to keep us informed of the progress of their projects.

CLANN UI DHUBHDA (O'DOWD CLAN) - COUNTY SLIGO - Conor Mac Hale, one of the Directors of Clan O'Dowd (Excuse me Mr MacHale for using the English version but I have trouble typing in Irish not alone talking it, and believe me, I have tried!) sent us a report on their Clan Gathering of 1992, complete with newspaper clippings and a picture of all the O'Dowds who gathered in Enniscrone, County Sligo. He also donated three publications on the O'Dubhda & Egan clans which are listed in the donations.

CLAN REUNIONS - Speaking of Clans, we have written Ireland for information on their 1993 Clan Reunions schedule. Last year we received the list too late to publish. We do have addresses for contacts for some Clan groups that we can mail you (SASE please) but have no other information to date.

COUNTY GALWAY WEST - The County Galway Family History Society has a new address. It is Venture Centre, Liosbaun Estate, Tuam Road, Galway, Ireland. Kathryn Smith tried to find the centre at the old address this summer so shared the new one with us.

By highlighting records I was interested in and pressing "F8" I got even more detail on each of the records and the film number for the record' part of which is reproduced below:

Catholic Church, St. Joseph (Lamberton, Minnesota)
Church records,,1898-1990                          Film No.

Marriage                            1899-1925      1728520

I was able to print out this information myself from the screen on a printer attached to the computer for the nominal sum of 5 cents per page.

Topic No. 11, vital records had only one item, so I highlighted it and pressed "F8" for full display. The computer came up with a full listing under that topic of birth, death and marriage records beginning for the most part about 1864. It also had indexes, sometimes on the same film with the records, sometimes on separate films. I looked at film #132160, an index to birth records. This index was a microfilm of the original bound book with separate pages for each letter of the alphabet. The births were entered by hand chronologically. I knew my cousins were born in the first 10 years of the 20th century, so it was not too difficult to find David Francis Baskfield born Dec. 18, 1903 and Raymond Baskfield born Nov. 13, 1905 with their parents' names. The index gave a reference to a volume and page. I transferred my attention to film 1321601 where I found the microfilm copy of the original registration. I was able to make a microfilm copy of it.

Moving on to church records, the computer produced a short description of five records. I searched record #2 for St. Joseph Catholic Church in Lamberton. I had to reel all the way to item #8, but there were baptismal records for "Raimundum Vincentium" and "David Franciscum" with dates and sponsors. (Special note: some of the church records on this film #1728357 had a treasure trove of information containing confirmation classes and cemetery records also. The New Ulm Catholic Archdiocese has allowed LDS to film the records.)

The advantage of this method over sending for individual records is that if you aren't sure of the search area, you can do a wider search without writing for individual certificates. This is particularly worthwhile if you expect to find more than one family record in the county. If you do not need a certified copy, the microfilm of the original is very satisfactory — even more so because you found it yourself — with a little help from a computer and a great deal of help from LDS. It relieves the tedium of rolling through yards of microfilm when you finally find the record. There it is in the spidery or copper plate handwriting, and maybe there is an extra clue. In all the records I had previously searched, the name of my grandfather's brother's name had been written "Michael H. Baskfield. The middle name was never spelled out until I found it on his oldest daughter's birth record, Michael Henry Baskfield.

Best of all, you do not have to be in Salt Lake City at the Family History Library to do this. After looking up the film number on the computer or microfiche, for a $3.00 fee you can order a copy sent to your nearest Family History Center (FHC) and read the film on their readers.

You can also get the same information I found using the computer from the microfiche under Minnesota, Redwood County. Some people prefer the microfiche because of their familiarity with it, but it does not have the quick-sort capabilities of the computer.

There is a death index for Hennepin County, Minnesota on 123 reels that covers deaths from 1870 to 1959. The index in this case is made up of index cards on a microfilm, one card for each person. It gives name, date and place of death. A good, quick aid. There are birth records from 1870-1915.

For Ramsey County there are birth records from 1870-1914, death records from 1870-1914.

I also found records for Benton, Cottonwood, Anoka, Dakota and Goodhue counties in Minnesota. Of course they do not have records on every county, but there's more than you may think just waiting for you to find. Making use of this good, quick aid might speed up your research even if you have to send for the films and wait two to three weeks. You may find records you were not aware of.

Good hunting.

Helen D. Dotts of Yucca Valley, CA has shared her experience of writing to a Parish Centre in Mallow, Co. Cork, Ireland:

"When I wrote last year, they did not have the information but they are indexing Co. Cork Registers. When they did complete it, they wrote to me. It costs 10 pounds for the search and one pound each for the record found. I paid $40.00 for what I learned, but it is my great-grandfather, who moved to Vassalborough, Maine in 1866 and his wife's parents. I was very pleased to receive this."

SOME RESEARCH OPTIONS

by Dr. S. Chris O'Mahoney, Director, LIMERICK REGIONAL ARCHIVES

I have been asked to address a specific category of person. You are an American, interested in doing research or having research done in Ireland on your Irish Catholic ancestor of pre-1864 vintage (cut off point for the existence of civil records). You are wondering about your options: Does one write to the clergy for information? Can one go over there and study the parish records personally? Whose permission is required and how does one obtain it? Is it better to have someone else do the research and, if so, who?

I'm supposed to stop your wondering!

Before I try, it must be said that on one cannot advise individuals fully until their particular circumstances are known. All I can do is lay down a few guidelines, looking at the options open to you in various circumstances.

Before you start!

First, a word of advice to all categories: DO NOT USE IRELAND AS A SHORT-CUT. It sounds superfluous to tell you to do the American history of your family first, but many go straight from the thought "I'm Irish" to "Where can I find my ancestors?", with no more than a preliminary chat with next of kin. So, we spend time trying to find a record in Ireland of marriages which took place in America, or explaining how impossible it is to find Mary Murphy unless you know something which distinguishes her from others of the same name. Before you think of research in Ireland you must have two things clear about your ancestor: What county in Ireland they cam from, and the name of their parents or some sibling(s). Unless you have a very unusual name, it is pointless to proceed until that much is clear.

You know the parish?

Some people are lucky enough to even know the parish they came from. The temptation is to write to the pastor. The most important source of information is the church record of baptism and marriage, and he has it. The most natural thing in the world, therefore, is to write and get the information from him. It's cheaper too. The saying that "you get what you pay for" is not always true, but it is relevant here. Remember, the priest (or the sacristan who he often passes the letter on to) will usually look up the piece of information

From The President – Beth Mullinax

As I write this, we are preparing for a great St. Patrick's Day celebration in St. Paul. As you read this, the Day will be long over. I hope your had a grand one!

Retirement is great, but takes a little getting use to. It took me at least three or four days! Don't know how I ever had time to work.

Beth Mullinax

Have several things to talk about. The first being the proposed membership increase. The Board has discussed this for almost a year now, weighing all the pros and cons. But reality is here, and costs have been going up continually. Our last increase to $10 per year, was effective 1 January 1989. Since then there has been an increase in postage as well as printing of the newsletter. We have been able to continue at the current rate by almost eliminating purchasing of library materials. You members and the publishing companies have been most generous in donations so our library has continued to grow, but there are some things that we need to purchase. Also, we are paying half the cost of the Estate Records research in the National Archives in Dublin. We hope that you will all agree to the increase and understand the need to do so.

Some members have asked about membership cards. We have never given them out, just another expense we thought. However, some members want one to use when going into a library that requires proof of your "genealogy" connections. We now have them but will not send them out unless requested. If you wish one, send an SASE with your renewal or with a note, and we'll get one out to you. The label on your newsletter states your official renewal date for those who do not need a card.

You may have noticed our name change to Irish Genealogical Society, Intl. (IGSI). The reason for this is that there are several Irish Genealogical Societies (IGS's) and we have applied for a copyright for both our name and for THE SEPTS name on the newsletter. No one has a copyright for either IGS or IGSI and if our copyright is granted, we could require anyone using IGS to stop doing so. We didn't want to do this, so we added the Intl. to distinguish ourselves from them. Also, we are international with members in Canada, Ireland, England, Australia and The Netherlands as well as the US.

We are preparing, or I should Joe Huber is preparing, the information for our 1993 IGSI Surname Interest List. I cannot express to you the importance of completing the information on your surnames as thoroughly as possible. PRINT or TYPE the information. If you have a location in Ireland, enter it, at least the county. Also, the place(s) in the US and/or Canada are important. If I'm looking for a Sullivan connection, I look for County Kerry and Ontario and/or Minnesota which eliminates many, many other entries in the list! As I've stated earlier, many of us have found relatives through this surname list, myself included. The more thorough you are in your information, the better chance you have of finding a connection out there. Also, if you find a new surname or location, just let us know and it will be added to the surname list and published in the next newsletter.

Speaking of the surname list, many members have written and said that their surnames were not in the last newsletter. Your names are only printed in the first newsletter after you join IGSI or when you add or change any of your surnames. We are averaging 22 pages of NEW surnames each newsletter, that is 88 pages per year. We had 97 pages in our 1992 surname list. Imagine the size of our newsletter if we published EVERY surname in each newsletter! We'd have to increase your dues to $45 per year! All surnames of current IGSI members will be published in the 1993 publication but remember, we can only publish what you send us. Also, sometimes we cannot make out the correct spelling of your surnames. This is an important resource so take full advantage of it.

May you have only pleasant hours
To melt your cares away
And the warmth of Irish Laughter
To bring gladness to each day

Editor's Corner

You don't have to go to Ireland to get the advice of prominent genealogist, Dr. Chris O'Mahoney. All you have to do is belong to the Irish Genealogical Society, International and you have it at your fingertips. We met him at the Milwaukee Irish Festival last Autumn and we were very fortunate to visit with him. He responded to an request for this article and we feel honored to have his expert advice written up for our members.

In reading the kinship article, it inspired me to write 34 letters to cousins I had not contacted yet. I hope the same inspiration will come to you and give you a boost. My favorite motto is, "one letter a week brings the possibility of 52 answers a year". Think, if you did two a week!

Ida Troye

We are going to try to highlight a book in each newsletter, so you will know what the books we have on our book order sheet are all about. There are many more books available and we will send you a list upon your request. We also have a publication on the Irish Genealogical & Historical Research Centres compiled by IGS available on our book order form. These are the centres Dr. O'Mahoney mentions.

Don't forget to send us your query and remember that we have the IGS Surname List available.

An Irish Fact: If you're lucky enough to be Irish... you're lucky enough!

Enjoy

Volunteer Corner

We have been requesting someone's services to become an "historian" for the IGSI. Let's explain that a little further. We would like to have someone go through the old newsletters/pictures, etc. and report what has happened with our organization since 1978. We have attended seminars, put on Ireland tours, and presented quarterly meetings, some of which featured internationally known speakers. It would be desirable, and maybe helpful to someone new, to know of past events. We are thinking of something in the line of scrap books that could include reports, pictures, descriptions of seminars, etc.

It might be fun to have a little corner in The Septs, "Happenings of Ten Years Ago" that the Historian could pick out to report on.

We are open to suggestions and certainly need someone who could spend time on this project, which could be done at home.

requested and leave it at that. If that satisfies you, fine. But most people want a fuller picture and would like to know what to do next. Can one find out more about the family just found? Like where they lived and what they did? Is it possible to go back a generation? Did the other members of the family stay in the locality? A researcher would have cost more, but you would also have received more.

Knowing the parish, one can also come over to Ireland and do the work locally, if you arrange beforehand to meet the priest rather than descend upon him and expect to find him in, and delighted to drop everything to attend to you. Some do - some don't; taking them for granted does not help. One can avoid doing initial research in a parish by consulting the records, in person, on microfilm at the National Library, Kildare Street, Dublin 2. I give the address because it is wise to write and ask beforehand whether or not the diocese your parish is located in is on "open access". Some are "closed" and require the permission of the relevant churchman. This is the pastor, if you are dealing with one parish; the bishop if you feel you may need to fish in adjacent ponds. Your Society library will probably have a Catholic Directory, with the correct address, but title and place-name will generally be enough to reach them.

You know only the County.

Most people do not know which parish their ancestor(s) came from. The lucky ones know the county. What you do in this case differs widely according to the county in question. There is really no point in carrying out your own search of every record of every parish in a county; it could take a lot of time and, unless you are experienced in such matters, the unfamiliar handwriting, the Latin in which most of them are written and the state of the old records are such that you might even miss what you are looking for.

Researcher or Research Centre?

This is where research centres come into their own. Find out if your county is served by one (the Society keeps an up-to-date directory), what catchment area it serves, and whether it is providing full or partial service. We are in a transition period of radical change in genealogical research in Ireland. The rate of change varies widely, with the result that some centres are not really ready for research yet (they are busy developing their data base) and some are fairly, or even quite experienced. Some centres are strong on church records, but weak on the useful secondary sources, such as Tithe Applotment Books, Griffith's Valuation and 1901 Census. If you don't know its scope or reputation, ask a centre what it provides and the cost.

As a result of your inquiry, you will decide whether you are likely to get what you want, or not. If you are uneasy, write to a free-lance researcher. One would hope your Society keeps a list of those accredited by the professional bodies for Ireland and Northern Ireland. If not a list is available from Genealogical Office, Dublin 2. The better free-lancers are familiar with a broader range of records than some centres and may offer a better service for certain areas. One cannot generalize; there are weak spots in both systems.

What's different about a Centre?

There are several differences between the National Library (or any other public library or the National Archives) and the Research Centres. In the former, the public (including professional researchers) go in and are given access to records in hard copy or on microfilm. Access is almost always free. That is the way they were set up. If they have what you are looking for, you are welcome to use it.

You will find the church records in the National Library; the Tithe Applotment Books and the 1901 Census in the National Archives. Published sources, like Griffith's Valuation, Trade Directories, Alumni of Dublin University or the Law School in various places. You go where the record is kept.

The whole concept of the Research Centre is quite different. These have decided that for most inquiries, five sources are sufficient: church records, Tithe Applotment Books, Griffith's Valuation, 1901 Census, and the records of the civil registry of BMD. To these are usually added 6 inch and 1 inch maps for the orientation of client and researcher alike. They aim to bring these records (and any others of special local origin or significance) together in one place, index them, and computerize that index. The end result is (or will be) that searches are speeded up enormously, and material is brought together in a way which gives scope for a far more intense study of a family than was hitherto practicable (unless one had limitless time or money). It is a gradual process and progress is uneven. Be patient; Rome was not built in a day.

One difference between these centres and the public facilities is that while the latter provide the public with an opportunity to do their own research, the service offered by the centres is the research itself. They are not geared to people coming in to do "their own thing". They generally have enough working space and equipment for their own staff, which means that the visitor who insists on the do it yourself approach is actual preventing the staff from working. In many cases, the equipment itself is also not within the casual researcher's competence. And one should be mindful of pressure on these people to pay their way; taking away their time, space or equipment is not helpful. Where sufficient space allows it (and management directives are not too rigid), some consideration is given to experienced researchers who want to work on available manual indexes or original records.

Strengths and weaknesses:

The strong points of these centres are their ability to prepare the basic picture of a family — who they were, where they were, what they did - preferably before one visits Ireland, and the local knowledge which will fish out useful contacts or even relatives for you. The ensuing visit is thus focussed on a smaller area, on relatives found, perhaps, or on local memory or those tantalizing local gravestones. When all else fails, there is the great thrill of feeling that you are literally walking in the footsteps of those who went before.

The main limitation of the average centre is that its service is basic: it tends to be limited to what can be done in-house and through contact with the civil registry. For many families, there is no more to be done anyway. No point in insisting for searches of Wills, Trade Directories, etc., when you have been told your ancestor was a farm laborer. The good centre will be able to distinguish cases where it cannot help any more because there is no more help available from cases where help might be worth looking for elsewhere. This is a fruitful area of co-operation between free-lance researcher and centre.

Buying the mountain!

There is one more category of person I wish to address. Between those who commission research and those who want to come and do it themselves, there are those who want to do it themselves at home. A touch of Mohammed buying the mountain!

We are sometimes approached by people who want to buy all the entries for "X" surname in "Y" parish, with a view to studying them in their own time. It sounds like a reasonable request, but we are glad that to comply with it runs contrary to our agreement with the owners of the records. Because, even if we were free to respond, this is not a good way to proceed. Remember, any study which involves trying to relate families of the same name to one another must take addresses (often not given in the church record) into account. It must also seek to identify the sponsors and to learn the significance of their presence. It will inevitably lead, too, to a desire to follow up the female members of the family, all of whom now have different surnames. Must one now repeat the exercise and copy all entries for those surnames and those of significant sponsors as well? The point I am making is that it does not achieve its objective; vital clues are in other records or in other parts of the same record. Best results are achieved when one person tackles the full range of records and provides the full picture, though I suppose it depends too on what you are prepared to settle for.

How to rehabilitate your kinship network

by Robert J. Gregory
as seen in Ancestry newsletter, Vol. X, No. 3

You can rehabilitate family kinship networks, step by step. The process that works out is as follows:

1. Gather as much genealogical information as you can.
2. Gather names and addresses of people of your age group or the one immediately preceding or following.
3. List all names and addresses and send a copy of the list to each, plus information about yourself.
4. Wait for replies and be sure to update the name and address list, attach the genealogy, and recirculate letters to further share and develop any bonds. A "Round Robin" letter is another way, but someone along the way might not reply. It is more advantageous to send a letter to each person on your list.

Success Story

Luck – a major ingredient

My efforts at tracing my ancestry had always ended in blind alleys. Each time I took the stories of a relative and tried to document them, I went nowhere. I was getting discouraged because even the birthplaces and death places given me were usually wrong.

In 1975, my daughter was baptized Molly Marie Conlan at my parents' church in rural Northern Wisconsin. In 1988, while visiting my parents, I noticed a church bulletin in which Molly Marie Conlan was being welcomed into the congregation. I was going to take the bulletin along as a memento of my daughter's baptism but then noticed it was the bulletin from that very Sunday. This was coincidence beyond belief and I had to locate and call the parents of the 2nd Molly Conlan.

In speaking to the other parents, I was led to the father's mother, Mildred Conlan. Although they were members of another branch of our family, Mildred had researched their side extensively and had included my great-grandfather in that effort. Not only was I to meet her and receive a mother-lode of information about our family but was led to meeting cousins in Ireland as well.

This was the impetus I needed to continue my search and I went on to locate at least some information on all of my great-grandparents and some of my great-great grandparents. I've slacked off a bit lately but now have enough confidence to know I can pick up anytime I want to.

If you're getting discouraged, just hang in there. You really never know when luck will become your best ally.

Bill Conlan

TRACING YOUR IRISH ANCESTORS, by John Grenham. Published by Gill-McMillan, Ltd., Goldenbridge, Dublin 8, Ireland, 1992. Available from Irish Books & Media, Inc., 1433 Franklin Ave E, Minneapolis, MN 55404-2135. Also available from IGSI (see order blank in this issue). Cloth cover, 281 pp., maps. $17.95 plus $2.00 shipping. Reviewed by Virginia Mahoney.

This general guide is the most complete survey of sources available that has been added to our collection. It contains a series of maps covering Catholic parishes of the counties. This collection gives us a chance to see how church parishes can overlap into neighboring counties and lists the years the records are available. These are embodied in Part One, which also gives information on civil records, censuses, and land records with good ideas on what one might expect to find and how to utilize the information in your research.

Part Two offers help on wills, emigration, newspapers and registry of deeds. This section covers everything concerning the Genealogical Offices' manuscripts, directories, etc. Researchers at all stages of their abilities will work well out of the information contained here.

Part Three details many areas for working in more specialized materials in places we have little information about.

John Grenham, the author, is a professional genealogist formerly attached to the Genealogical Office in Dublin. He is now a project manager with the Irish Genealogical Project. I believe this book will be an excellent guide to what we might find available at repositories around the research centers, and may provide you with what may be accessible to professional researcher in Ireland.

Reviewed by Virginia Mahoney.

In Volumes V and VI, published accounts from the American-Irish Historical Society, we are privileged again to have an insight into the contributions of Irish citizens to their new country. The Society continues to meet and gather information on the lives of our immigrants - not just names and dates, but detailed events that place them in day to day living. We are fortunate to have within our collection at the Minnesota Genealogical Society Library, all six editions and are looking forward to future editions. Anyone having "roots" here in the earliest days should check these out.

The following descriptions - in their own flyer - note some of the highlights: Patriots Bearing Irish Names Who Were Confined Aboard The Jersey Prison Ship; Irish settlers in Pennsylvania; Early Irish in Missouri; Irish Pioneers in Boston and Vicinity; plus many more in all six publications. It is impossible to do justice to these books in a simple review.

THE SCOTCH-IRISH OF COLONIAL PENNSYLVANIA, by Wayland F. Dunaway. Published and Donated by: Genealogical Publishing Company, Inc., 1001 North Calvert Street, Baltimore MD 21202, reprinted 1992, 273 pp., indexed. Available from the publisher for $20.00 plus $3.00 shipping. Reviewed by Beth Mullinax.

The books begins with a background on the name "Scotch-Irish" and a history of the plantations of Ulster in the 17th Century. The author gives a detailed background on life in Ulster and the reasons for the Ulster migration from Ireland as early as 1608. From 1608-1618 he states that between 20 and 30 thousand of these Scotch-Irish came into the "Colonies", mostly into the western part of Pennsylvania.

The book goes on to tell of Pennsylvania becoming their headquarters and distribution center to different parts of Pennsylvania. Eventually they migrated to Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, the Carolinas, Tennessee, Kentucky, and on to Ohio and beyond.

The Scotch-Irish's politics, law, government, economic activities, religious life, educational and cultural contributions and their part in the wars that occurred are all covered in some detail. In short, the book is a comprehensive study of the Scotch-Irish and quite interesting.

There are few names mentioned so don't count on the book to help you find your ancestors' names. However, it definitely will help to understand them and their reasons for leaving Scotland for Ireland and later, Ireland for the Colonies in America.

A BRIEF REVIEW OF THE SETTLEMENT OF UPPER CANADA, by D. M'Leod, Published by Heritage Books, Inc., 1540-E Pointer Ridge Place, Bowie, MD 20716. 1841 reprint, 300 pp., index, paper, $21.50 plus $3.00 shipping from publisher, book #M415. Reviewed by Ida Troye.

Published originally in 1841 by the author. M'Leod covers the settlement of the United Empire Loyalists and the Scottish Highlanders (at Glengarry) in about 20 pages. The remainder of the book reviews various military and administrative troubles of the early 1800's. More historical than genealogical, however, it includes an everyname index. Remember, you must have historical background to do your genealogy.

BALTIMORE COUNTY LAND RECORDS 1665-1687, from the MARYLAND HISTORICAL MAGAZINE, Louis Dow Scisco, with a new Introduction and Index by Robert Barnes. PUBLISHED AND DONATED BY Clearfield Company, Inc., 200 E. Eager St, Baltimore, MD 21202, 113 pp., indexed, paper (1929-41) repr 1992, $18.00 plus $3.00 shipping from publisher above. Reviewed by Virginia Mahoney.

This book was originally published somewhere between 1929-1941 as part of the Maryland Historical Magazine. The author, Louis Dow Scisco, has patiently withdrawn all names of those within the tracts, complete with information that helps locate the land. When you add to this the names of all those involved in the transaction plus the consideration given and witnesses, you have great information into those early years.

This has been printed now with an index compiled by Robert Barnes. The book has also other information on historical events occurring in the vicinity of this county, which was established in 1659. At this time, Baltimore County comprised all of what is now Baltimore, Harford and Cecil counties with parts of Carroll and Anne Arundel counties.

CAVAN TOWN ROOTS, EXPLORING FAMILY ORIGINS AND OLD CAVAN TOWN by Noel Farrell, Park Road, Longford. 1992, 48 pp., map of Cavan town. DONATED BY Harry Farrell, C/O "Longford Leader", Market Sq, Longford, Ireland. Cost $9.00 U.S. should cover book and shipping. Order from Harry Farrell above address. Reviewed by Beth Mullinax.

This is a great research book for the town of Cavan in County Cavan, Ireland. It includes the 1901 and 1911 censuses for the town, pubs in 1886 with their location and owners' name and address, Electors' List, Slater's directory, Griffith's Valuation and the local newspapers of years ago as well as the present. On the back cover is a pullout map of the town of Cavan, showing the streets and the numbering of houses as it was in the 1850's Griffith's Valuation.

There are many old pictures of churches and of the whole town with accompanying historical sketches. This is an enjoyable book to read as well as being very informative for anyone doing genealogical work in the town of Cavan as well as general genealogical assistance for the whole county. What we wouldn't all give for such a book for the town in Ireland that we are researching! Anyone out there interested in doing Listowel or Tralee, County Kerry?

THE COMPLETE BOOK OF EMIGRANTS IN BONDAGE, 1614-1775, by Peter Wilson Coldham, 920 pp., cloth, 1988. PUBLISHED and DONATED BY: Genealogical Publishing Co., Inc., 1001 N. Calvert St., Baltimore, MD 21202-3897. Available from publisher for $60 plus $3 postage & handling. Reviewed by Virginia Mahoney.

Between 1614 and 1775 some 50,000 English men, women, and children were deported to the American colonies for crimes ranging from the theft of a handkerchief to bigamy or highway robbery. The names of virtually all these involuntary colonists have been extracted from official court records and are printed in alphabetical sequence to form what can accurately be described as the largest passenger list of its kind ever published.

This information has been published in part, previously under the titles of ENGLISH CONVICTS IN COLONEL AMERICA and BONDED PASSENGERS TO AMERICA in separate volumes. This printing contains the previous records plus many more extractions from the courts.

Researchers must be prepared to spend a certain amount of time discerning what is here. It is not a "quick study", the interpretation is more complicated. If your research fits this time frame it is well worth your perusal. Entry arrangements and abbreviations are explained in the introduction.

We are receiving so much information, that we thought we should share it with you as space permits.

OKLAHOMA - The Oklahoma Genealogical Research group will do searches of surnames for $14 each in cemeteries, $12 each in telephone directories and will publish queries for $1 each issue ($4 per year). Write them at OGRG, P.O. Box 171, Stigler, OK 74462. A good source for Oklahoma researches.

BOSTON - The Carroll Genealogical Indexing, P.O. Box 21, Milton, MA 02187, is currently indexing the 1870 U.S. Census. Ward 1 (East Boston) and Ward 2 (North End) are complete. Ward 3 (West End) and Ward 4 (Downtown) were due to be completed January 1993. Their charge is $4 per name, per Ward or $10 for 3 names. They ask that you include name variations with no extra charge for checking these.

NEW YORK - Member Sue Kratsch sent us the following information that she found in the December 1992 issue of Tree Talks, the quarterly of the Central NY Genealogical Society. The article, "Sending Money Home: The Accounts of an Immigrant Financial Agent in Deposit, New York, 1851-1860" The accounts show funds between Broome and Delaware counties, funds transmitted from immigrants to persons primarily in Ireland, with a few entries for England and Scotland. Most entries show the date, name of sender, name and place of residence of recipient, and amount sent. There are about 400 surnames in the index.

NEW YORK - CALVARY CEMETERY - The following members mailed additions to our Calvary Cemetery, Woodside, NY: Ruth A. Robertson, 1404 Rutland Dr, Virginia Beach VA 23454; Norma J. Freeman, 124 Lupoyoma Circle, Lakeport, CA 95453; Theresa Heller, 10 Kenwood Lane, New City, NY 10956; Beatrice Mohr McGrath, 4746 Amarosa St, Santa Barbara CA 93110; and Joseph F. O'Keefe, Jr., 11034 Utah Ave So, Champlin MN 55316-3748. Mr O'Keefe not only sent his names but a copy of the deed for his ancestors' plot. Note: We think we might have someone to assemble all the names we have received and we have contacted the cemetery itself, to see if they are interested in assisting us any way, or at least let them know of our project in case they get inquiries.

MICHIGAN - Fourth Genealogy & History Book Fair, Sunday, May 2, 1993 at the Lansing Center, 333 E. Michigan Ave, Lansing, Michigan. Admission is $1.50. For more information on the fair, write the Genealogical Research of Michigan, P.O. BOX 18144, Lansing MI 48901.

WISCONSIN - Member Clarence N. Heasty, Rt 2, BX 72, Sparta, WI 54656-9622, has offered to take queries from anyone having questions on ancestors from Monroe, Juneau and Jackson counties in Wisconsin. SASE please.

WESTERN US - I read in the newsletter of the Irish Interest Group, Eastside Genealogical Society (Seattle vicinity) about a magazine titled JOURNAL OF THE WEST. Their April 1992 issue was devoted to the Irish in the West and is, in my opinion, delightful. Articles on Irish Ethnic Tradition of Enterprise and Innovation, 1848-1991; property holdings in the West in 1870; the Irish in Utah, Washington State, Denver, Butte, San Francisco; etc., etc. I sent a $10 check to JOURNAL OF THE WEST, 1531 Yuma (BOX 1009), Manhattan KS 66502-4228. I have not had the time to read it all, but will read every word soon. I love history, especially that of the "Old West".

THERE

TOWNLANDS IN IRELAND - Many members write, send in ancestor charts and surname information and list the name of a location in Ireland without a county. We have found that many do not list the county because they don't know it. If you have the name of a place in Ireland and you have no idea where it is, please write us with an SASE, and we'll do all we can to locate it for you. We have many resources available, plus Irish speakers that we can ask. We are usually successful, although it is not unusual to find the same townland in many counties, and several townlands by the same name in the same county! Let us help you. Remember, we are just an SASE away!

ASSOCIATION OF PROFESSIONAL GENEALOGISTS IN IRELAND - APGE's 1993 list of members is now available. Send an SASE if you wish a copy. These are the "registered" genealogists in Ireland.

HIBERNIAN RESEARCH COMPANY, LTD - We have received brochures on this research group also. SASE, please.

AUSTRALIA - There is a new publication in Australia, titled THE 1992 GENEALOGICAL CONTACT REFERENCE. We have no experience with this and if anyone has, please let us know. The cost is $21.95 (Australian $). For more information write D.W. & P. Lawson, P.O. Box 337, Beechworth, Vic. 3747, Australia. We have a couple of brochures on this publication, just send an SASE if interested.

BELFAST & DUBLIN - The Ulster Historical Foundation, Balmoral Bldgs, 12 College Sq E, Belfast BT1 6DD, NI, is sponsoring a conference again this summer. It is titled "Discovering that Elusive Irish Ancestor - the Practical Approach", and will be held 16-19 Sept in Belfast and continue in Dublin on 20-22 Sept. For addition information, SASE please.

CORK - In our January 1993 we mentioned the information on the Annie Moore story. There has been a lot of publicity on the dedication of the monument in Cobh by President Mary Robinson and the one to be dedicated at Ellis Island soon. Ellis Island and Cobh (called Queenstown when our ancestors were leaving Ireland) will be cooperating and exchanging information with each other. Anne Belkov, the U.S. National Park Service's Superintendent of Ellis Island, was at the Cobh dedication. We have included an article in this newsletter on the Cobh Heritage Foundation.

FERMANAGH - Additional information on Fermanagh's Estate Records has been received from our researcher.

MONAGHAN - The indexing of this county's estate records has been completed. We have run articles on our work on these estate records previously. If you are unaware of this project, please send an SASE for information on them and their availability for purchase. THIS IS NOT AN INDEX OF PEOPLE.

MAYO - I must comment on a book we recently purchased for the library. It is titled WHERE THE SUN SETS, BALLYCROY, BEL-MULLET, KILCOMMON & KILTANE, COUNTY MAYO by Father Sean Noone. This book goes through the townlands of each of these County Mayo Civil Parishes and lists information about them and their people. Unfortunately, the book is not indexed. We purchased the book for $23 ($20 plus $3 postage) from Erris Publications, 204 Brian Lane, Prospect Heights, IL 60070. We read about the book in the September 1992 issue of the County Mayo Chronicles.

BRITISH ISLES GENEALOGICAL REGISTER - The Federation of Family History Societies in England is launching a new register in April. It will include the surnames of researchers in England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland. You can enter your surnames into this register for $3 Australian, $2 US and Canadian, or 1.00 Sterling per form (16 surnames)! The register will then be printed by locality, i.e., if you wish only the register for Ireland, you can purchase it and don't have to buy the information on the other countries. We have the forms and lists of codes they want you to use. There is no obligation to purchase anything and you can't beat the price.

CLANS

HULL FAMILY ASSOCIATION - is having their annual meeting & picnic in the Kansas City on 30-31 July 1993. For information on the meeting write Ms. Almyrta Long, 1017 S Silverlake Dr, Raymore, MO 64083. For membership information write Col Robert Hull, P.O. Box 22066, Merrifield VA 22116-2066.

FARRELL CLANN RALLY - in County Longford, August 11-15, 1993. For more information send an SASE to us as we have their cards with details.

O MAHONEY SOCIETY - has been in existence for some time now and publishes a journal. Their subscription price is $20 and their US contact is Mrs. Eileen Mahoney McConnel, 3602 Isbell St, Wheaton MD 20906. We also have addresses for Ireland, Canada and England if anyone is interested.

ULSTER PROVINCE - The Rally of Settler Families (Antrim, Armagh, Cavan, Donegal, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry, Monaghan and Tyrone) will be held September 2-5, 1993, in County Fermanagh. (see below)

O'NEILL - The International Gathering of the Royal Clan O'Neill will be held June 24-27, 1993, in County Tyrone. For additional information on the Rally of Settler Families and the O'Neill gathering, write the Irish Heritage Assn., 162 Kingsway, Dunmurry, Belfast BT17 9AD, Northern Ireland.

We also have information, sometimes just a telephone number in Ireland, on other surname clans. If you are wondering about your surname, let us know. We have published ALL the information on 1993 clan gatherings that we have received to date.

On defining an Irishman —

It is almost as hopeless a task to define an Irishman as it is to give the dimensions of a perfume; for the Irishman is as evasive and delusive, as pervasive and variable in type and character as the sweetness rising from the glowing bed of flowers.

If this society is to have a logical and reasonable plea for existence, if its title of American-Irish is to mean anything, we must reach some solid basis upon which to build our fabric; we must agree upon an acceptable definition of what is an Irishman. After much pondering, this is their description:

THIS IS THE IRISHMAN

The man born on Irish soil, breathing Irish air, drinking in the beauty of the hills and vales and streams and loughs of Ireland, listening to whispering winds of Irish seas, hearing the story and legend of the Irish days long gone, his heart and soul responding to the hopes of those around him, be his father English or Norman, Scotch or Welsh, Dane or Norse, French or Dutch, that man will grow into an Irishman. This is the verdict of history; this is the experience of seven centuries. Let them come from where they will, those who plunge into the Irish Lethe emerge on the other bank Irishmen, better betimes than the son of the older race, more Irish than the Irish.

Conditions, climate, environment are more potent than blood; they are the instruments which which God works. The normal man, born on Irish soil and growing to manhood on it is an Irishman. Carry him to the most remote quarter of the earth, and he is still Irish, AND HIS CHILDREN TO THE TENTH GENERATION.

TRACING ROOTS THROUGH RELIGIOUS RECORDS

by Charles Dickson
as seen in ANCESTRY Newsletter Vol X no. 4

One often overlooked avenue of investigation is religious affiliation of individuals who were associated with various religious traditions and your search through them may prove to be very fruitful in discovering more about your forebears.

This article proceeds to list 161 sources taken from the American Library Directory. Following is the list of Catholic sources:

St. Mary's College, St. Albert Hall, Moraga, CA 94575
Catholic University of America, 620 Michigan Ave., NE, Washington, DC 20013
Barry University, 11300 NE Second Ave., Miami Shores, FL, 33161
Loyola University Library, 6525 No. Sheridan, Chicago, IL, 60626
Loyola University Library, 6363 St. Charles, New Orleans, LA, 70118
Boston College Library, Chestnut Hill, MA, 02167
College of the Holy Cross, College Street, Worcester, MA, 01610
St. Paul Seminary, Ireland Library, St. Paul, MN, 55105
Conception Abbey Library, Conception, MO, 64433
Kenrick Seminary, 7800 Kenrich Rd., St. Louis, MO, 63119
St. Anselm College, Geisel Library, Manchester, NH, 03102
Seton Hall University, McLaughlin Library, South Orange, NJ, 02079
St. Bonaventure University, Library Center, St. Bonaventure, NY, 14778
LeMoyne College Library, LeMoyne Heights, Syracuse, NY, 13214
St. Vincent College Library, Latrobe, PA, 15650
SS Cyril & Methodius Seminary, 3605 Perrysville Hwy., Pittsburgh, PA, 15214
Villanova University, Falvey Library, Villanove, PA, 19085
Providence College, Phillips Library, Providence, RI, 02918
Texas Catholic Historical Society, 16th & Congress, Austin TX, 78711
St. Michaels College, 56 College Pkwy, Winooski, VT, 05404
St. Francis Seminary Library, 3257 S. Lake Dr., Milwaukee, WI, 53207

When conducting your investigation, be aware that there are often numerous subgroups under each of the large religious organizations. For example, there are two different groups of Mormons, at least four bodies of Eastern Orthodox, and several dozen Baptist organizations. Don't neglect the resources which many individual congregations and synagogues maintain on their own families as well.

Céad Míle Fáilte - "a hundred thousand welcomes"

ARE YOU REALLY IRISH?

Terence T. Quirke, Jr. Ph.D., C. G. Research Consultant Golden, Colorado

My contention is that one is not really Irish unless one can prove Irish citizenship. And how better to show one's citizenship than to have and travel on an Irish passport.

Thoughts along these lines were started in 1986 by an article of 17 June on the editorial page of the Wall Street Journal titled "South African Turmoil and Fears of an 'Irish' influx under the by-line of Kathleen Kouril who "writes about Britain and about immigration for The Economist". Since I had cousins in South Africa as well as an Irish heritage, I was interested enough to read the article.

The cogent parts which still apply are these: if at least one of your grandparents was born in Ireland, one can claim the citizenship. "Since Irish citizenship is conferred by automatic operation of Irish law and not by an act of naturalization, an eligible American accepting Irish citizenship is not committing an 'expatriating act'."

The procedure is fairly simple. One has to prove to a handy Irish Consul that a grandparent was born in Ireland and that one is, in fact, a grandchild of this person. Since I was already well on the way in my genealogical research to locating the birth place and date of my grandfather, Michael William Quirke, I just carried on with a little more incentive.

One officially acquires Irish citizenship when an Irish Consul enters one's name in the Foreign Births Entry Book of the Consulate. In my case the address was Consulate General of Ireland, 655 Montgomery Street, Suite 930, San Francisco, California 94111. In order to qualify and satisfy the Consul one must complete an application form available from the above address along with the following (all "long format"):

1. a certified copy of one's own birth certificate
2. one's civil marriage certificate (if married)
3. birth certificate of the parent through which one is claiming Irish citizenship
4. Civil marriage certificate of the parent through whom you are claiming Irish citizenship
5. death certificate of that parent (if deceased)
6. birth certificate of the grandparent who was born in Ireland
7. civil marriage certificate of the Irish grand parent

8. death certificate of that grandparent (if deceased)
9. passport or naturalization papers of the grandparent (if possible)
10. US $177.00 if one is over 18 years old, otherwise US $58.00 11. a large stamped self-addressed envelope for the return of the above documents.

In other words, one must be able to display a paper trail from the Irish birth of the grandparent through to one's own birth. In fact, since my father's marriage certificate was not particularly precise about who his father was, I included his naturalization papers, which were more definite about his father's name and birth place. I think that there may be some leeway as to what precise documents are required; however the result must be a clear and certified pedigree.

Having sent all this data to the Consul via certified mail, one is warned (by return mail) that it may take one year (12 months) to process the application. My certified mail return receipt was dated as received at the Consulate 30 December and my certificate of entry in the Foreign Births Entry Book was dated the next 10th of August (see figure 1) So now I was an official CITIZEN OF THE REPUBLIC OF IRELAND. What a proud moment! (My Canadian wife was, and is, underwhelmed) But one has proved to The Authorities that one is IRISH. Surely this is a major goal of every genealogist or family historian who has been told he/she was Irish or of one brought up as 'Irish'.

The cynics will respond. "So What"? What practical use can be put to? The next stop is to acquire an Irish passport.

The steps here are even more simple. One requests from the same handy Irish Consulate a Passport Application Form, PAS 2. At this point, if one's parents were born in Ireland, one needs to supply many fewer documents, ie, just one's own birth certificate, one's parents Irish birth certificate and one's parent's marriage certificate plus xerox copies of each. However, if one has followed the procedure above and been entered in the Foreign Births Entry Book, one must submit the following:

1. completed form PAS 2
2. two pictures (size and shape specified in PAS 2) both signed by a signature guarantor (clergyman, medical doctor, school principal, bank official, practicing lawyer, policeman, magistrate/judge; a notarized signature is not acceptable)
3. one's certified birth certificate
4. one xerox copy of the first page of one's US pass port (if you have one)
5. one xerox copy of one's Foreign Births Entry Book certificate
6. US $75.00 7. the date when one expects first to need the passport. (processing of applications can take up to six weeks or more in certain circumstances).

I mailed my application on 26 August 1992 stating that I wished to use the passport "in 1993". I received the passport 16 December 1992, 16 weeks later, but plenty soon enough. This passport is good for 10 years (see figures 2 & 3).

So now I am not only an Irish citizen by virtue of having my birth entered into the Foreign Births Entry Book, but I can also travel on an Irish passport. What, besides great personal satisfaction and pride, does this do for me?

Since Ireland is part of the European Community, I wrote to the Irish Consulate inquiring as to what advantages one would have in that regard. Breifne O'Reilly, Vice-Consul, wrote back, "As an Irish citizen, you are free to live and work in any member State of the European Community. It would be necessary to produce an Irish passport as proof of your entitlement to live and work there."

I wrote to the US Department of State to ascertain what problems, if any, might exist as a result of the above dual citizenship. I received three mimeographed sheets printed on both sides. The most pertinent portions are the following:

The Supreme Court of the United States has stated that dual nationality is a "status long recognized in the law" and that a "person may have an exercise rights of nationality in two countries and be subject to the responsibilities of both. The mere fact that he asserts the rights of one citizenship does not without more mean that he renounces the other ..." (emphasis added)

The Department has a uniform administrative standard of evidence based on the premise that U.S. citizens intend to retain United States citizenship when they obtain naturalization in a foreign state ... (emphasis added)

In other words, a U.S. citizen can have dual or more citizenship and will not lose U.S. citizenship unless he/she takes certain additional positive and overt actions, but not by default.

In regards to which passport to use where:

> Section 215 of the immigration and Nationality act (8 U.S.C. 1185) requires U.S. citizens to use U.S. passports when entering or leaving the United States...

For a full text from which the above information and quotations have been taken, write to the U.S. Department of State, Washington, D.C. 20520 and/or as suggested by the Department of State, see Marjorie M. Whiteman, Digest of International Law, Department of State Publication 8290, September 1967, vol. 8, p. 64-84. If one is not a US citizen one should contact one's own State Department (or equivalent) for relevant answers.

So now one is a bona fide Irish citizen! A truly worthwhile result of genealogical and family history research. Who said genealogy was a waste of time and effort?

TITHE APPLOTMENT BOOKS (1823-1838)

This land survey had its origin in an Act of Parliament of 1823 providing for tithes due to the Established Church (Church of Ireland) to be paid in money rather than "in kind", as had been the case previously. The new method of payment involved a valuation of the entire country, parish by parish. The amount of tithe payable by each individual landholder was fixed, based on the average price for wheat and oats in each parish over the seven years preceding 1821. The record of this survey is contained in the Tithe Applotment Books.[2]

The Tithe Applotment was a census of land occupiers of titheable land, giving detailed accounts, parish by parish, of the people and their farms. Note this is not a list of householder, FFolliott indicates that only a small section of the population was included; laborers, weavers, cottiers and all urban dwellers having been omitted.[2]

The Tithe books, numbering some two and a half thousand manuscript volumes, range in date from 1823 to 1837 and vary somewhat from county to county. Each book is set out in tabular form under a number of headings, including the following: Denomination or townland, Landholders or tenants, Area of holding, Valuation and Amount of tithe payable.

The Tithe valuation was the first comprehensive register of including "regular" people, those who were farmers and tenants, as well as the "landed gentry." Its genealogical value is increased by the loss of the 1821 census in the fire at the Four Courts building in Dublin in 1922.[2]

The original books for the Republic and microfilm for the North of Ireland are housed in the Public Record Office in Dublin. For Northern six counties, a card index gives the full name, parish and townland for each tithe payer. This index, arranged by county, is located in the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland. All the records are on microfilm at the Church of Jesus Christ Latter Day Saints (LDS) Genealogical Library (also referred to as Family History Centers). Check the LDS catalog under the heading "Ireland-Land and Property."[1]

Gleanings

From HERE and THERE

GLEANINGS FROM HERE AND THERE AND CLANS TOO!

This column will be short this quarter as we have not received as much input from you members as usual and I still have piles of magazines and journals that I have not had time to go through since returning from Ireland. If you run into some information that you think would be of interest to other members, please share it with us. Thanks!

CALIFORNIA - LOS ANGELES - The British Isles Family History Society of LA is sponsoring the 1993 BIFHS Genealogical Research Seminar August 26-28, 1993. For information write them at 2531 Sawtelle Blvd., #134, Los Angeles, CA 90064-3163. (Sorry that this is late but we received it too late for the last newsletter.)

MINNESOTA - Years ago someone donated a carbon copy of 100 YEARS WITH MINNESOTA'S IRISH, author unknown but evidently done for the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Recently I copied the article onto my computer and printed a copy for the library. The article was hard to read but has lists of names of early Irish settlers in Minnesota, some as far back as the 1830's. It lists the Irish surnames by county and some in the 1850 census. This study is 26 pages long and gives a brief history of the Irish in Minnesota in its first 100 years. Many surnames listed as well as full names so worth a look through if your Irish were here that early. If I could figure out how to index on this computer, I'd index this.

CIVIL WAR BUFFS - IRISH BRIGADE - Robert McLernon, 6435 Bowie Drive, Springfield, VA 22150, writes that he would like to contact anyone interested in the 63rd, 69th, 88th New York, 28th Massachusetts and the 116th Pennsylvania Irish Brigade, 1861-1865. He states that there is an Irish Brigade Association interested in Irish-American military history. Their address is: Chuck Laverty, P.O. BOX 3495, Wayne, NJ 07474.

NEW YORK - CALVARY CEMETERY - This project is still active with our members submitting their ancestors that are buried here. We are contacting the New York Irish History Roundtable who appear to have some interest in the cemetery. Will keep you informed on this project.

NEW YORK - BROOKLYN - CARROLL FAMILY - Jim Meece, 37 Radcliffe Ave., West Paterson, NJ 07424, has published a book on The Carroll Family of 1860 Brooklyn (see Library Donations for full details). He has copies of the book for sale for $5 each which includes postage. He notes that it would cost almost $2,000 to collect this information. If you have Carrolls from this area, this book sounds like a must.

ORPHAN TRAINS - The New York foundling home that sent children on the orphan trains beginning in the late 1850's has opened its records to adult adoptees. For more information write: New York Foundling Hospital Record Information Office, 1175 Third Ave., New York, NY 10021 or Orphan Train Society of America, Rt 4, Box 565, Springdale, AR 72764. (Kansas Genealogical Society, Fall 1992)

ELLIS ISLAND - I have not heard if the computerized list of immigrants coming through Ellis Island has been completed and if they will answer queries. Have you? The last I heard it was due for completion in 1992 but I have read nothing saying it was up and running. I'll write them again but if anyone has used this source, please drop us a line.

THERE

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND - The PEI GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY, INC., P.O. Box 2744, Charlottetown, P.E.I., C1A 8C4, Canada, would be of use to those who had family coming through there. Remember what we say about joining a local group where your ancestors were, even if you just join for one or two years. We are exchanging newsletters with this society.

IRELAND - ROYAL IRISH CONSTABULARY - This was basically the police force of Ireland from October 1816 to May of 1921. IGSI has purchased two sets of microfiche indexing the members of the RIC from 1816-1881 and 1882-1922. This work was done by the Hervey Bay Indexers, PO Box 937, Pialba, Queensland 4655, Australia. (Part 2 alone covers approximately 34,000 names!) They accept VISA, BANKCARD & MASTERCARD and the price for both Part 1 and Part 2 was only $44.32! A nice gift to your local genealogical society.

IRELAND - PARISH PRIESTS - If you are writing the local parish priest for information from his records, do NOT use a name. Some of our resources list the priest at the time of the publication but many have moved on to other locations. Letters are being forwarded to different parishes and in some cases, even different counties! Just address your letter and envelope to Parish Priest, etc. I've done this many times in County Kerry, enclosing a $10 bill, had have received all kinds of information on marriages and baptisms! NOTE: See article below.

COUNTY KERRY - While in Ireland in May I met with Gerry O'Leary of the Kerry Archaeological & Historical Society. Mr. O'Leary told me that Kerry is in process of building a genealogical center in Kilarney. Kerry has been indexing their parish records for several years but to date have not had a center to address queries. This is the reason I have been writing the parish priests who have a copy of the index to their parish if it is completed!

ARCHAEOLOGICAL & HISTORICAL SOCIETIES IN IRELAND - Most of us do not think to join these societies thinking that they have nothing to do with genealogy. I subscribe to the Kerry journals (have all except one issue) and have found all sorts of information in them on history, many times naming local people, as well as copies of maps, etc.. IGSI has all the County Tipperary journals, as well as some from Mayo and Cork. They run about $20 per year and most issue one journal per year. We have published addresses on some of these societies in the past but if you need an address, just let us know (SASE please). I have some information on the Kerry society for anyone interested.

CLANS

CURRIE - The Clan Currie Society, PO Box 541, Summit, NJ 07902-0541, Tel: (201) 228-2286 Roxanne M. Knott.

O'DEA - Dysert O'Dea Castle, Corofin, Co. Clare, Ireland. They had a clan gathering in July 1993 but we didn't receive this info until we were in Ireland. The tour visited their castle and I purchased a book on the O'Deas for the library.

DUFFY - Peter Duffy, Clan Co-ordinator, Lisduff, Longford, Ireland. Tel. 011-353-43-41771. Duffy Clann Inaugural Rally, was held in July 1993 but again, we received the notice after the deadline for our April issue of THE SEPTS.

O CARRAGHER/CARAHER - Write: The Caraher Family History Society, P.O. BOX 129, Sisterville, WV 26175, for membership and publications information.

HANLEY/HENNILY/HENLEY/HANLY/HANDLEY/AINLE - Clann gathering September 11, 1993, at O'Gara's Royal Hotel in Roscommon town. For information write: Hon. Secretary, John J. Hanly, Deerpark, Dundrum, Co. Tipperary, Ireland, Tel: 062-71108.

ROBEY/ROBY/ROBIE/ROBBE/ROBYE/ROBBYE - Robey Family reunion is/was August 10-12, 1993. Write them at PO Box 232, Oxon Hill, MD 20750-0232. This is an English names but I did find some in Ireland.

HISTORY OF THE LANDS AND THEIR OWNERS IN GALLOWAY WITH HISTORICAL SKETCHES OF THE DISTRICT by P.H. M'Kerlie F.S.A. Scot., F.R.G.S., etc., Published & DONATED by: Heritage Books, Inc., Baltimore, Md. Vol. 1 Part A & Vol. I Part B, 646 pp.; Vol. II, 320 pp.. Published 1906. Reprinted 1993. $70.00 plus $3.00 P&H per set. Review by Mary Drury.

"The Galloway district lies in the southwest corner of Scotland only a few miles across Galloway Bay from Belfast, Ireland. It extends from the coast facing Ireland, along past Luce Bay, Wigtown and the shores of Solway Firth to Dumfries, encompassing the modern counties of Wigton and Kirkcudbright. Because it is removed from the main routes connecting Scotland and England it has remained somewhat isolated over the centuries, and has strong ties with northern Ireland. Many of its residents descend from immigrants who fled from Ireland during the great Potato Famine of about 1846.

This large work provides a detailed history of the region, focusing on the landowners and their families. About one-third of the first volume is devoted to a general history of the region and the various ethnic groups who settled it. The balance of the work presents a parish by parish account of the lands and their owners. A great deal of historical material is provided on the many parishes, along with extensive genealogies of the landowners who comprised the middle and upper classes. Working class people who never owned land are not covered directly but the farms and estates where they labored are extensively described as is the general tenor of life in the region."

This is in my opinion an excellent work. As was stated in the prefaces, it was done with patient investigation and comparison with other histories and resources. This work is divided into two volumes. Volume I is divided into two books and Volume II is one book comprising a total of three books. Volume I-A contains the pages 1-320. The first 261 pages are devoted to the General History and pages 263-320 are devoted to the Parish of Kirkmaiden.

Several topics are covered under General History as follows: 1) Early Races; 2) Goidels and Cymri; 3) Romans; 4) Ptolemy's Geography; 5) Picts; 6) Scots; 7) Novantae and Selgovae & Cymri; 8) Brigantes; 9) Attacotti; 10) Irish Scots; 11) Saxons; 12) Angles; 13) Jutes; 14) England; 15) Saxon Rule; 16) Strath-Cluyd; 17) Norsemen; 18)Galloway, An Alleged Kingdom; 19) Galloway Under Kings of Scotland; 20) Lords of Galloway and the Church; 21) Surnames not Possessed by Lords of Galloway; 22) The Succession Wars-Wallace & Bruce; 23) Sir William Wallace; 24) Wallace's Daughter; 25) King Edward I; 26) The Stewards (Stewarts); 27) Religion; 28) Reformation; 29) Cameron & M'Millan; 30) Anglo-Norman Lineage; 31) First Nobility in Scotland; 32) Armorial Bearings; 33) The Language; 34) Legal Government; 35) Description of Galloway; 36) Forts; 37) Crannogs; 38) Cairns; 39) Rocking Stones; 40) Cup and ring Markings; 41) Stewarties; 42) The Tides; 43) Minerals; 44) Forests and wild Animals; 45) Products, Etc.; 46) Game, Etc.; 47) Adders; 48) Galwegian Characteristics & Scott's Novels; 49) Supplement (includes lists of known names of those who accompanied William the Conquerer).

Starting on page 263 histories of the various parishes begin. Included in this section are extensive genealogies of upper and middle class families who were landowners. Again this is presented with comparison to other known previous works. Volume II includes an index of places and names. Some of the names frequently named include ADAIR, AGNEW, BLAIR, DALYRIMPLE, M'CULLOGH, M'GUFFOCK, M'KERLEE, M'KIE, MALCOLM, MAXWELL, MUIR, MURRAY, ROSS, SCOTT, SHAW, STEWART, VAUX. These are but a few of the names mentioned.

The parishes which are listed are as follows:
VOLUME I-A: Kirkmaiden
VOLUME I-B: Stoneykirk, Portpatrick, Kirkcolm, Leswalt, Stranraer, Lochryan, Inch, Old Luce, New Lucek and Kirkcovan
VOLUME II: Mochrum, Penninghame, Wigton, Kirkinner, Sorbie, Whithorn, and Glasserton
This is an excellent facinating reference.

THE WADLEIGH CHRONICLE by Donald E. Wadleigh. Published and DONATED BY: Heritage Books, Inc., 1540-E Pointer Ridge Place, Suite 300, Bowie, MD 20716, 1992, 458 pp., Indexed. Price $31.00 plus $3.00 S&H. Reviewed by Kay Blaha.

THE WADLEIGH CHRONICLE provides the researcher with 13 generations of Wadleighs and affliated families descended from John Wadleigh (born about 1600) in Bristol, England and emigrated in 1632 to Saco, Maine.

The publication is user friendly as it provides an index for each direct descendant, for localities and family names. It also includes a generational Family Listing and a listing of primary and secondary references.

The majority of individual entries include birth, marriage, death, issue, residences and occupation and the person's generational relationship to John Wadleigh. Other information cited when available may be: cause of death, education, military service, spouse's lineage, etc.

If you have a Wadleigh, Wadley, Wadle or Waddle in your family tree, this volume is well worth a glance. IRISH SETTLERS IN AMERICA by Michael J. O'Brien. Reviewed by Kay Blaha.

These two indexed volumes, first published in 1979, may be a valuable resource to researchers who have ancestors who arrived in the United States before the time of the famine.

The volumes contain a collection of articles written by O'Brien for the "Journal of the American Irish Historical Society" between 1898 and 1941.

O'Brien's sources include transcriptions of passenger lists, church records, lists of property owners, extractions of Irish surnames from newspapers, individual obituaries or any resource in localities from Maine to South Carolina, which will document his thesis that the Irish were in America in the 17th and 18th centuries and were vital and productive contributors to the building of this country.

O'Brien took special exception to the practice of calling all Irish immigrants "Scotch-Irish", and in these works he shows us why.

Kangaroo Cousins

From Rosemary Owens, Queensland, Australia

In 1990 I was fortunate enough to be able to travel to Ireland to meet my Irish relatives living in Co. Kerry. It had taken me seven years to find them and they were as delighted with me as I was with them. I was the first Australian cousin to find their way back and arrived only weeks after the first American did the same. In true Irish fashion, my cousins did not bother to take any details from this lady and could only tell me that she came from Baltimore.

This elusive lady and myself are both descendents of John Evans and Mary Moriarty who lived in the Minard East area around the Tralee/Dingle Bay district, in Co. Kerry. They had three children that I know of - John who remained in Ireland, George who was my great grandfather and who came to Australia around 1868 and Mary who went to America. It is Mary's descendants whom I am looking for. I would love to hear from anyone who can help me find my Kangaroo Cousin – that's an Aussie term for a distant relative. I would also like to thank the Irish Genealogical Society for giving me the opportunity to publish this query in their newsletter.

Need help in indexing your family history? Don't despair. Consult "Indexing Family Histories" by Patricia Law Hatcher and John V. Wylie in the June, 1993 issue of the National Genealogical Society Quarterly, Vol. 81, No. 2 by the Society. It is full of good sense, practical helps and numerous examples. If you are not a member of their society, you may consult the publication at the Minnesota Genealogical Society Library or at many other libraries across the country.

COUNTY ROSCOMMON - WHERE ARE THE BOUNDARIES?

Researchers using 20th century maps and other geographic tools to find townland locations in several Irish counties may be baffled and bewildered to discover that the townland of their ancestors is not located in the county handed down through oral tradition.

The alteration in county boundaries in 1898 was determined by the district electoral division, the second level administrative unit of the poor law union, rather than by the more historic civil parish and barony. These latter two units became obsolete for administrative purposes with the enactment of the LOCAL GOVERNMENT 1898 ACT.

As a result of this Act, the County of Roscommon acquired three more civil parishes: Castlemore and Kilcolman from County Mayo and Dunamon from County Galway. So, if you are looking for a townland in County Mayo prior to 1898, it was there. But if you are searching later, it will be in County Roscommon. The map, here, shows where the additional civil parishes are located. We would suggest that if you have a townland in any of these counties that you cannot find, search both counties for the records.

In "A New Genealogical Atlas of Ireland", page 97, the Civil Parishes are listed with the corresponding number on the map. We are discussing no. 10 and no. 27 from Mayo and no. 19 from Galway.

From The President – Beth Mullinax

We are well into fall and looking back, I don't know where the summer went. The Board was busy representing you at various genealogical sessions around this area. We were in Wisconsin at the Gene-A-Rama for a weekend and back to Wisconsin for their great Irish Fest. Then on to the Pan Celtic weekend at Murphy's Landing and a day up in Moorhead for the Family History Workshop XVIII (Minnesota). October brings us to our local Irish Heritage Fest on the 30th and 31st where we will join in the celebration of Samhain, the ancient Celtic festival honoring the start of winter and the forerunner of our Halloween.

Beth Mullinax

It hasn't all been fun though, we've also been working! The cataloguing of the library is almost done except for typing of all the cards (being done by Jean Jenson, librarian of MGS). What a job! She is putting the info into a computer program which does the cards, and will give us a complete list. When completed, we will have an alphabetical list and we will then prepare a list by county in Ireland so we can have that information at fingertip. If you are not in the area to use our collection, we will check it for your ancestors if you let us know what you are looking for, etc.

An updated edition of our Heritage and Research Centers in Ireland publication is ready for publication and should be available for sale by the time you receive this newsletter.

We are in the process of organizing a tour to the 2nd Irish Genealogical Congress in Dublin September 22-29, 1994. We have been asked as a sponsoring organization if we wish to host a luncheon with a speaker. Anyone have any thoughts on this? We would love to do it but working from here may be a disadvantage.

I mentioned in the July newsletter about my problem with indexing on my computer. Several members wrote and suggested specific indexing programs, one of which I plan to purchase. Another member suggested the book, DOS FOR DUMMIES! Was she trying to tell me something? Anyway, I did buy the book and now if I can just find time to read it, I may learn something! Several members offered to index for us and I have taken them up on this. As soon as the indexes are received I will share the information with you and then we can offer to check for your surnames, if appropriate.

Please keep your letters with suggestions and information coming. We couldn't survive without the help of ALL our members. We have some great plans in the works which I will share with you when they are a little more concrete - maybe by January!

"Green are the hills of Ireland, and green they will always stay. Warm are the blessings wished for you, and they'll always be that way." Have a great Holiday season!

Editor's Corner

Our feature story this time briefly covers County Roscommon. We are going to try to highlight a county every newsletter to introduce you, in more detail, to the county of your ancestors. If you have done any special research in ANY county, or if you have extracts of Griffiths, Tithe Applotment or church records, please let us publish them in a story of that county. Research will bring us the historical facts, but your input will personalize it and make it more genealogically informative. Please help!

Beth has been so busy since she retired, it is hard to believe she had time to work. She has contacted the historical centres in Ireland and has updated and expanded the book from about 30 pages to nearly 60 pages. This will be available very soon. Heritage and Research Centres in Ireland - revised. It would make a wonderful Christmas gift for any researcher - we have even had orders from Ireland. See the ad in this Septs.

Ida Troye

Speaking of Christmas gifts – check out the book order list this time. Dan has made a special effort to acquire some beautiful gift items. Also, the Third Annual Irish Genealogical Society Surname List is a nice gift.

In a traditional Irish Christmas there are echoes of the older festival of Midwinter. For instance the Hunting of the Wren on St. Stephen's Day, Dec. 26th. Groups of young men, dressed up and playing music, go from house to house announcing that they have killed "The Wran, The Wran, The King of all Birds" and requesting contributions towards his burial. Needless to say, the money is spent on a party, with plenty of music, dancing, eating and drinking.

We hope you have a wonderful Christmas!

ROSCOMMON

THE HEART OF KELLY COUNTRY

County Roscommon, an inland county in the Province of Connaught is bordered by better known counties of Mayo and Galway. It is only 46 miles long and the greatest width is 25 miles. 453,555 acres are cultivated, 131,063 acres are mountains and bogs, with 24,787 acres of water. The Catholic Diocese's that make up Roscommon are Clonfert, Tuam and Elphin. The Baronies of Roscommon are (1) Boyle, (2) Frenchpark, (3) Castlereach, (4) Roscommon, (5) Ballintober N., (6) Ballymoe, (7) Balintober S., (8) Athlone and (9) Moycarn.

In 1821 the population was 208,729 – in 1831 it was 249,613. In the famine years (1845 - 50) they lost 32% of their population to famine or immigration.

The native Septs are O'Conors, MacDermots, and O'Ceilys (O'Kellys). The five most common names shown in the 1855 Griffiths Valuation were: Kelly, McDermot, Beirne, Flynn, and Farrell, with one unusual name showing up – Fairgather. But it is definitely the heart of the Kelly country – four times more Kellys than the next name on the list.

Drum Cemetery, Athlone, County Roscommon, Ireland

donated by Leo McDonald, Mobile, AL 36693

Two years ago the Drum Heritage Group restored the Old Drum Cemetery which contains the remains of a number of Irish ancestors of those settling in the Boston area. Last year the group restored nearby St. Brigid's Well. The efforts of this group has turned an area that was previously overgrown the weeds into a beautiful attraction. Each year a celebration is held at the restored site which attracts many people from the area and visitors from as far away at the U.S. Many Irish-Americans are interested in visiting the land of their ancestors, and those from this area of Ireland will find the gravestones intact, preserved, documented, and a great help in their genealogy.

The group's attention has now been turned to the old Mass paths used by parishioners in bygone days. In olden times pathways were made through the fields with styles fitted into the stone walls, to allow easy access. The paths made their way through the countryside and joined up with other paths as they got closer to Drum. Drum parish is located near Athlone, in the south of County Roscommon. The Drum Heritage Group is the first group to begin to map and restore these ancient pathways.

These paths will be shown on display which will highlight the different townlands and the parish, with each townland's total acreage and statistical figures outlining the population in each townland in 1841 and 1941. Old Irish field place names and photographs of styles and stepping stones on the Mass paths, hedge schools, Mass rocks, some lime kilns, ring forts and other field monuments will also be included.

One of the most interesting features of this display, and one which is sure to command much attention, will be the showing of an ancient roadway which passed through Drum leading to Clonmacnois, an ancient seat-of-learning and monastery, founded by St. Claran in 545. It survived despite the raids, pillages and depredations right down to the year 1552.

Over this period, many noble-men and High Kings were brought to Clonmacnois to be buried. The O'Connors, High Kings of Connacht, were but one branch of the Kings of Ireland who desired Clonmacnois to be their last resting place.

Although most traditions of this ancient road, known locally as the "Pilgrims Road" leading through Drum to Clonmacnois, was often spoken of by the older generations, it was brought to light in recent years with the finding of a gravel roadway 9 feet wide some five feet under the Bog between the villages of Nure and Coolumber, during Bord na Mona bog developments in 1980. At the same time, some oak timber stanchions and beams were found at the water's edge straight across the Shannon River from Clonmacnois. Because of their strategic positions, one must assume the presence of an ancient timber bridge at this point.

So many of the O'Connor Kings and their families were taken to Clonmacnois for burial, that a mortuary chapel was build there, known as the O'Connor Church. This still survives to the present time. Documentary evidence exists in the Annals of Clonmacnois that Toirdelbach Mor O'Connor and his sons Ruadra and Cathel Crodberg were among the benefactors to Clonmacnois. The O'Connors were predominantly of Roman Catholic stock and the last direct descendant of the seat of the O'Connors at Clonalis at Castlerea, County Roscommon, Father Charles O'Connor, a Jesuit priest, went to his eternal reward just a few years back. The O'Connors were not spared in the midst of the persecution and suppression of the Catholic Faith in Ireland in years past. At Boyle, Co. Roscommon, Father Thadeus O'Connor, who it is known descended from the ancient monarchs, a man proclaimed as possessing wonderful innocence and kindness, was hanged in the year 1652.

The display case, holding this piece of ancient history, will be retained by the Drum Heritage Group pending the establishment of a suitable Information Centre and Museum adjacent to Drum.

Editors note: This article was written in 1992 and indicates this will be a annual celebration and it was courtesy of Edward Egan, Drum Heritage Group, Kielty, Athlone, Co. This is the Householder's Index for DRUM CIVIL PARISH, indicating population by head of household. The number shown after "G" is the number of households by that name in 1855 when the Griffiths Valuation was made and the "T" indicates that they are listed in The Tithe Applotment Books. These two films may be ordered from the LDS Family History Center in your area.

DEAR SEPTS

from Brian O'Regan, Ontario Genealogical Society, Ottawa Branch, Ontario, Canada

Once again let me say how pleased I am to be a member of IGSI. The work of the Board of Directors, editorial staff of The Septs, and the efforts of volunteers are much appreciated by this Canadian member. The estate records project, reports on speakers such as Nora Hickey, the Irish Surname Lists, book reviews and lists that I have received as a member are individually worth the cost of the membership. My thanks to you and your colleagues. Perhaps in the coming months I will be able to contribute to your pages.

The material mentioned has been used as references in meetings of our Irish Research Group and in some of my lectures. They will be of particular value to me when I attend the Belfast and Dublin conferences.

Ed note: We are thrilled that our material is being passed on and that it is appreciated. Our goal is to serve and share. We hope that you will share an experience or two. Thanks!

DEAR SEPTS

Here's what I saw

Terrance Carroll, St. Paul, MN

I have often read and heard, through conversation, that there exists the possibility that burial stones might contain valuable genealogical information. This has never happened in any of my searches.

However, while walking in Calvary Cemetery in St. Paul, MN, I came across just such a stone. Although I am not searching a "GRACE" family, I did take this photo to prove that just such valuable information does exist on some burial stones:

IN MEMORIAM
JOHN GRACE
born in Gowran, Kilkenny, Ireland
Died July 29, 1884
aged 60 years – – – – – – – –
MARY
born in Rosenallis, Queens Co, Ireland
Died July 18, 1884 Aged 58 years
They loved one another in their lives, and their death they were not divided. May they rest in peace.

HANDFASTING vs. MARRIAGE

The letters "H/F" may be found beside a person's name on early marriage and birth records. The abbreviation stands for "Handfast". It is basically a sign of the confirmation of a form of "uncanonical, private, or even a probationary form of marriage". Handfasting was the form of announcing a union between a man and woman who wished to live together as husband and wife before receiving the blessing of the church. The couple would stand before a group of their peers, hold the clasped hands above their heads, and state their intentions. The agreement was good for a year and a day, or until the preacher came to perform the rites of the church. If, at the end of this period, each wished to go his own way, they could do so without ties. Any children born of a handfast was considered legitimate and with inheritance rights.

IRISH FAMINE IMMIGRANTS

If you know the name of the ship your ancestor took from Liverpool, you might try writing the Marseyside Maritime Museum, Pier Head, Liverpool, England L310W. Perhaps 70% of our Irish immigrants changed ships at Liverpool. The Museum could have a passenger list showing the city of origin of your ancestor.

If you have any information regarding Clan Meetings, we need it at least three months ahead of time in The Septs. We were just notified of the O'Mahony Gathering, the first held in the U. S. A., but it was October 15-17 in Melbourne, Florida. If you want information on the next one, contact Eileen Mahoney McConnell, 3602 Isbell Street, Wheatton, MD 20908 (301) 946-6670

JOHN ROWANE, Long Island Chapter Founder and President died on April 10, 1993 in Bethpage, N.Y. He was born February 16, 1922 in The Bronx, N. Y.

We worked with John in setting up the Long Island Branch of the Irish Genealogical Society and found him to be a stalwart charter member. He will be missed.

Gleanings

From HERE and THERE and Clans too!

We've had so many purchases and donations to add to our library list these last two issues, that I will again make this column short.

MIGRATION - One of the handouts that we have in the "welcome packet" to new members is titled, MIGRATION FROM IRELAND TO AMERICA 18TH CENTURY. I compiled this information from a book titled, THE EXILES OF ERIN. A new member questioned the last statement of the piece which stated, "One half a million left Ireland each year until World War I." He was right in doing so, it should read, "One half a million left Ireland each TEN years until World War I." I wanted to clear this up for anyone that was interested in migration stats.

NEW IRISH GENEALOGY/HERITAGE NEWSLETTER - A premier issue of THE IRISH AT HOME AND ABROAD was issued in May 1993. Volume 1, Number 1, was issued Summer 1993. The Co-Editors are Dwight A. Radford and Kyle J. Betit. The highlights of the Premier issue were: Record Sources in Ireland; Library Focus (Family History Library SLC this issue); County Focus (Co Limerick this issue); Sources for Tracing Immigrants; Regional & Local Focus: US (Irish in Philadelphia this issue); Regional & Local Focus: Canada (Ontario Vital Records this issue); and Case Study (Peter Duffy of Cahore, Co Londonderry, this issue). I found both issues very informative. To order for 1-year, the cost is $15 (US), $16 (Canada) and $22 (all other countries). Send check to The Irish at Home and Abroad, PO Box 521806, Salt Lake City, UT 84152. Be sure and mention that you are a member of IGSI!

NEW YORK - Calvary Cemetery Project - We are still receiving information to put into our data base. The following members have submitted information on family buried there: John Langton, Staten Island, NY; Margaret Keegan, Stony Brook, NY; Marion Sinnott, Brooklyn, NY; and Nora Ward Finger, Oconto, WI. We are going to publish the data collected to date, probably in the January 1994 newsletter. If you have any ancestors in the cemetery, please send the information to us.

FAMILY HISTORIES - We have received some beautiful publications of member's family histories in the last few months. Among them are the History of the Allison Family, Pennsylvania 1750 to 1992 by James Lewis Allison and Edward George Hlusko (listed in July 1993 issue) and Green is the Valley, Blue are the Hills by Thomas J Crane (listed this issue). Both of these show a lot of loving work in compiling the story of their ancestors and we are most fortunate that they have donated a copy to share the stories with us. Mr. Crane tells his as a story, relating his research techniques, and his errors as well as successes. Great reading!

MINNESOTA - The Irish Heritage Fair is scheduled this year at the St Paul National Guard Armory on October 30 & 31, 1993. Hope to see many of you there as we will again have a booth.

There

MAYO - We purchased a book the first of the year titled WHERE THE SUN SETS - BALLYCROY, BELMULLET, KILCOMMON & KILTANE, COUNTY MAYO. The book is about these three Civil Parishes in Mayo and now Andrew Morris (publisher of Mayo Chronicles) has indexed the book! If you have family in that area and want us to check the index, just send us an SASE with your family names.

KERRY - Received a letter from Maurice "Mike" Murphy, Cahersiveen, County Kerry. Mr Murphy is a researcher, specializing in Kerry but not restricted to that county. We have had no dealings with him other than correspondence, but if you wish to write him his address is The Family Tree, "The Barracks", Cahersiveen, Co Kerry.

Clans

CRAWFORD - The International Gathering of Clan Crawford will be held June 3-5, 1994. For information write: The Crawford Clan Society, 162A Kingsway, Dunmurry, Belfast BT17 9AD, Northern Ireland (Telephone (0232) 622992.

KELLY - Kelly Clan Gathering and Homecoming, in the heart of Kelly country, Roscommon Ireland, on the weekend of September 30, 1994. For details write: Kelly Ui Maine Clan, c/o Michael Kelly, 61/75 Spofforth St, Cremorne, NSW 2090, Australia. Phone/FAX 61-(0)2-953-7422. We have some information from Mr. Kelly that we will share with you for an SASE.

MARRIAGES IN THE ROMAN CATHOLIC DIOCESE OF TUAM, IRELAND 1820-1829, by Helen M. Murphy and James R. Reilly, C.G.R.S. PUBLISHED & DONATED BY: Heritage Books, 1540-# Pointer Ridge Place, Bowie, MD 20716. 1993, cloth, 192 pp., map, $28.50 plus $3 shipping, order #M868. 1-800-398-7709. Reviewed by Margaret Westman.

This book contains close to 4000 Roman Catholic marriages which took place in the Archdiocese of Tuam, Ireland, between 1821-1829.

The diocese of Tuam encompasses the northern part of County GALWAY, the southern part of County MAYO and two civil parishes along the border of County ROSCOMMON!

The book is divided into three sections, groom's name, bride's name and parish name.

The grooms section lists name of groom, name of bride, witnesses, date and place. The brides section gives the name of the bride and groom. The parish section lists only the groom's name.

This book is a rare collection of the few existent records of Catholic marriages for this period. There is one map of the Archdiocese of Tuam with the diocese divisions. It is worth the time spent scanning the lists; you may be lucky and find the bride and groom that you have been searching for!

THE SURNAMES OF DERRY by Brian Mitchell. Published & Donated by the Genealogy Centre, Inner City Trust, Heritage Library, 14 Bishop street, Derry BT48 6PW, Northern Ireland, 1992, 165 pp. Available only through the publisher at this time. However, we are ordering a few copies for resale. Review by Beth Mullinax

Mr. Mitchell has taken the 1989 Foyle Community Directory which lists 1,860 unique surnames found in Derry City. The Introduction gives the cultural origin (Gaelic - either Irish or Highland Scottish, English/Lowland Scottish and 20th century names coming into the county outside of the British Isles). It also gives the surname origins (first name of ancestor, local names, occupational names or nicknames) and brief histories of surnames/bynames in England, Lowland Scotland, Ireland, Highland Scotland and Wales. The Introduction finishes with the "Anglicisation" of the Gaelic names, the 20th century settlers within the county and the top 140 surnames in Derry taken from the Foyle Community Directory.

The book is a must for anyone with Londonderry/Derry County surnames and a very interesting book to read if you are interested in the history of Irish surnames in general. A very interesting approach to surname information. You will find information on Irish surnames that migrated into Derry from other counties with the reason for the migration usually stated. A great addition to the library and our collection of county surname publications.

IRISH CHURCH RECORDS - THEIR HISTORY, AVAILABILITY & USE IN FAMILY AND LOCAL HISTORY RESEARCH, Edited by James G. Ryan. Hardback, 107 pages, illustrated and indexed. Published and donated by Flyleaf Press, 4 Spencer Villas, Glenageary, Co. Dublin, Ireland. For sale from IGSI for $45 plus $2 shipping. Reviewed by Beth Mullinax.

This is a bood that Irish researchers have been wanting for a long time. Not since Margaret Falley's book IRISH AND SCOTCH-IRISH ANCESTRAL RESEARCH, originally published in 1962, have we had such detailed information on the religions of Ireland and their record availability. IRISH CHURCH RECORDS, however, is much easier to use and, of course, current.

The book begins with an introduction by Mr. Ryan. The succeeding chapters are each on a different religion, its history in Ireland, the type of records kept and their availability today. Each religious group is authored by an expert in that particular church's history and records. Current addresses are given in each chapter with references listed for further study.

Available records of Church of Ireland by county are listed with the years available for each parish. A comprehensive list of Presbyterian records held by the PRONI in Belfast are also included as well as the Presbyterian cemetery inscriptions available.

The following church records are covered: Irish Quaker by Richard S. Harrison; Records of the Church of Ireland by Raymond Refausse: Presbyterian Church Records by Christine Kinealy; Chatholic church Records by James G. Ryan; Methodist Records in Ireland by Marion Kelly; Irish Jewish Records as a Genealogical Source by Raphael Siev; Huguenot Church Registers in Ireland by Vivien Costello; and Irish Baptist Church Records by H. D. Gibbon.

This book is a must for any serious Irish researcher. Easy to use and an excellent index.

Céad Míle Fáilte - "a hundred thousand welcomes"

County Mayo – Where is my townland?

The enactment of the LOCAL GOVERNMENT 1898 ACT caused the boundaries of County Mayo to be altered. Civil parishes were transferred from Co. Sligo to Co. Mayo and from Co. Galway to Co. Mayo. In the Septs, Volume 14, No. 4, it explains the Civil Parishes that were transferred from Mayo to Co. Roscommon.

It seems that there is some confusion about the parishes that were transferred because there is more than one parish in the County with the same name. At the end of these articles, we will publish all the townlands that were transferred. In the meantime, we are inserting a map, showing where the parish is, in order for you to understand their location. You will see in County Mayo that there are two parishes of Kilcommon, not remotely connected, so the map and list of parishes is vital. This information comes from "A New Genealogical Atlas of Ireland" by Brian Mitchell and will have the new alignment of the Civil Parishes. County Mayo is on page 85.

Territory transferred from Galway to Mayo (part of the Barony of Ross) was (no. 10) Ballinchalla, (no. 11) Ballinrobe and 8 townlands from the Parish of Ross. From Sligo to Mayo (part of the Barony of Tireragh) the Parish of Kilmoremoy, (no. 48) and 8 townlands from Castleconor. I have these outlined on the map, "Parishes of County Mayo."

We, again, suggest if you have a townland you cannot locate in these counties, you search both counties for the records, depending on the year.

From The President – Beth Mullinax

Another year has past and we all look forward to 1994. The past year has been a busy one with many requests for speakers and/or our presence at a table at some fest or another! Also, a successful genealogical tour to Ireland.

The coming year will probably prove to be busier with the 2nd Irish Genealogical Congress in Dublin in September and requests for speakers and participation in fests already coming in.

Beth Mullinax

I have noticed many dates coming through on Ancestor Charts with births and/or marriages in 1864 or later. This is the year Ireland (all 32 counties) began with their vital statistics! You can obtain a birth, marriage or death certificate from Dublin in the event was in 1864 or later. Church of Ireland marriage records are available in the vital statistics beginning in 1845. There is a lot of information given on these certificates, much more than is usually found on a church record. If you have questions on this, just let me know and send an SASE.

The tour to Ireland for the 2nd Irish Genealogical Congress is ready to go, except for the flight reservations. We have a hotel, the Mont Clare, reserved in Dublin for the 7 nights of the Congress. Those not attending the Congress have several options for that first week. The second week we will spend nights in Clonmel, Co Tipperary; Blarney, Co Cork; Killarney, Co Kerry and Killaloe, Co Clare. Those who have written for information earlier, will receive full info by mail soon, if they have not done so already. For those interested who have not written earlier, please send an SASE with $ .52 postage.

A special thank you to the Board, to all the volunteers who helped out during 1993, and to all of you who contributed to our library collection and newsletter. I cannot name all of you as it would take up the whole newsletter. THANKS!!

May your 1994 be a great year for you and yours!

Beth

Editor's Corner

Happy New Year and we hope it will be a year of wealth. A wealth of information coming to you in your reserch. Every year we ask this same question - what can we do as an organization to better serve you? What would you like to be informed about?

Membership participation was a great contribution to our newsletter. I cannot thank you enough for all your help. Two issues had membership contribution for the front page. That is what this society is all about. People helping people towards a common goal. Please continue to assist us in bringing new information to others.

Ida Troye

This quarter we have one of those contributions. This wonderful work is being done by Mary Caviston Zlobl of New Jersey. We have mentioned in previous newsletters that if you have anyone, or know of anyone buried in Calvary Cemeter in Woodside, NY you should advise us and we would forward it on to Mary. She is putting it all in a computer and this is her first installment. We will try to keep it upgraded in our newsletter as we receive more information. As far as we know, this is the only project of this kind being carried out. The Cemetery organization stated that they are, eventually, going to put it all on computer, but haven't started as yet.

As you can see, we are focusing on County Mayo in this issue and hope it will help you better understand that area. We have had two major contributions regarding County Mayo; one from Florence Myslajek, who was there last year, and one from Peg Harper who tells us about her experience in copying from old records in the Belmullet area of County Mayo.

If you have done any special research in ANY county, or if you have extracts of information, please let us publish them in a story of that county. Your input will make the story more personalized and therefore encourge others to try to keep researching. Please help!

Every new season we have the privilege of being the first to wish you HAPPY ST. PATRICK's day.

Enjoy!

Ida

RETRACTIONS ...

This Editor is sorry to report that two of the recent helpful articles that were used from other sources proved unreliable.

Vol 14, No. 4, page 73 regarding the name of the ship from Liverpool that your ancester might have taken. The Marseyside Maritime Museum DOES NOT HAVE THE INFORMATION. One of our members wanted to try this and made a call to Liverpool, England and discovered this fact. All they have is one ship and they got that information from the National Archives of the USA.

Vol 14, No. 3, page 48 regarding the 1855 Wisconsin Census being indexed and ready for searching. Letters are being returned from the address given, so we are in the process of checking with the Irish Genealogical Society of Wisconsin to see if they can track down a new address.

Please forgive me for not checking these out more completely. I promise to do so in the future. I have learned my lesson.

mayo

the center of Ireland's western world

County Mayo, one of Ireland's largest counties, a coastal county in the Province of Connaught and is bordered by Sligo, Roscommon and Galway. Within its boundaries it incorporates an amazing variety of scenery, ranging from the plains of the East to the highlands of the West. It encompasses 1,355,048 acres, of which 872,000 are cultivated, 425,000 are mountains and bogs and 58,000 are under water.

The Catholic Dioceses that make up County Mayo are Tuam, Achonry and Killala. The Baronies of County Mayo are Erris, Tirawley, Burrishoole, Murisk, Gallen, Costello, Clanmorris, Kilmaine and Carra.

In 1821 the population was 293,112 - in 1831, 367,956. In the famine years they lost over 30% of their population and in 1966 their population had declined to 115,547.

Edward MacLysaght says, "O'Maille (O'Malley) is one of the best known septs of North Connacht. O'Malley is one of the few names from which the 'O' was not dropped." The famous sixteenth century Grace O'Malley, a pirate of reknown, typifies par excellence the maritime prowess of this sept. Another popular Mayo name is Burke with McPhilbin and McAndrew also prominent.

Return to the Land of My Ancestors

by Florence Baskfield Myslajek

The 1993 Irish Genealogy Tour to Ireland planned by Beth Mullinax for the Irish Genealogical Society, International (IGSI) had a dual purpose–to visit heritage and research centers in Ireland, renew our contacts there, and give members of the tour a personal introduction to the heritage centers. Some of the members had written ahead and hoped to have reports ready when they arrived. The second purpose, of course, was to see and enjoy beautiful Ireland.

Both of these purposes were fulfilled. We started out from the Connemara Coast Hotel in Galway on the morning of May 18. I had a particular interest in County Mayo because my great-grandfather William Baskfield is said to have been born there in 1811. I have not been able to find a christening record for him, so I was throwing my net wide, ready to absorb and enjoy everything I could find in Mayo.

As we traveled from County Galway into Mayo we saw green fields crisscrossed by stone fences and green hedges, that enclosed pasturing sheep and cows. Old stone cottages dotted the landscape. The brilliant yellow-orange blossoms of gorse brightened the generally coarse vegetation. We drove into Cong, where "The Quiet Man" was filmed, and noted the main street and Pat Cohan's Bar which appeared in the film. More scenic was the meeting of Lough Corrib and Lough Mask here on the border of Mayo and Galway. We walked through the lovely grounds of Cong Abbey, to see the remains of a twelfth century Augustinian monastery and cemetery by the river's edge

In the old town hall in Ballinrobe we found the South Mayo Family Research Society. The manager, Gerard Delaney, showed us the workroom where young people under a government training scheme are indexing pre-1900 baptism and marriage registers of the Roman Catholic, Church of Ireland and Presbyterian parishes. Although this is the area my ancestor may have come from, unfortunately they have no record of him, probably because his christening antedates the parish records they have. But I took pictures of the manager, the workroom and the entrance marked Ballinrobe Town Hall--1886. The Mayo motto is posted "God and Mary" [with us.]

On the road between Ballinrobe and Westport, I took pictures of the land my ancestor may have lived in. We had a splendid view of Croagh Patrick with gorse on the hill and snow on the mountain. According to legend all the snakes in Ireland plunged to their death when St. Patrick rang his bell above the south precipice. Today it is noted as pilgrimage place where a procession of pilgrims, some barefoot, climb the stony slopes to the church on the summit on the last Sunday of July.

In Westport we had time for lunch at "The Crockery Pot" and a visit to a bookstore, where I bought journals of the Westport Historical Society and local books on Mayo and Sligo for our IGS library. The ancient Gaelic seafaring sept of O'Malley (O Maille) held coastal territory around Clew Bay, near Westport. The most famous of the O'Malleys was Grainne Ni Mhaille (Grace O'Malley) a contemporary of Elizabeth I of England. Grace's exploits gained her a significant reputation both in Ireland and abroad.

Even with an exact address, it is not always easy to find the heritage centers. The Family History Research Centre for Mayo North is located at Enniscoe, south of Crossmolina. As we drove along the road we spotted a brown information sign that pointed the way to the heritage center, located at some distance from the main road in an attractive stone building, originally a farmyard building, donated by the owner. When Ireland's President Mary Robinson opened the Mayo North Family History Research Center in April of 1992, it was particularly appropriate for her to do so in the county where she was born in an area called the 'Cradle of the Burkes,' the president's maiden name.

Our group stopped to visit the small museum and research center which holds card indexes to all parishes in North Mayo. Under the direction of Susan Kellett, they provide partial service. I joined this society and received their publication, "The Deel Basin." (More detailed information on these research centers is available in the IGSI publication Heritage and Research Centers in Ireland, rev. 1993, available for $8.00 plus $2.00 for postage and handling.)

We traveled on to Ballina, checked into the Downhill Hotel, set in an attractive wooded area on the banks of the River Moy, noted for its salmon and trout fishing. With a population of 6800, it is the largest town in North Mayo. We walked the mile into town in the late afternoon and I bought more books at Keohane's Bookstore, a heritage guide, a book on Achill Island and the North Mayo Historical Journal for 1991.

Land of my ancestors

The next day, after an early morning walk along the River Moy, we set out on a tour of North Mayo, which the Michelin guide calls the most remote and least inhabited region of Ireland. We headed north from Ballina traveling through Ballycastle to Down Patrick Head, with a magnificent view of the headland which projects into the sea. Offshore stands Dunbriste, a rocky islet surmounted by a prehistoric earthwork, once connected to the mainland.

We drove along the coast, and then through some deep glens which have been reforested after the forests were taken out by the English. We stopped to walk carefully along the edges of some large peat bogs, part of the Atlantic blanket bog that covers much of the area. The wetness of the peat was demonstrated at close range. Some of us had wet feet when we reboarded the coach. Peat is harvested for fuel by cutting with hand tools and stacking in the fields to dry, or by machine in some areas that are suitable.

Along the coast high on a headland above the Atlantic we stopped at Ceide Fields, an archeological site now under study where they have found remains of habitation dating back 8000 years. The site has been well preserved by the bog that covered it over. A dramatic interpretive building, under construction was due to open in two weeks. Pyramid-shaped, it will be substantially covered over by vegetation, so that it will fit into the landscape. We were able to walk along pathways already constructed to various sites within the fields.

I lunched deliciously on poached salmon in Belmullet, west of Blacksod Bay. It is located in the extreme northwestern corner of Ireland on land projecting out into the North Atlantic. This is part of the Ghaeltacht, the Irish-speaking area.

On this same day we saw one ancient site and one very new. In the distance we had a view of the mountain top said to be a burial place of the first century Queen Maeve of Connaught. We passed by a "wind farm" with modern windmills generating electricity.

As we drove back to Ballina we listened to Brenden Moriarty's tape , "Songs of Mayo" with its musical names of Mayo, ending with "Take Me Home to Mayo", a fitting end to a beautiful day in Mayo.

The 2nd Irish Genealogical Congress

We've had members ask, " What is the Irish Genealogical Congress?" These are my thoughts on it since I attended the first one and will be attending the second.

Three of the Board members traveled to the 1st Congress in September 1991, at their own expense. There were also other members attending, I'd say approximately 15. No one knew what to expect since this was the first Irish Genealogical Congress. Many of us had attended National Genealogical seminars, so thought it would be similar, and it was to some extent. The main differences were the length of the Congress and the fact that ALL the lectures were on Irish subjects!! The Congress is a full six days with the lectures beginning at 9:30 a.m. and finishing at 5:15 p.m. except for the Sunday lectures which started later to give all churchgoers some time in the morning. There was a seventh day (actually the first day of the Congress) which was registration, a reception at the Genealogical Office and the opening dinner.

Another difference was the people!! There were Americans, Irish, Canadians, English, Dutch, Australian, and most other European countries represented. The discussions at meals were sometimes as informative as the lectures! The diaspora of Irish throughout the world, is truly a phenomenon which was very visible at the Congress.

At the banquet we were all surprised to see Mary Robinson, the President of Ireland, in attendance. She is a very special person, and I felt it an honor to have seen her and to have heard her speak. Also, the Mayor of Dublin held a special reception for all the Congress attendees. This was another chance to mingle with all the different people as well as see the beautiful residence of the Mayor.

You may stay in the dorms at Trinity College where the Congress takes place. We stayed there in 1991, and it was a real experience. The College is over 400 years old and the ghosts of the famous, and not so famous, are all over the place. What an experience! No elevators and you must share bathrooms down the hall, but worth the inconvenience. I've had the experience, now I'm for the Mont Clare Hotel down the block from the college with my own bathroom!

We are sponsoring a tour to the 2nd Congress, leaving the US on September 21st to arrive in Dublin on the 22nd for the opening of the seminar. Registration is at 2:00 p.m. so there will be time to rest after our early arrival.

Those who wish to go on the tour, have the choice of staying at Trinity (space there is limited so your reservations should be in as soon as possible) or staying at the Mont Clare Hotel a block from the College. It is less expensive at Trinity, plus the cost there includes breakfast and all your dinners except for the night of the banquet.

The cost of the Congress for the whole week is 75 IRL (Irish Punts). The fee per day is 14 IRL. The cost for accommodations at Trinity plus the Congress is 360 IRL total. Today's cost of one Irish Punt is $1.43 to give you an idea of costs for the seminar.

There will be a total of 57 lectures and you could attend 19 of these, given by the top Irish genealogists and historians. The hardest part of this is choosing which one to attend! Some of the speakers are: William Nolan, Brian Gilchrist, Desmond McCabe, Kevin Whelan, Marie E. Daly, Eilish Ellis, Eileen O'Byrne, Bruce S. Elliott, Tim Cadogan, Donal F. Begley, Thomas O'Leary, and on and on.

A few of the lecture titles are: Irish Links to Canada; Geography & Topography of Ireland; National Library; Birthplace in Ireland from US Records; Outline History of the 18th Century; Pre-Famine Migration to America; Quik Rent Office; Land Records of the 19th Century; Irish Records at the PRO, London; Records of the Former state Paper Office and again, on and on.

There are also workshops for Computer and Family History, Picture Restoration/Document Conservation and Question and Answer Sessions with a panels of experts. Excursions to local sights are available as well as a research advisory service and exhibition and bookstalls!

We have made copies of the Congress's brochure and reservation form and will send one out to anyone interested in the Congress, just send us an SASE. Also, if you have questions, please feel free to write. This is a great experience and I wish that each one of you were able to participate. It is an Irish genealogist's next-best-thing to HEAVEN!

The last day of the Congress is Wednesday, September 28th. The tour will leave Dublin early the next morning for Clonmel, County Tipperary for one night. Then on to Blarney, County Cork, where we will stay at Christy's Hotel in the Blarney Woolen Mills complex for

Not much information received for this newsletter except for the clan gatherings scheduled to date for 1994.

HERE

NEW YORK - Calvary Cemetery Project. Have some good news on this and some bad!. First the bad. Mary Caviston Zlobl who is putting the project on her computer for us, offered to index the whole cemetery. The cemetery said no, that they couldn't let anyone into their records except their employees. But the good news is that they plan on putting it on the computer themselves. Let's hope that it will be soon. Mary has done a beautiful job on the records received from our members to date, and more are coming in weekly.

THERE

DUBLIN - The 2nd Irish Genealogical Congress in Dublin will take place September 22 - 28, 1994. I will be taking a tour there which is mentioned in the President's letter. If you wish to go on your own, I do have some of the reservation forms. Just send an SASE.

ROSCOMMON - A South Roscommon research group have just published their first journal, the GROUP. The Old Taughmaconnel Society and Family History Group are researching families from Roscommon. Their journal contains information on how to trace your family tree in Ireland. The journal will be issued quarterly. Subscription cost is 15 Irish pounds per year. For information contact, Maureen Rendell, Eskerbeg, Bealnamullia, Athlone, County Roscommon, Ireland. They listed about 120 surnames that they will be publishing information on in their future journals.

NORTHERN IRELAND - HOW TO TRACE FAMILY HISTORY IN NORTHERN IRELAND by Kathleen Neill. Published by the Irish Heritage Assn. We have purchased copies of this book for resale. The cost is $30 plus $2.00 shipping. Send your order to IGSI. There is more information on this book under Library section.

Book Reviews

CLANS AND FAMILIES OF IRELAND, The Heritage and Heraldry of Irish Families, by John Grenham, a professional genealogist and author of the 1992 TRACING YOUR IRISH ANCESTORS. Published and Donated By: The Wellfleet Press, 110 Enterprise Ave., Secaucus, NJ 07094, 1993, clothbound, large format, 188 pp., full color throughout, $22.00 with forward by Donal Begley, Chief Herald of Ireland. Reviewed by Dan Moriarty.

"The possession of an hereditary surname readily identified the head of a ruling family and its adherents, and was therefore often a considerable political asset, " writes Donal Begley in his forward. Likewise, the possession of this beautiful book will be an asset to any family, one the family will be proud to display.

The author has set forth his information carefully and in an easy-to-read style. The text with accompanying colorful illustrations begins with the Earliest People and later the Celts around 600 B.C. This section traces the evolution of the most powerful Munster families, set off by stunning full-page photos.

Then follows Christianity, Placenames and Surnames with a profusion of names originating in the Church. Next comes Invasion, Plantation and War, ending with William of Orange's victories in Ireland, which killed any hope for the restoration of the old Gaelic order.

From there, the book proceeds through the Newcomers and Emigrants, the Emigration and the Famine, Irish America and the Effects of Emigration, Heraldry and Ireland, and, finally, the Clans and Families of Ireland. Each section presents a concise, fresh view of the past along with illustrations that seem new.

In the last section, 200 of the most common Irish names are highlighted, focusing on their origins, geographical distribution and prominent family members.

Begley's concluding words seem appropriate here: "This book will be welcomed by Irish people at home and abroad and will contribute significantly to a greater understanding and appreciation of the history of Irish families."

two nights. From here we will take in Cobh (formerly Queenstown) and Kinsale among other local sights. On October 2nd we leave Blarney for two nights in Killarney, County Kerry, taking in the Dingle Peninsula and the Ring of Kerry. Leaving Killarney on October 4th for Killaloe, County Clare, for two nights. Killaloe is on the River Shannon and close to Limerick City and Nenagh, County Tipperary where we will be sight-seeing. We will leave Ireland and return to the US on October 6th.

If members wish to do genealogy in any of these areas, we will do our best to accommodate them. The places we are staying were chosen for their proximity to Heritage Centers. The Center in Killarney should be open by then.

The first and second weeks of the tour are priced separately in case you do not wish to take in the Congress. Some have expressed an interest in joining us for the second week only. All costs have been set and reservations made for us in Ireland (not for the Congress - you're on your own for this unless you wish us to register for you). A flyer is ready, and some may have already received their copy if they had requested information earlier. Be sure and send an SASE if you are interested.

Hope to see many of you in Dublin, September 1994!!! Beth

THE IRISH ON THE LAND

by Dan Casey
as seen in Irish America, Feb. 1988

Along the Adirondack Line in Fulton County, N.Y. State, between the village of Stratford and Royal Mountain, stands a stretch of forest, interrupted only now and again by clearings of isolated summer retreats or deserted hunting camps. Deer paths crisscross the forest. There is something haunting about the place.

So says, Mr. Casey in his story of an Irish Ghost Town in America. Dan Casey has written more than 70 books, articles and reviews on things Irish. The article was first published in "Adirondack Life"

Along the Emmonsburg Road, washed out logging trails work deeply into the wilderness. Close examination of these roads reveals the outlines of ground walls - about 20 stone walls and ditches, mute testimony to a rural community that survived for a time, then disappeared, leaving nature to reclaim her own. In the midst of this forest a modern green highway marker reads: "The Irish Settlement".

In the 1840's and 1850's a group of Irish immigrant families acquired tracts of land near Stratford, parallel to and south of a line roughly defined by the Middle Sprite Creek. The Settlement, as it came to be called could be reached by three northern roads out of the villages of Oppenheim and Lassellsville. Over a 20 year period the Irish acquired 2,500 acres of lands that were suited for lumbering as well as farming. They soon learned that they must vary their occupations to survive. At its height, the Settlement probably comprised of 20-25 families with another 20 living close enough to participate in the life of the community.

They came to till the soil and to reproduce, as nearly as possible, a way of life that had been denied them in Ireland. They isolated themselves from their non-Irish neighbors, preserving the customs and beliefs that distinguished them from other immigrant subcultures. For nearly four generations, they succeeded in their purposes.

The first families – the Fitzgeralds, Starrs, Tomneys, Gleasons, Donnellys and Wards – cleared their lands and settle their families. By the 1860's the Irish had built a self-sufficient colony that increase yearly in population and acreage.

Our knowledge of these early settlers comes from painstaking research into passenger lists, immigration and census records, church registers, land deeds and newspaper files and interviews with descendants. Since most of the immigrants were illiterate, written records and letters are scant.

About Michael Starr, one of the founding fathers, we know that he left the Townland of Currahasken in the parish of Dromore in County Tyrone in 1836 at age 16. He traveled north to Derry City where he boarded a ship for Philadelphia. His older brothers, Patrick and Owen, followed him to America in 1840 and 1849. Other family members and neighbors came even later. Michael Starr married Ann Tomney, also of Dromore, at St. Mary's Church in Little Falls on 12/1/1851. They had four children. Patrick also married a Dromore woman and raised a small family. Owen had come to America with a wife and five children and had five more born on the Settlement.

The second generation of Starrs intermarried with other Settlement families – Fitzpatricks, Fitzgeralds and Duignans. As the community grew in size and number, the younger members sought work in a butter-tub and cheese-box factory and in the trades and professions. John Starr ran Brownel's General Store in Middle Sprite Barney Starr managed the forge and Owen Starr served as one of the first teachers in the school.

On October 12, 1879, Bishop Francis McNerney of Albany dedicated St. Brigid's Catholic Church. This was the most memorable day in the Settlement's history. Later a added a carriage house and a cemetery.

Though the Settlement was rife with celebrations, "ceilis" featuring music, dancing, card-playing and story-telling, letter-readings and gossip, that had an Ulster Dialect that sounded Scots, and rang with tunes sung in the Irish language, forces worked against the Settlement, hastening its decline. After 1900, lumbering became less profitable and with the westward expansion, farming was becoming more competitive. Young began marrying away from the community, finding more lucrative jobs in the mills and factories of the Mohawk Valley and in other towns.

Within four generations, the Irish surrendered their rural ethnicity in a cultural evolutionary trade-off. But they had come as farmers and they had followed an agricultural style well into the century. One member of the community witnessed the gradual shift of population and recalled that the church had been dismantled in the 1930's and carried away.

Behind the recess marking St. Brigid's Chapel are 45 headstones with Irish surnames. Many bear inscriptions of origin. Not much else remains Still, the stone foundations and ditches that stretch across the Irish Settlement Road are important because they contradict a belief long held by American historians - that the Irish were not basically a rural people. These Ghost Towns are to the region what they are to the American West. They attest that many Irish immigrants became lumbermen/farmers and many Irish settlements like this colony along the Middle Sprite Creek in Fulton County, evince the tenacity of a rural Irish tradition.

One of our members, Margaret Harper of Minneapolis, MN was kind enough to share this experience and this information. Her letter says:

"I copied these names, sitting in Father Rea's dining room from a handwritten book. Father was indulgent about the whole thing, but obviously thought a person could make better us of time than copying names from an old book. As I frantically copied, I tried not to hear the humorous Irish stories being told to my husband by Father. Also, he insisted I stop and partake of an excellent tea served by his housekeeper. The food was wonderful, but as I ate, I kept my eye on that book. I didn't want it to disappear.

If anyone has relatives in the Belmullet area whose names don't appear in this list, don't give up hope. There were many entries I didn't copy. The beauty of these records is that the maiden name of the mother is given and also the townland."

GALWAY – HAVE WE MISPLACED A PARISH OR TWO?

You would think, with 112 Civil Parishes in County Galway, we would not be concerned with misplacing a couple of them. However, if you are looking for a certain townland in a certain parish in Galway, and cannot find the parish, perhaps it was one of those that were realigned in the Local Government 1898 Act and are now in another County.

The Parishes of County Galway map outlined below are the current parishes. In A New Genealogical Atlas of Ireland by Brian Mitchell, you will find Galway on page 55.

A look in more than one county may be in order, if you cannot find the townland/parish that you saw reference to at an earlier date. In our next newsletter we will publish all the townlands that were transferred.

From The President – Beth Mullinax

As I predicted in the January newsletter, things are getting rather hectic around here, but that seems to be the usual any more.

The library is growing by leaps and bounds and there are a few additions that I wish to call to your attention. We received Griffith's Valuation with the Householder's Index for 22 counties. This gives us the Griffith's Valuation and/or the surname index to Griffith's of all 32 counties in Ireland. We've been trying to complete our collection of these for years and finally found them!

Beth Mullinax

Another addition is back issues of the Journal of the Cork Historical & Archaeological Society, with indices 1892–1985. This journal has published some cemetery inscriptions, the reason for their purchase.

Also found some back issues of The Irish Ancestor. We have almost all of these now and if you have any laying around that you don't need any more, please consider donating them to the library. We have the indices for all of them.

As usual, our members are sending in all sorts of information. One such item is a copy of the article, "The Voyage of the 'John Barry'", from Pat Chandler. This is an article on one of the ships that brought the "Robinson" settlers to Ontario from County Cork. I indexed the article by surname. IGSI has the passengers lists for this particular migration which has been indexed by one of our members.

The publication of the Cemetery Interments in Calvary Cemetery, NY, was a great success. Some members may have even found some leads on family! It also spurred other members to get their ancestors "interned" in our list. Couldn't resist that!

We enjoy hearing from all of you, answering your inquiries and hearing your comments. Nice to know that we sometimes can assist you in finding those Irish ancestors. Thanks again for all the donations to the library (I've just touched on a few here), and for volunteering your time and energy.

A special thanks for Bob Masterson, Dennis Riley and William Robinette who are willing to share their years of research with the IGSI members (See Gleanings). Beth Bring Your Questions!

Editor's Corner

Welcome to Springtime! It finally is arriving - I can see the robins hopping around in the dirty snow, so I know it is here. I am excited too, about the enthusiasm with which you are responding to my request for information. We have four members contributing to the newsletter this time and I am extending my heartfelt "thank you" to all of them. It is what makes our newsletter unique.

One of the contributors is David Loftus of Austin, Texas, who went on the 1993 Genealogical Tour and attended the 1st Genealogical Congress in Dublin. He writes about his experience in doing research in Ireland in a very interesting and informative way. He stresses the importance of doing your homework in the U.S. and many of the records he searched in Ireland are available right here.

Ida Troye

Linda Adair Hjelm of Issaquah, WA has provided an invaluable piece on the Ordnance Survey Parish Memoirs of Northern Ireland—21 volumes. She says that if you are interested in ordering these Memoirs, you may wish to write to Familia, unless the townland of interest is specifically mentioned. Thank you, Linda for a very astute article.

Transcriptions extracted from St. Mary's Catholic Cemetery in Fair Haven, VT was contributed by Elizabeth Clark of Charlotte, VT. These are the works that may be of help to almost anyone, and are not readily available, so we are appreciative and look for more works of this kind . Florence Myslajek has again contributed an important article. It is to encourage genealogists to contribute their histories to the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints (LDS) library in Salt Lake City on computer disc that will be entered in Ancester File. In order for our relentless searching to be available to anyone using the Family History Centers to find what has been done on the family, we should all make this one more effort. It is not hard to accomplish and if you are not computer friendly, someone else may do it for you from your records. There is also the chance that you may connect with some missing link.

County Galway was the focus for this issue and there was so much about Galway to report, I could have written 3 or 4 pages. It was difficult to condense it to a brief and to-the-point article. Although it may appear to be a travelogue, my intention was to bring Galway to you in a way you could realize what a diverse and complicated area this is. One of this writer's favorite places to get lost in. Every corner meant something different. Oh well, I reminisce.

Again, I request help from you, the reader. If you have anything special in any county that you would like to share, please submit it. I am keeping a special file for each County and will appreciate anything you can contribute.

Enjoy!

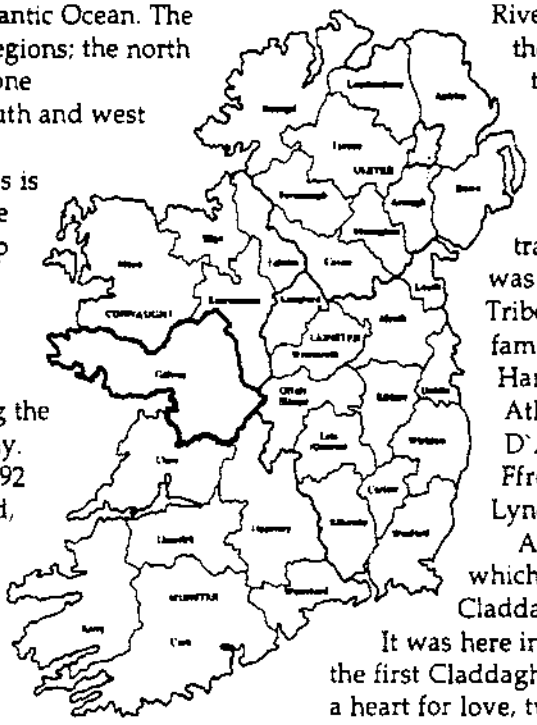
COUNTY GALWAY--CONNEMARA & GHOSTS OF POETS

Galway is the second largest county in Ireland, a maritime county of the province of Connaught. Bounded by Mayo, Roscommon, Offaly (Kings), Tipperary, Clare and the Atlantic Ocean. The county is divided into two regions; the north and east of the line is limestone (Connemara marble) and south and west is granite. Also dividing this county into two distinct areas is Lough Corrib. In the east, the limestone plains where sheep and cattle graze in rich pasture and the villages are picturesque. In the west are hills and stretches of bog with a chain of villages along the northern shore of Galway Bay.



County Galway is 1,510,592 acres; 955,113 cultivated land, 476,957 acres bog and mountains and 77,922 acres under water. In 1821 the population of Galway was 309,599 and in 1831 it was 381,564. In the famine years County Galway lost 27% of it's population.

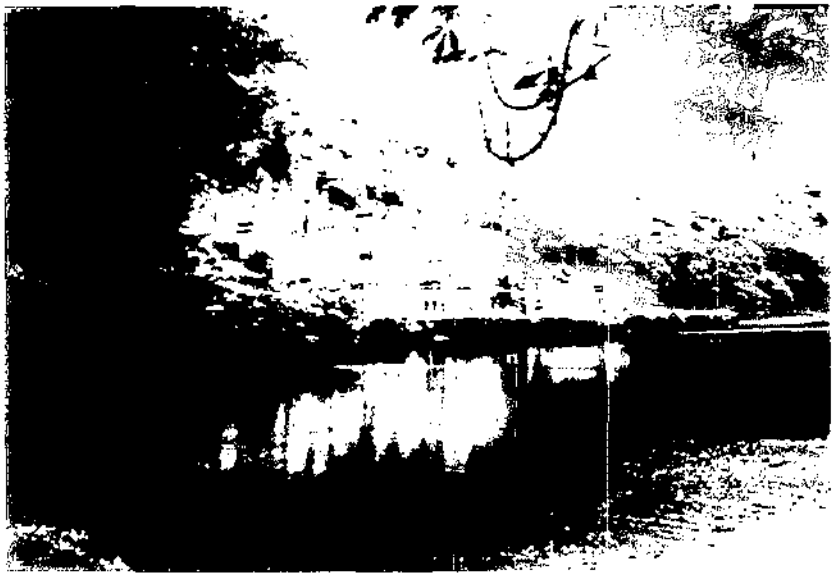
Baronies of County Galway consist of: Aran, Athenry, Ballynahinch, Ross, Moycullen, Dunmore, Galway, Killian, Ballymoe, Kiltartan, Dunkellin, Loughrea, Longford, Clonmacnowen, Kilconnell, Tiaquin, Clare and Leitrim

According to the Illustrated Guide to Ireland, one of the most beautiful places to visit in Galway is Kylemore Abbey. An extravagant medieval fantasy in glistening white granite and grey limestone rises from the shores of Fannon Pool. The mansion was created in 1864 by Mitchell Henry, MP and is occupied now by an Irish Benedictine community of nuns who came from Ypres after World War I. The author can attest to it's quiet, serene wonder.

The poet, W. B. Yeats, The legendary Queen Maeve's burial site and Joyce Country are all encompassed in this place of castles and fairie tales. Ashford Castle, built in 1228 and extensively enlarged in the 1870's was the home of the Guinness family and is an exclusive hotel.

Galway City has been, for almost 1,000 years, a centre of economic importance, due to the River Corrib that tumbles down into the Bay. The city is a natural trading post for inland trading and the European markets. By 1240, the deBurgo family had built a castle here, around which the prospering city grew by trade with France and Spain. It was controlled by "The Fourteen Tribes of Galway" These founding families were according to Hardiman's House of Galway; Athy, Blake, Bodkin, Browne, D'Arcy, Deane, Ffont, or DeFuente, Ffrench, Joyes(Joyce) Kirwan, Lynch, Martin, Morris and Skerrett.

A tiny suburb of Galway City which was the ancient village of Claddagh has one flourishing tradition. It was here in 1660 that Richard Joyce made the first Claddagh ring for his beloved. Depicting a heart for love, two hands for friendship and a crown for loyalty, the ring quickly became a popular symbol for engagements and weddings in the village. Often they represented the sole major investment of a fishing family, handed down from mother to daughter. The rings are made in Galway City and are now popular all over the world.



Kylemore Abbey, County Galway. On the coast of the Atlantic is one of the most serene and beautiful spots to be found in Ireland. It is still used as a place of learning.

Atlantic Irish Genealogy Conference

The Irish Association of Nova Scotia (An Cumann) and D'Arcy McGee, Chair of Irish Studies at Saint Mary's University of Nova Scotia announce a three day gathering dedicated to the study of Irish family research. The event will take place at St. Mary's on July 7, 8, 9, 1994.

Internationally known speakers to appear there include: Donal Begley, Chief Herald of Ireland; Brian Trainor, former director of the Public record office of Northern Ireland; and Julian Walton, director of the Waterford Heritage Survey.

Terry Punch, a well known genealogist and past president of the Nova Scotia Genealogical Society will head an accomplished group of regional experts in presentations on both genealogy and record retrieval, including: Elsa Hochwald, editor of the Newfoundland & Labrador Ancestor, and past president of the Newfoundland & Labrador Genealogical Society, Brendan O'Grady, autor of a forthcoming book on the Irish in P.E.I., as well as Mary McDevitt and Peter Murphy who are experts on New Brunswick Irish genealogical research.

The event will conclude with an Irish Céilí on the last night of the conference. For more information, write: Chair of Irish Studies, Saint Mary's University, Halifax, N.S., B3H 3C3_phone: 902-420-5519, fax: 902-420-5110, or e-mail: cmcgann@husky1.stmarys.ca.

Ordnance Survey Parish Memoirs

During the period 1825-1841 the Ordnance Survey office in Dublin had the intent of illustrating a new scientific map of Ireland. To facilitate the planned publication, questionnaires were created which were to be used as guidelines for the investigators who went into the field compiling information.

Only one volume (Memoir of the City and North Western Liberties of Londonderry, Parish of Templemore) was published before the idea was discarded, even though a great deal of information had been accumulated. Content of each "Memoir" is as varied as the people who gathered the information. Carrickfergus in Co. Antrim fills 1,000 pages, while in other Parishes a single page covers the whole of a parish.

Information that can be contained within a Memoir is as follows:

Character and Morals of the Farmers
Fairs
Character of Mill Workers
Farms Churches and Cemeteries
Gentlemen's Seats
Circumstances of the working class
Longevity
Conditions of farmers & peasantry
Marriage & Family Cottages Dress
Mills
Emigration & Migration
Music
Etymology of the townland name
Natural Features
Modern Topography
Occupations
Prevailing Surnames
Productive Economy
Religion
Remarkable Events
Schools & Libraries
Social Economy
Superstitions Traditions

The following Memoirs have been published and are available from FAMILIA, 64 Wellington Place, Belfast BT1 6GF, Northern Ireland at £7.50 ea. Check with your local bank for equivalent in U. S. dollars, which is generally less then $15.00 U. S.

Vol 1 Parishes of Co. Armagh

Vol 18 Parishes of E L'derry (5) Maghera & district
Vol 19 Parishes of S W Antrim (6) Randalstown
Vol 20 Parishes of Mid & E Tyrone (2) Cookstown

Vol 21 - 42 are scheduled for publishing 1993 - 1997

No further breakdown of locations by volume is available and anyone who is interested in ordering these Memoirs may wish to write to FAMILIA unless the townland of interest is specifically mentioned.

Memoirs for the Republic of Ireland are currently housed in the Royal Irish Academy, however, it appears that they have not been assigned manuscript numbers nor have they been filmed by the Family History Library.

The Memoirs that I have seen are an excellent resource and in many cases list folks who emigrated c 1835-1838 are included along with many other things of interest to a genealogist.

CONTRIBUTING INFORMATION TO LDS ANCESTRAL FILE

by Florence Myslajek

I've often envied people who find information about their ancestors in the Ancestral File of Family Search, the computerized collection of genealogies maintained by the Family History Department of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Salt Lake City, Utah. Last November, when Sharon Bruckner was there with the Minnesota Genealogical Society, she typed her grandfather's name into the search command of Ancestry File. She had done this many times before and gotten no results. This time she was connect to an ancestry file that went back to the thirteenth century in England. There were more than 1200 names in the file and 350 marriages. In genealogy, persistence pays off.

I have found no family member in the Ancestral File yet, despite several tries. I decided, that if I could not find any information that others had submitted, I would submit my own data. At least it would get the Baskfields and the Connells on record. Maybe, just maybe there was someone out there who can use some of my names, at least in a collateral line. At the time I was just finishing up my first major genealogical project, publication of the story of one of my family lines. I had started it B. C., that is, before I had a personal computer, so my family records were not computerized. But they could be, I learned. In genealogy, persistence pays off.

While at the Family History Library in 1992, I attended some classes on using the Personal Ancestry File (PAF), a genealogical management system for home computers. It enables you to enter genealogical information for individuals and families, to search through your records, to print information out on family group sheets, descendency charts, pedigree charts and other forms and records.

From the demonstration, it looked as if it was something I could do, so I bought the PAF program for $35.00, brought it home, managed to install it, learned how to use it, in a rudimentary way, then put it aside until I finished publishing the family story.

Now, I am practicing my skills. I am entering the two hundred or so names in my Baskfield genealogy, adding what information I have on my other lines that have a direct connection. When I finish I will submit it to the Ancestry File on a discette.

You, too, are invited to contribute your family information to Ancestral File, a computerized collection of genealogies. It is part of Family Search, heretofore described. It is available at the Family History Library in Salt Lake City and at family history centers across the United States.

The success of the file, which now contains genealogical information on millions of people from throughout the world, depends on contributions from individuals and genealogical organizations.

If you are interested in contributing your genealogical information, rather than let it languish in your notebooks, folders, desk drawers, cardboard boxes, little bits of paper, etc., the first thing to do is search the Ancestral File at a family history center to see if someone has already contributed the information you have. If so, don't enter it again. Remember, the file only contains information on deceased persons to protect the privacy rights of living persons. For persons born within the last 95 years and for whom there is no date of death entered, the file will only display the word "living".

After you check the file, there are four steps to follow to contribute your information.

1. Prepare your information (you will find it easier to enter if you type from standard family group sheets).
2. Type the information into a computer file. You do not have to enter it in PAF. You can use any program that is GEDCOM compatible. (GEDCOM is an acronym for a genealogical data communication method which allows exchange of data from one program to another. GEDCOM compatible programs are listed in Guide to Genealogy Software by Donna Przecha and Joan Lowrey, available at Minnesota Genealogical Society library.)
3. Create a GEDCOM file on a diskette.
4. Send your diskette with a label giving your name, address and the genealogical program you used to: Ancestral File Unit, 2WW, Family History Department, 50 East North Temple St., Salt Lake City, UT 84150

Most of us want to share our genealogical information. Contributing our database to the Ancestral File is an excellent way to do this. The family history centers and the Family History Library have a four-page information sheet that gives step by step instructions on how to do it.

You can .....

1. Type it yourself if you have access to a genealogical computer program. This is probably the easiest part of genealogical research.
2. Arrange for someone in your family organization to do the data entry if you do not have the equipment, inclination, or the skills. Let them share the work you did by doing the data entry of your research.
3. Hire the work done.

The Irish Genealogical Society Int'l would like to provide an information exchange to encourage members to enter their information in the Ancestral File and share all the valuable research that has been done. So far, two people have been located in the Minneapolis-St. Paul Area, who are willing to enter information in Roots III or PAF on a fee basis. Both of them prefer to have the information organized on family group sheets. They will quote individual projects. Are there others out there?

If you would like to contact these people, so your data can be submitted to the Ancestry File, please send a SASE with your request given below, and we will advise you of their names & addresses. You may then contact them directly and work out arrangements.

Maybe there are even some people out there who would do this as a voluntary contribution for someone who has done valuable research, but who is computer shy? If so, let us know. Write to The Computer Data Base, % The Septs. Let's bring our genealogical data out into the light and share it.

Dear Septs...

From Loree Muldowney of Granada Hills, CA

"I am just finishing my first year as a member and have renewed. I've enjoyed each edition of The Septs. While I have not connected with any of my family, I have corresponded with many nice people and have particularly enjoyed a correspondence with a great gal in New York. Thanks for helping me... but especially, thanks to all of you who put so much of your time into this fine society!"

[Ed note: We love you too!!]

And Stephen Nowotarski, "Thank you for a very interesting and informative Septs. I look forward to each issue." He is from Massapequa Park, NY

Joy Yockey of Montesano, WA has previously written a terrific success story, which she added to recently. She says "I'm forever in your debt! Many thanks to The Septs and the Board. My membership has paid off a thousandfold."

[Ed note: This is what makes all our efforts worthwhile.]

At the Minnesota Irish Festival:

Bro. Anthony M. Baird, F.S.C .says "On your display table you had the book Irish Emigration Lists 1833-1839. Between this book and the information you sent me, I was able to get the naturalization papers for my great-great-grandfather. It was great."

And Mary Madigan of Elmhurst, IL wrote: "We were both very impressed with the newsletter – someone is doing a very good job of collecting, organizing and disseminating information!"

[Ed note. It inspires me to try harder.]

Research in Ireland

by David Loftus of Austin, Texas

The genealogist working on Irish ancestors faces a difficult task. Many records have been lost, notably those destroyed in the 1922 General Record Office fire in Dublin. Other vital records may never have existed in the first place. While the Penal Laws were in effect, a priest could be risking his life when he performed a baptism or wedding and often made no record of the event.

And yet, the opportunity to do research in your ancestor's native land has an undeniable allure. My chance came when the Irish Genealogical Society offered a fifteen-day research tour last May. I would like to share my experiences with those of you who have Irish ancestors and may be considering such a journey. One note on currency—when I was charged a fee for a service, I give the amount I paid in Irish pounds. The exchange rate for an Irish pound (punt) varies constantly and you can inquire at banks for the current exchange.

Before you go, you must find out as much as possible about your ancestors from sources available here. You will probably not have much success in Ireland unless you know in what part of the country they lived—the exact parish or townland, if possible.

Our group landed at Shannon Airport where we were met by our tour bus driver/guide, and began a clockwise journey around the country. Along this route we visited several family history centers which the Irish have established as an aid to the researcher. There is at least one of these in every county, with some larger counties having two. Unfortunately, you cannot do your own research at these sites. The center's staff performs this service for fees beginning at ten or fifteen pounds.

The first we visited served the western part of County Galway and was located in the city of Galway. The director of this center is Ms. Marie Mannion. This center has plans to collect, index, and put in its database all genealogical material in Galway West. To date they have indexed about two-thirds of the parish records.

I requested a search for John Calligan and Bridget Broderick. The Athenry parish records dated from only 1858, twelve years after Bridget came to America. No John Calligan was found in the records they have indexed, and without a specific parish, it was not possible to proceed further. The fee for this search was to be thirty pounds, but after three hours of searching without success, Ms. Mannion graciously declined to collect it.

I also requested preliminary searches at the South Mayo center in Ballinrobe and the North Mayo center at Crossmolina. The fee in both cases was fifteen pounds, with the results to be mailed to me. We also stopped at the centers in Rathmelton, Donegal and Tagoat, Wexford.

When we reached Dublin, we finally had a chance to do some of our own research. We stayed there for three days and the first place I visited was the General Register Office (Joyce House). Here are kept the civil records of births, marriages, and deaths dating from 1864. At least four of my six ancestors had arrived in America before this date. So perhaps the other two, but I had two possible dates (either 1857 or 1867) for the emigration of Thomas Loftus and Bridget Conry. Since they were married in 1866, it was possible their wedding took place in Ireland.

I requested a search for this event. When they found nothing, I paid a fee of one pound, fifty pence to conduct my own search of a five-year period (1864–1868) of records in their research room. I did this to check for records with name spelling variations and to check the records in the immediately preceding years, but without success.

The next stop was the National Genealogical Office—it is best to phone for an appointment. This is a good initiation into Irish Research. For a fee of ten pounds, I received a research forms packet and a consultation with one of their staff genealogists. This consultant examines the information you have managed to gather and advises you of the best way to proceed with your research.

The research forms packet contains forms for (1) civil records of births, deaths and marriages (2) parish registers (3) census records (4) tithe records (5) Griffith's Valuation (6) wills and (7) records from the Registry of Deeds.

The staff expert who worked with me was Maire MacConghail. Since my ancestors were Roman Catholics and had probably been tenant farmers who were born in the beginning of last century and left Ireland in the middle of it, wills and land records were unlikely to be of any help, and the census records for that period were destroyed in the fire at the Public Records Office in Dublin in 1922.

I had already learned that civil records do not start until 1864, which is too late for my ancestors. Some parishes have records for that period, while others do not. Of course, I needed to know which parishes to research.

Ms. MacConghail suggested my time would be best spent checking the index of Surnames, which is a count of a surname's occurrences in Griffith's Valuation and the Tithe Aplottment books by county, barony, and parish. This would identify the parishes most likely to have records of my ancestors. These indexes were available at both the National Library and the National Archives.

The National Library is in Kildare St., about a block from the National Genealogical Office. (Tel.: 01 618811) It is necessary to obtain a reader's ticket which is only possible at certain times of the day, so it is best to phone before you make your first visit there.

I spent my time searching the Surname Index and looking at microfilm of parish records. I regret that I did not have more time to explore the many other resources available including printed books, newspapers and other periodicals (some dated back to 1680), estate papers and rent rolls, Ordinance Survey maps from 1830 forward, and a collection of manuscripts of Irish interest.

The National Archives is located in Bishop Street. When the National Library was not open, I went there to continue working with the Surname Index. Again a lack of time kept me from fully using the materials stored at this repository.

The National Archives, created in 1988 as an amalgamation of the Public Records Office, established in 1867 and formerly at the Four Courts, and the State Paper Office founded in 1702 and formerly located in Dublin Castle.

A sampling of the records transferred from the Public Record Office includes wills, census and tax records, land records, the original books for Griffith's Valuation and the Tithe Aplottment Books, and parish records for the Established Church of Ireland up to 1870. Moved from the State Paper Office were records of the 1798 rebellion, the Fenian Rising of 1867, convict transportations, and other administrative records.

Among the record repositories in Dublin I did not visit are the Registry of Deeds and the Land Valuation Office. Records of property transactions since 1708 are stored there. Its records are complete and available to the public, but you will find your ancestors here only if they were from the tiny minority of the propertied class.

The Land Valuation Office has land records showing the size, value, and occupants of the land-holdings listed in Griffith's Valuation. Since they include the names of tenants, these are of interest to a wider group of family historians than those a the Registry of Deeds, but are described as difficult to research.

A worthwhile stop for the researcher is Herald Artists. This book store offers computerized family history, family crests and shields, maps and a good opportunity to add to your genealogical library.

Shortly after I returned home, I heard from the family history centers in Mayo. The search by the Centre in South Mayo did not find any records of either Thomas Loftus or Bridget Conry. But the one in North Mayo had found two men named Thomas Loftus who both ere born in the 1830's and who both had fathers named Patrick. Since I know nothing else about his birth, I cannot tell which, if either, of these men is my great-grandfather.

The lesson of this experience is the importance of knowing your ancestors' locality in Ireland, and you must determine this information from your U.S. sources. I plan to travel to Ireland again, but I will also be looking for records here, such as parish registers and naturalization records. There are many record repositories in Ireland to explore, but you must not come empty-handed if you expect to get results.

THE MOST COMMON MISTAKES IN GENEALOGY

1. Not using family group sheets and pedigree charts.

2. Not contacting relatives for assistance.

3. Assuming that "no one else is working on my line".

4. .Not using maps of the area at the time your ancestors lived there.

5. Not knowing the history of the area.

6. Not using common sense when reading family historians.

7. Gathering information on everyone by "that" name.

8. Not using the primary sources: land, probate, church, city records; but relying on printed histories.

9. Not making photocopies.

10. Not making a master copy.

11. Not organizing your records.

12. Not paying attention to the clues your ancestors are giving you.

13. Not using your imagination on the spelling of names.

Sixteen Suggestions for finding Maiden Names

1. Marriage certificate
2. Marriage license application
3. Social Security application
4. All children's death certificates if they lived into the 20th century.
5. Copy of woman's obituary, in case her father or any brothers survived.
6. Look for obits of other relatives, such as first cousins, aunts or uncles.
7. Printed church records or marriage records found in books and journals.
8. Unpublished church records or marriage records microfilmed by LDS Mormon Library, as well as those located in other counties and countries.
9. Insurance documents.
10. Woman's death certificate within the last 100 yrs.
11. International Genealogical Index (IGI) found in LDS Mormon Library includes all types of records from around the world.
12. Divorce papers. If great grandparents seem to have disappeared, perhaps they were divorced.
13. Newspaper indexes, which are especially useful in counties where courthouses and/or records have been burned.
14. County histories, often include biographies of county men and their wives/children.
15. Widow's military pension records for any war from which a pension was received.
16. A family genealogy of the HUSBAND'S line.

IRISH PASSENGER LISTS

by Brian Mitchell, Derry, Northern Ireland

OFFICIAL EMIGRATION SOURCES

The only comprehensive and complete recording of passengers on their departure from Ireland are the Board of Trade Passenger Lists. These lists, arranged by year under the ports of departure, detail passengers leaving the United Kingdom by sea between 1890 and 1960. the ages, occupations and places of residence of each of the passengers is given. The Public Record Office, Ruskin Avenue, Kew, Surrey, TW9 4DU, England holds these Board of Trade Passenger Lists. Lists earlier than 1890 no longer exist.

The only official registers of passengers leaving Irish ports which survive prior to 1890 were those kept for a brief period from March 1803 to March 1806 inclusive.

For this brief period lists of emigrants to the United States are contained within the so-called Hardwicke Papers. These lists with particulars of age, occupation and, in most cases, place of abode were compiled by masters of emigrant ships and were sworn before the Commissioner, a Customs Official, in the Custom House of the port in which the ships were to sail from. A duplicate of these oaths were then submitted to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The Lord Lieutenant's permission was required before any emigrant ship could leave port. Earl Hardwicke was Lord Lieutenant of Ireland from 1801 to 1806. The majority of sailings recorded in the Hardwicke papers left from the ports of Dublin (28 sailings), Derry (26 sailings), Belfast (22 sailings), Newry (19 sailings) and Sligo (6 sailings).

BUSINESS RECORDS

Prior to 1890 surviving passenger lists in Ireland owe their existence to shop owners, who kept them for business reasons. The port of Derry is especially fortunate in this regard, having two series of such lists - the shipping lists of J & J Cooke, 1847-1867 and William McCorkell & Co., 1863-1871. These lists generally provide the name, age, and address of the passenger, and the name of the ship.

In the years 1847 to 1867 J & J Cooke carried 21, 199 passengers to North America. In 1847 alone it carried 5,071 emigrants (1,197 (23%) to Philadelphia, 2,210 (44%) to St. John, New Brunswick and 1,664 (33%) to Quebec.

A look at the order book of J & J Cooke, which lists the emigrant's place of residence, confirms that Derry served as an emigration port for counties Donegal, Derry and Tyrone. Of 1,395 passengers carried on J & J Cooke ships in 1850, 553 (40%) came from County Donegal; 363 (26%) from County Tyrone, and 307 (22%) from County Derry; so 88% of all passengers carried were from these three counties.

By the 19th century the emigrant trade depended to a large extent on people in North America paying the fare to bring out family and friends. These "engaged" passengers ensured the viability of the passenger trade for Derry shipping firms in the middle years of the 19th century. For the years 1863 to 1871 the order book of William McCorkell & Co. records the names of 5,184 passengers - all these intending emigrants were "engaged" in Philadelphia by Mssrs. Robert Taylor & Co.

ORDNANCE SURVEY MEMOIRS

In Ireland, as a prelude to a nationwide valuation of land and buildings, is the so-called Griffith's Valuation, the Ordnance Survey was directed to map the whole country at a scale of 6" to 1 mile.

It was originally intended to accompany each map with written topographical descriptions for every civil parish. The field officers of the Ordnance Survey gathered a wealth of historical and socio-economic information for many parishes in their notebooks before the idea was abandoned in 1840.

All the original manuscripts are deposited in 52 boxes in the Royal Irish Academy in Dublin. They cover 19 of Ireland's counties: Counties Antrim and Londonderry contain by far the most detailed information, with 17 and 20 boxes, respectively, of work papers. Counties Donegal, Down, Fermanagh and Tyrone consist of 2 or 3 boxes, whereas the remainder, Counties Armagh, Cavan, Cork, Galway, Leitrim, Leis, Longford, Mayo, Meath, Monaghan, Roscommon, Sligo and Tipperary have only one or part of a box each.

Although these memoirs were compiled a decade before the Great Famine, emigration was already a very significant demographic feature which was commented on and recorded by the compilers of the memoirs.

The memoirs for Counties Antrim and Londonderry were unique in that for many of their parishes, lists of emigrants were compiled for a brief period in the mid to late 1830's. As emigration records these lists are unparalleled. These lists identify both the destination of the emigrant and their place of origin in Ireland. In addition, the age, townland address, year of emigration, and religious denomination are given for each emigrant named in the memoir.

EMIGRATION DATABASE

The Ulster American Folk Park, Mellon Road, Castletown, Omagh, County Tyrone, is compiling an emigration database. This database contains information on all aspects of Irish emigration to North America. It consists of ships's passenger lists, emigrant letters, diaries, shipping advertisements and newspaper reports.

NEWSPAPERS

As the majority of Ulster emigration agents relied on newspaper advertisements to recruit passengers, it is clear that newspapers themselves contain a wealth of relevant information on emigration. For example the Londonderry Journal (new known as the Derry Journal) has been in continuous publication since the 3rd June 1772.

Generally an emigrant ship advertisement was inserted in the newspaper prior to arrival of the ship and it appeared in every issue fill the vessel sailed. Sometimes by signing their names to an advertisement previous emigrants commended sailing on a particular vessel. In Ireland copies of local newspapers will be found in libraries.

Brian Mitchell is an author and editor of genealogical books and Director of The Genealogy Centre, in Derry, Northern Ireland.

IGSI has, in its library, 39 volumes of the Ordnance Survey Memoirs. We also have the books mentioned above.

Gleanings

From HERE and THERE and Clans too!

Notices of different conferences throughout the US and Ireland are coming in (none from Canada to date). We print these, although they are not all of Irish interest, as there is a lot of general genealogical information that is of use to all of us.

HERE

Irish Researchers—The Minnesota Genealogical Society (MGS) has a list of researchers available for anyone interested. IGSI is establishing a list of those who specialize in Irish research, i.e., IGSI's Collection, Griffith's Valuation, LDS Family History Library and Group Sheets. Both of these lists are available for an SASE.

Network of Irish Societies/Groups—We have been collecting names and address of Irish groups to assist members, notify them of speakers in their area and to have some contact to share ideas. We'll add anyone who wishes, or mail what we already have, to anyone interested for an SASE.

Dr. Brian Trainor, Director of the Ulster Historical Foundation, is arriving in the US on May 22nd. He is available for speaking engagements. He did not have a complete itinerary when he wrote, but you may want to contact him at 12 College Sq E., Belfast BT1 6DD, Northern Ireland.

Federation of Genealogical Societies and the Virginia Genealogical Society—Seminar titled, "Four Centuries of Family History," in Richmond VA October 12-15. For further info write FGS, P.O. Box 3385, Salt Lake City, UT 84110-3385.

National Genealogical Society—Conference in the States, Houston, TX, June 1-4. For a brochure write: 1994 NGS Conference in the States, 4527 17th Street, North, Arlington, VA 22207-2399

Calix Convention in Newcastle England—July 15th at Ushaw College near Newcastle Upon Tyne. The group will tour England, Scotland and Ireland after the convention. To get on their mailing list, call 800-398-0524.

Celtic Festival Weekend—Murphy's Landing on Hwy 101 between Shakopee and Valleyfair, Minnesota, August 6th and 7th. To participate or for more info write: Celtic Festival Weekend, 4827 Acorn Ridge Road, Minnetonka, MN 55345-3102.

Gene-A-Rama—The Wisconsin Genealogical Council will hold their annual Gene-A-Rama on June 17th & 18th in Appleton, WI. For further info write Emil Krause, 6083 County Trk S, Wisconsin Rapids, WI 54495-9212.

THERE

Dublin Research—Many members are calling or writing about traveling in Ireland and are interested in researching in Dublin while there. In 1993 I compiled a list of the different archives in Dublin. As far as I know this is still accurate although hours sometimes change with the seasons. I'll send anyone the list for an SASE.

West Cork—Member, Bob Masterson, 12 Blossom Lane, Levittown, NY 11765, has computerized the actual birth and marriage records for the Parishes of Skull and Kilcrohane, Co Clare. The births are 1864-1880, marriages 1864-1870. These are not just the indexes, he has extracted the information from actual records on the LDS films. Bob has graciously agreed to check names for IGSI members for an SASE!

2nd Irish Genealogical Congress—Dublin, September 22-28, 1994. We have brochures for the Congress and information on the tour that we will take to the Congress.

That Elusive Ulster Ancestor—The Ulster Historical Foundation is having a Family History and Cultural Heritage Conference in Belfast & Armagh September 15-20th. You might want to take in this conference before the Dublin Congres. For more info write the Foundation at 12 College Square East, Belfast BT1 6DD, Northern Ireland.

Galway—The Galway Family History Society West Ltd, has published a journal, Galway Roots/ Clanna na Gaillimhe. This is the journal of the Galway Family History Society which hopes to make it an annual publication. Another publication, Inishbofin Through Time and Tide, is available from them. The journal is 4.99 Irish Punt plus 2.50 IP shipping. The Inishbofin book is 9.95 IP plus 2.50 IP shipping. Send an SASE for more info on the books but if you wish to order them, write the society at Unit 3, Venture Centre, Liosbaun Estate, Tuam Road, Galway.

Locations in Ireland—I had mentioned before that if members have locations in Ireland that they cannot identify, write us and we'll check our resources. However, we cannot always find the location name because of the many changes in the name of the towns/townlands. One member, Lawrence Gray of NY had such a location in County Sligo. He then wrote the Sligo County Library who found it for him. We printed some of these county libraries in our publication, Heritage and Research Centres. We have also published some of them in The Septs, but if you need an address, we'll try and find it for you.

Major New Tourist Attraction to Open in Cobh, Co. Cork

The Cobh (pronounced COVE) Heritage Center and Wall of Dedication opens in March of this year. A new development which tells the story of Cobh and Cork Harbor where about 2.5 million emigrated to the United States from 1848-1950.

The special feature, the Wall of Dedication, which celebrates and records the names of Irish emigrants will be of interest to all who had immigrant grandparents pass through that port. For as little as $200.00 you can have your family name inscribed on the wall, to be displayed for posterity. The name will be inscribed on a special certificate for you to keep. All names will be entered in a computer register.

Submitting to The Septs

Submitting items or articles electronically makes production of The Septs go much smoother. This can be done by disk (IBM format) or by modem. Here are a few guidelines:

- Don't indent paragraphs. Just put an extra carriage return at the end of each one.
- Don't double-space between sentences.
- Type everything in regular upper/lower case. If emphasis is needed, supply a hard copy of your file with color coded highlighting for bold, italics, or all caps.
- If you're able to, save the file as an unformatted ("Text" or "ASCII") file with a *.TXT extension. Your word processor program will have a "Files" menu item, "Save as..."
- One column of print will equal a text file size of approximately 2400 bytes.

We are continually developing rules of style for The Septs. If you have any questions regarding these, Call Bill Conlan at 612-227-4050.

County Sligo —Partial Parishes Disappear

How can they just disappear from the records? If family tradition has information that their townland was in County Sligo in a certain parish and you cannot locate it, there is an explanation. The enactment of the Local Government 1898 Act made changes in boundaries of several counties. In our newsletter of January, 1994, Vol. 15, No. 1, we explained how some of the townlands of two parishes were transferred into County Mayo from County Sligo. Hardly seems fair, when Mayo is already 3 times larger, but that was the case.

We suggest that if you have a townland you cannot located in County Sligo, check that part of the parish that was transferred to County Mayo. They were both in the Barony of Tireragh. Listed below is the Territory transferred:

Civil Parish: Kilmoremoy

From The President – Beth Mullinax

This will be my last letter as your president. In fact, you will have a new president by the time you receive this newsletter.

I can't thank you all enough for your support and work during my term. We've had a "grand" board the whole two years and have had a lot of fun along with the work. Wish more of you would join the board, as a committee member or as an officer. You're missing a great learning experience.

Beth Mullinax

You won't be entirely rid of me, as I'll be around working with your new board. Those of us going to the 2nd Irish Genealogical Congress in Dublin hope to bring back some fresh ideas for you.

I'll be traveling around the country, talking about Irish research as much as possible. I'll be at the Illinois Genealogical Society's workshop in October. One of our members will also be giving classes again at the Family History Workshop in Moorhead, MN in September. If you will be in these areas and want more information on our presentations, just send us a note. Also, if you are in the Twin Cities area and wish an Irish speaker, just let us know. We are usually free unless we have to stay overnight, then we ask for a place to stay!

Continue to share your research work with us even if you feel it isn't "finished". Share what you have and maybe someone else will see it and fill in some of your blanks.

Send us your problems, sometimes we can help you. You may be stuck on something that is really quite simple if you knew where to look. A member was looking for a parish in County Galway but couldn't find it listed in that county. When she mentioned it we checked the list of "townland transfers" which was done in 1898. Her parish is actually in County Clare now, so her research will be in Clare, not Galway, as most records were transferred to the new county! We've covered these transfers in the counties we've highlighted in The Septs to date. We have a complete list of them so if you run into a similiar problem, let us know.

The cataloguing of the library is complete except for some "loose ends". We plan on publishing the list soon so the out-of-state members will know what we have. Also, we will have a list of materials available for each county in Ireland. We'll also try to highlight some resource in the library each newsletter.

THANKS!

Editor's Corner

And a happy summer to ye for it is a glorious one for sure.

We have had so many special happenings this past quarter that it is hard to concentrate on what is coming up. First of all you have to meet your new officers in this newsletters. Do you note that we have some new names? This is great - new blood means new ideas and I can hardly wait.

This quarter the newsletter is presenting County Sligo. There is no special story from a member, so it is hard, dry facts, however I think you will agree it is a charming place and worth the effort to acquaint you on the size and diversity of the county.

Ida Troye

My imagination ran wild when I came across the "Sweetman Colony" in Murray Co., MN. I thumbed through the books containing the original naturalization papers, the ledgers, and the land leases and the place came alive for me. Imagine, coming from crowded villages and farmlands to the wide open space of the Minnesota prairie. Sure, they had a house made of wood for the first time, but the loneliness must have been horrible. Well, you can let your imagination run away with you, too.

Attention Riley's—you are in for a treat. One of our readers was so generous as to let us have access to his research of persons of that name in the 1790 census and we are giving you a sample of his work. Thanks go out to him from all the Rileys who are lucky enough to read this newsletter.

I really missed the usual response to my request for any information that can be used to help others in their quest for their roots. Remember, that no matter what county they encompass or what subject matter they are, they can be used an the appropriate time. Keep them coming!

Enjoy!

Attention Riley's

Dennis G. Riley has decided to find all the Riley and variations names on the 1790 Federal Census. So he states in his letter. He states that if anyone wants the computer files, they are free, if they send him a blank disk. (They were done in Excel 4.0) Paper copies are $1.00 plus a SASE for all 17 pages (149 Riley's).

His recent addition are Union Soldiers—Civil War—Riley.

We are going to run some of these in consecutive issues of The Septs. What a wonderful hobby genealogy is that people want to do this sort of thing and then are willing to share it. Thanks so much, Dennis.

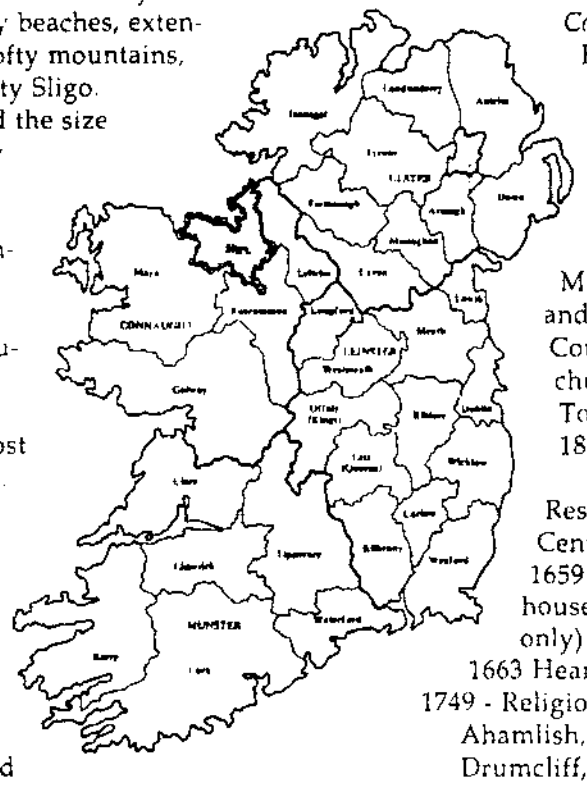
Sligo — Gateway to the Northwest

Donegal Bay is the North's largest sea inlet and most of its southern coast is in County Sligo. Sligo, a maritime county of the Province of Connaught of extraordinary beauty and vivid contrast. Bounded on the east by Leitrim, north by the Atlantic, west and south by Mayo and south and east by Roscommon. If you can imagine beautiful sandy beaches, extensive plains backed by lofty mountains, you can visualize County Sligo.

Only about one third the size of it's neighbor, County Mayo, Sligo is only 434,188 acres; 257,217 cultivated, 168711 unimproved mountains and bog and 8260 under water. In 1821 the population was 146,229, in 1831 it was 171,508. In the famine years they lost 29% of their population.



The Baronies of County Sligo are: Tireragh, Levny, Corran, Coolavin, Tirerril and Carbury.

The Dioceses of Anthonry, Elphin and Killala might, respectively, have been called the O'Hara, O'Connor and O'Dowd diocese, so influential were those names. During the 13th and 14th century the Fitzgeralds and Burkes (de Burgo) became major English landowners. Other outstanding names in County Sligo are: McDermott, O'Gara, O'Hart, MacFerbis and McDonagh.

Sligo town, ancient and full of interest, is the location of Sligo Abbey, founded in 1242 and rebuilt in 1641 and is open to tour. Lissadell House, home of sisters Eva Gore-Booth and Constance Gore-Booth (Countess Markievicz) who was a leader in the 1916 Rising is open.

W. B. Yeats and his artist brother, J. B. Yeats thought of County Sligo as "The Land of Hearts Desire". In the Fall of the year, Sligo town has a music festival that is famous internationally. Resources in IGSI Library are :

MGS Computer Fundraiser

Now available through MGS, for a donation towards the purchase of a new computer for MGS (Minnesota Genealogical Society)—a computer search of about 80% of the listed households in the United States can be made. The result is a list containing name, address, Zip Code, and telephone numbers of listed households.

For $3.00, one spelling of a surname will be searched and a listing of the results, up to 250 names, will be provided. If there are over 250 names, you will be notified of the total and asked for an additional $3.00 donation for each additional 250 names. This will be done before the list is printed and mailed.

Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope, the surnames you would like searched, and a check or money order payable to Minnesota Genealogical Society, P. O. Box 16069, St. Paul, MN 55116-0069.

1994-1995 Board of Directors

Our Annual Meeting was held May 21, 1994 and after a count of ballots it was announced that the slate of officers were elected as presented by the Nominating Committee.

President—Ginny Delaney, 1st Vice President, Florence Myslajek, 2nd Vice President, Patricia Conn, Secretary, Herbert Noble, and Treasurer, Virginia McDermott. Their terms will begin with the new fiscal year, July 1, 1994.

We were entertained by Clann Na Cairde "Circle of Friends" dance group and besides their exuberant dance exhibition, we were also enlightened about a little of the history of Irish dancing. It was enjoyed immensly.

Beth Mullinax then gave an introduction to IGSI collection at the MGS Library. With her complete knowledge of the collection, along with the fact that it is now cataloged, the presentation helped the members to understand what we have available for resources.

Famine Commemoration

1995 marks the 150th anniversary of the beginning of the major famine which drove many of our ancestors out of Ireland.

A video, When Ireland Starved, documents events of this period and examines the famine in great detail. This is the first comprehensive video produced on this subject. To be released in the fall of this year is a second tape examining Grosse Ile and the Canadian connection with the famine.

Paths Out of Ireland

As seen in the Wisconsin State Journal, Madison, WI 4/15/1994

A documentary, to be shown on PBS (check locally for time and date), is a 110 minute film, with actors Aidan Quinn, Liam Neeson, Gabriel Byrne and Brenda Fricker has been made by Ellen and Paul Wagner. Mr. Wagner won an Academy Award for his last documentary, The Stone Carvers. This film will be the telling of the story and reading of letters back home that is a fiction story of six of Leo Casey's eight great-grandparents.

"Its worth looking back at the Irish," Wagner said, because no group of immigrants was as obsessed with its past or aggressive in its embrace of the future. They show you can enter the mainstream of Americans life and still retain your ethnic identity." The title of the film is Out Of Ireland.

International Membership

Please note that membership fees outside U.S.A. are $20.00 in U.S. funds. Please do not send postal money orders. A personal check is okay; drawn on a bank with a branch in the U.S. if possible.

Submitting to The Septs

Submitting items or articles electronically makes production of The Septs go much smoother. This can be done by disk (IBM-all formats, MAC-high density), or by modem. Here are a few guidelines:

- Don't indent paragraphs. Just put an extra carriage return at the end of each one.
- Don't double-space between sentences.
- Type everything in normal upper/lower case. If emphasis is needed, supply a hard copy of your file with color-coded highlighting for bold, italics, or all caps.
- Save your file as an unformatted ("text" or "ASCII") file. Your word processor program will have a "Files" menu item, "Save as..."
- One column of print will equal a text file size of approximately 2400 bytes.

We can also accept typed copy for optical character reading. This copy should be dark, well-defined type. If corrections are made, they should be done in non-repro blue pencil.

Sweetman Irish Colony in Minnesota

Excerpts from story by Alice E. Smith, Minnesota Historical Society, St. Paul, Minnesota.

The Reverend John Ireland of St. Paul was a pioneer in the movement of relocating Irish Catholic Immigrants in eastern cities and help them secure lands, at reasonable prices, in the West. In 1864 he was made president of a group of Irish patriots organized under the name Minnesota Irish Immigration Society who's mission was to promote Irish immigration to the Northwest. Bishop Ireland's settlements as models, actually planted colonies in Minnesota and Nebraska.

It was the example of these settlements that inspired an Irish gentleman who visited Minnesota in 1880 to undertake a somewhat similar task. John Sweetman, of Drumborough, Kells, County Meath, Ireland,a wealthy landowner had hoped for a way to ease the plight of the poor peasants around him. A decline in the price of cattle in 1879 had an immediate effect on the Irish farmers and soon they were facing starvation. He witnessed the plight of these farmers when they would walk seven or eight miles to work on a drainage project for a shilling a day. He was determined to investigate the possibility of immigration to America.

He came to Minnesota and immediately called on Bishop Ireland and presented letters of introduction from the Bishop of Dublin. He wanted to view the existing colonies for himself, so after inspecting them from around Winnipeg, Canada, Bismarck, Jamestown and Watertown in the Dakotas, and Minnesota, he decided the Avoca Colony in Minnesota looked most promising. He toured the area around the town and some lands north that were for sale by a railroad company. So, he decided on this spot for the best place to make his dream happen.

Money was apparently no object for this young man, and he made arrangements with the railroad company that owned the tract around Currie, north of Avoca for the future purchase of ten thousand acres. He returned to Ireland and interested a small group of wealthy Catholics in a plan for a stock company, with headquarters in Dublin, selling stock, and buying land to sell to the Irish settlers on reasonable terms.

Currie, the county seat of Murray County had at that time a population of only a few hundred. A deed, in 1882, reported that eighteen thousand acres had been purchased and sixty houses contracted to be built before spring so that everything would be ready for settlers when they arrived. He employed a manager, John O'Connor to take care of all the details. One of the directors said that they hoped the colony would form a nucleus of Catholics to remedy all that is most unsatisfactory and lamentable in Irish emigration.

In view of the fact that almost all the prospective settlers were absolutely penniless, very liberal terms for the sale of the land and schedule of payments were developed by which a farmer by rigid economy and hard labor could purchase land and pay for it from the proceeds of his crop sales. Passage money was advanced and sale of eighty acres of land at six dollars an acre. No payment was expected until a year and a half after the arrival of the settler, then only the interest due at that time was required.

The first colonists arrived in Currie in May of 1881 delighted to have had the opportunity to start life over again in America. When they arrived in Minnesota, they were delayed for three weeks in Mankato due to flooding. The long wait and the long journey must have been wearisome to the 191 colonists and perhaps some of them had regretted their eager impulse to leave their friendly villages and come to this bleak, sparsely settled country where there were few of their own faith or tongue and none of the carefree existence. However, they must have had some happiness, for most of the immigrants had never slept in any dwelling but a sod shanty and never owned a foot of ground. They had never done a day's work for themselves and had lived in constant dread of starvation, debt, and eviction. To these people, the small fourteen by eighteen foot frame house, built and furnished crudely, for sure, must have seemed like a dream come true. Oxen, farm equipment, seed, food, fuel, cattle, cattle feed and insurance on the buildings were advanced by the company, for most of those first settlers were entirely destitute.

In spite of all the efforts to make it a success, the end of the first year proved disappointing. At first it was attributed to the type of immigrants that had come. Forty-three heads of families came, most of them married with families, but a few men brought their sisters to keep house for them. This was unfortunate, for the sisters were not inclined to drudgery on the lonely farms when they could obtain wages as servants in the cities. In some cases, where these women left, the farms were given up almost at once. Only thirty seven family were still there in April, 1882.

Still, twenty-five more houses were built and preparations were made for a new group. This time, however, the families had to pay their own fare. The men were between the ages of twenty and forty and the names were obviously Irish: Kelly, Lynch, O'Reilly, Donnelly, McMahon, Murphy & Carroll among them.

Surprisingly, this colony was not successful, for they did not remain in the colony long. Sweetman came to the conclusion that if a man had no investment, he had no interest in it's success. They could pack up and leave for the towns and paying jobs, because they had yet to invest in their farms anything except labor, and they were used to that. After two years of experimenting, Sweetman was able to draw conclusions that excluding unmarried men, for he counted them absolute failures as settlers, he found that out of thirty-five families of the first year, twenty-eight percent left. Out of eighteen families the second year, nine had only stayed about four months. Of the thirty-five families remaining, twenty-one were from Ireland, six of Irish descent, four were English, two Scotch and two American.

Thereafter, the land was sold, with a 10% down payment required and no fares were paid. The land was then sold to anyone meeting the requirements.

In the history of attempts to assist worthy emigrants to start life anew in America, the Currie colony is usually regarded as a failure. The account books indicate that it was not a financial success. But Sweetman felt that it had been instrumental in taking a few families away from crime and poverty and that their children might do their part in building up the new state and preserve the faith of their fathers. A Church had been established, the Immaculate Heart of Mary and a township beginnings had taken place through this man's vision.

> We are all omnibuses in which our ancestors ride, and every now and then one of them sticks his head out and embarrasses us.

Researching the Sweetman Catholic Colony

by Ida Troye

After reading this story, I was fascinated by the possibility of what is available regarding the first colony. At the Minnesota Historical Center in St. Paul, I found a genealogists treasure. Even though there is no connection to my family, I couldn't help taking a peek. I was amazed. There are boxes of pertinent material—the original of ledgers and naturalization papers, lease agreements and more.

For a beginning - look at this:

Searching for Military Records Made Simple

by Beth L. Mullinax

Like any other genealogical resource, U.S. military service records may or may not contain information useful in your research. You could possibly find the date and place of birth, parents' names, spouse's name, date of marriage, etc.. If there are pension records, you may even find a marriage record and names and birth dates of the children. There is usually a physical description of the serviceman also and in later records, pictures.

The amount and type of information found, depends largely on the time period the person was in the service and if he or she was injured or killed on active duty. There might even be military insurance records available for veterans of World War II and the Korean conflict.

Researching military records can be separated into two parts: 1) Those prior to World War I; and 2) World War I and after.

- I'll deal with the first set of records first. The records prior to WW I are held at the General Reference Branch (NNRG), National Archives and Records Administration, 7th and Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington DC 20408. Copies of these records can be had by ordering them on NATF Form 80 (rev. 5-91). This same form is used to order Pension Records, Bounty-Land Warrant Applications (Service before 1856 only) and Military Records. Bounty-Land records are now incorporated with the Pension Records so one form should handle both of these record groups and a separate form for the Military Records. You can not order both Pension and Military Records on the same form.

Not all servicemen had pension records, some never applied. Widows could apply for benefits after the death of her veteran spouse. I suggest ordering the Military Records first and go from there, however, Pension Records usually have the most information.

To obtain the forms, write to the National Archives at the above address. There is no charge for the form, but there is for any copies made of records found. They do accept credit cards. PLEASE READ THE INSTRUCTIONS ON THE FORM CAREFULLY!

How to help them identify your ancestor: Most military in this period, were part of their state's militia. The state he was enlisted from is very important, also his company. Most states have good records of their "militia", and the records are usually maintained in the State Historical Societys' Archives. If you don't know any of this, just give them what you have, including where you think he was living at the time he went in. Census records can help with this. Remember that the more information you give them, the better chance that they will find records on your ancestor so do some research before ordering military records.

- The second set of military records, records for World War I, World War II and subsequent service, are held at the National Personnel Records Center (Military Records), NARA, 9700 Page Boulevard, St Louis MO 63132.

The form you will need is Standard Form 180. This can be obtained by writing them or call your local Department of Veterans' Affairs (VA) office and ask them to send you out a form. You can find the VA toll-free numbers in your local directory, under Federal Government.

The National Personnel Records Center (NPRC) will not give information out to just anyone. The last time I inquired they would only give information to a direct descendant, such as child, spouse and sometimes grandchildren. Good luck on this one.

Pension records for these veterans (WW I to date) are held by the VA. Again, not all veterans have pension or VA records. They had to have applied for some VA benefit, i.e. service disability, schooling (WW II to date), death benefits for spouse and/or children, burial in a VA Cemetery, etc.

Your local VA will try and locate your ancestor on their computer, and if identified, the folder for the veteran is requested. When it comes in, you will be notified and can either go in and look through it or they will make copies of what they think would be important to you and send them. Remember these people are not genealogist and this is not their primary job.

Most VA offices are as open with their records as they can be under the Freedom of Information Act and Privacy Act. Their main requirement is that the veteran be deceased and there are no living beneficiaries (spouse or child) receiving any benefits on the account. They will want a letter, with as much information as you have. For WW I and WW II, you will usually need the military serial/service number. The VA has over 30 million veterans listed in their computer system! Make it as easy as you can for them - don't expect miracles.

How to help identify these veterans: If you can't find any military documents, you might try the County Service Officers, various State Department of Veterans Affairs and court houses. Many veterans now "register" the discharge papers in their local court house for safekeeping. Also, some states gave bonuses for service during war-time periods, or some kind of aid to their veterans. They may just have a copy of the discharge which is the veterans' means of identification. Service information was given to funeral homes to help them apply for possibly burial benefits.

For veterans on active duty after 1956, you might want to try the Social Security Death Indexes at the LDS Family History Libraries. After 1956 the military began contributing to Social Security. They needed proof of service time to credit Social Security benefits.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (LDS) has a Military Index listing individuals in the U.S. military service who died or were declared dead in Korea or Vietnam, from 1950 to 1975. If this is your time period, try this.

Some states did a Veterans Census, check local records for this. Also, check headstones and burial places. Was there a military stone erected? Is the veteran in a military cemetery? All these created records!

Aliens who went on duty in the U. S. military were given citizenship, but they still had to make an application. These would be with other naturalization papers.

Remember, the more information that you can find on your veteran before sending for records, the better chance that the researcher in Washington D.C., St Louis MO or at your local VA will have of helping you.

There have been many books published on the searching of military records, and I will mention only a few of them.

1) MILITARY SERVICE RECORDS IN THE NATIONAL ARCHIVES OF THE UNITED STATES. Published by the National Archives and Records Administration, Washington DC 20408. Free.

2) RESEARCH OUTLINE, U.S. MILITARY RECORDS, published by The Family History Library, Salt Lake City, Utah. Costs about $.50 and will give you as much information as you will probably need.

3) MILITARY SERVICE RECORDS, A Select Catalog of National Archives Microfilm Publications. Published by the National Archives Trust Fund Board, Washington D.C. 20408. Costs about $2.00 and gives you information on records available by microfilm.

4) HOW TO LOCATE ANYONE WHO IS OR HAS BEEN IN THE MILITARY, by Lt Col Richard S. Johnson. This is a good book for locating veterans, but for WW II

5) U.S. MILITARY RECORDS, A GUIDE TO FEDERAL AND STATE SOURCES, COLONIAL AMERICA TO THE PRESENT, by James C. Neagles. Published by Ancestry Inc., P.O. Box 476, Salt Lake City UT 84110-0476, 1994. About $30.00, this is a comprehensive book on military, giving special information for each state.

From HERE and THERE and Clans too!

Word of the scope of our newsletter, is spreading far and wide. Articles and information are coming in, from people and organizations that we have never heard from before, plus from our faithful members.

I must caution again, that we need at least a three month lead time to get articles into the newsletter timely. For instance, it is today the 12th of May and I'm writing this for the July newsletter! Some of the articles that came in late were given to the Editor in hopes that she could find a corner for them. We publish these free as long as they are of genealogical interest. However, we do reserve the right to publish only those articles that we feel appropriate, with Irish concerns taking preference.

California—Forest Hill, Placer County—Member Elizabeth Clark, wrote about this small mining community that had many Irish living there at one time. We wrote the California Historical Society and received some info plus a referral to the Forest Hill Divide Museum. We have written them, and hope to have more information on this area in the next newsletter. Anyone out there know anything about the community, especially St Joseph's Catholic Church & cemetery?

Chicago, Will County—Member Kathy Faulkner Zavada, writes that she has vital statistics, going back to 1830's (90% Irish) from Wills County which is older than Cook County. These records include births, marriages, deaths, burials, probate records & obits. They are on her computer and she will share the information on her direct lines, or will look for your "non-family" ancestors for $25 for 1st two hours. For further information on her records and services, write Kathy at 605 E. Baltimore St., Wilmington, IL 60481. SASE!

Minnesota—Celtic Festival Weekend—Murphy's Landing on Hwy 101 between Shakopee and Valleyfair, Minnesota, August 6th & 7th. To participate or for more info, write: Celtic Festival Weekend, 4827 Acorn Ridge Road, Minnetonka, MN 55348-3102.

Virgina—Federation of Genealogical Societies & the Virginia Genealogical Society—Seminar titled, Four Centuries of Family History, in Richmond VA October 12-15. For further info write: FGS, PO Box 3385, Salt Lake City, UT 84110-3385.

Wisconsin—Milwaukee Irish Fest—Largest in the US, held at Milwaukee's Henry W. Meier Festival Park, August 19-21. Great music, theatre, dance, you name it! More info later.

Wisconsin—1855 Census Index for Wisconsin that we mentioned before but had an incorrect address. Well, after several letters and calls we have good info for you. Sue Swanson, 351 Hillandale, Rhineland, WI 54501, will do research on this index, $2.00 per surname plus an SASE. I have heard from Sue herself, so know that the address is good. Thanks for your patience with us.

1994 Research Trip to Salt Lake City—Nov 3-10. Conducted by Jim & Paula Warren of the Minnesota Genealogical Society, both professional genealogists. For prices and details write the Warrens at 1869 Laurel Ave., St Paul, MN 55104-5938. This is the Warren's third tour, and all who have gone on prior trips highly recommend traveling with them. Both are certified genealogists.

There

Belfast—We ordered a book on the Clifton Street Burying Ground [Belfast City] from the Glenravel Local History Project in Belfast. We received a nice letter from Joseph Baker, author of the book and Co-Ordinator of the project, who donated the book to us, and offered their services. He writes, "... we have over 15,000 names, addresses, next of kin, places where born and causes of death on this graveyard alone. We also have full access to all the information contained on all the graveyards within Belfast. Other records which we have, and which we feel will be of interest to yourselves, is the complete 1901 and 1911 census of Ireland returns for Belfast. We also do research work for those who are trying to trace their families within Belfast and a small fee is charged for this, a fee which is far less than that charged by other researchers." The project's address is: Ashton Centre, 5 Churchill Street, New Lodge, Belfast BT 15 2BP, Northern Ireland. We have a few of their brochures which we will send out as long as they last. SASE!

Belfast—a Kaleidoscope of Ulster Family History, Sept 3-10, in Belfast. For more information write: The Old Engine House, Portview, 310 Newtownards Road, Belfast BT4 1HE, Northern Ireland. We can copy their brochure for you if you would rather write us, with an SASE.

Belfast—That Elusive Ulster Ancestor, Family History and Cultural Heritage Conference, Belfast & Armagh Sept 15-20. For more details write: Shane McAteer, Ulster Historical Foundation 12 College Sq East, Belfast BT1 6 DD, NI

[One could take in the two conferences above before heading to the Dublin Congress below!]

Dublin—2nd Irish Genealogical Congress, Sept 21-28, at Trinity College, Dublin. IGSI has a tour going to this, plus a week of touring after. For details write: Beth Mullinax, 5519 E. Oberlin Cir, Fridley MN 55432-6018. FAX (612) 574-0316.

Cavan—Cavan Newsletter, published quarterly at $8 per year, is an exchange of information between members researching County Cavan, Ireland. For further info write Kathy Dyer, 99 W. Harrison St., Chandler, AZ 85224.

Roscommon—The Strokestown Famine Museum has recently opened in Strokestown, Co Roscommon. The museum is the first of its kind, dedicated to "the famine". It is housed in the Strokestown House which has quite a history itself and is being restored. An interesting place to visit if you are in Ireland. For further information, or to make a contribution to the museum, write: Luke Dodd, Strokestown Park, Strokestown, Co Roscommon, Ireland.

Clans

Hackett—The Hackett Reunion for the descendants of James H. Hackett and Catherine Hanley will be July 31st at the Arcade Pavilion, Arcade, NY. Write: Hackett Heirlooms, 2523 Fairoaks Road, Decatur GA 30033-1418. TEL: (716) 633-2998 or 457-9921

Hanley/Hanly/Handley/etc.—Clann Ainle Gathering, Sept 24th & 25th, at the Longford Arms Hotel, Longford town, Co. Longford, Ireland. Write: Hon. Secretary, John J. Hanley, Deerpark, Dundrum, Co Tipperary, Ireland. FAX: 062 52499.

Hurley—Aug 14th, Timoleague Abbey, Co Cork. Contact Martin Hurley, Tel: (021) 631062 in Ireland.

MacCarthy—There is a new publication, The Stag Trippant, Official Journal of Clan MacCarthy. The first issue was published in Nov 1993. For subscription details: Editor, PO Box 70, Clonmen, Co Tipperary, Ireland.

O'Dubhda [O'Dowd, Dowd, O'Dowda, etc.] - Third official gathering begins Sept 16th at Ennicrone, Tireragh, Co Sligo, Ireland. Write: The Editor, O'Dubhda Clan Newsletter, "Trereagh", 30 Lakelands Drive, Stillorgan, Co Dublin, Ireland. FAX: +353-1-288-7347.

O'Keeffe—September, contact Dan Joe O'Keeffe, Tel: (064) 51111 in Ireland.

Riley/Reiley/etc.—We mentioned in the last issue the help offered to members researching RILEYs by Dennis G. Riley. He has since donated to the library all Riley variants from the 1790 US Census for 11 of the Eastern states (see library donations for list) and also all the Riley Union soldiers from KY in the Civil War! Dennis will share any of this information with members. His address: PO Box 1665, Pasadena, MD 21122. TEL: (410) 553-9778. Thanks Dennis!

other clan gatherings that we have not covered in one of our issues.

Note: In the Library Purchases column we list the book, Aspects of Irish Genealogy. We have purchased 20 of these books and are selling them for cost [check Book Sales]. This book has 17 articles which were delivered at the 1st Irish Genealogical Congess in Dublin 1991. Exceptional articles of genealogical interest by the top genealogists of Ireland, England, Canada and the US. This is a real bargain and we do not plan on purchasing more after these are sold.

From the Archdiocese of Milwaukee

As seen in the Irish Genealogical of Wisconsin quarterly:
In the fall of 1993 the Genealogical Society of Utah completed a major microfilming project of Catholic records at the Archdiocese of Milwaukee Archives. Records filmed include pre-1921 sacramental records of all parishes in the ten county area: Dodge, Fond du Lac, Kenosha, Milwaukee, Ozaukee, Racine, Sheboygan, Walworth, Washington and Waukesha. Dates span from ca 1840's to 1920. Includes baptism, marriage, death, first communion and confirmation.

The final product consists of 105 reels of microfilm. Use copies of the films are on permanent loan at the Hales Corners Family History Center of the Church of Later Day Saints, 9600 W. Grange Ave., Hales Corners, WI 53130. Centers elsewhere in Wisconsin and throughout the country are able to order the films from Salt Lake City. The Archdiocesal Archives will continue to respond to mail genealogical inquiries only that are mailed to; Archdiocesal Archives, Archdiocese of Milwaukee, P. O. Box 07912, Milwaukee, WI 53207

County Mayo Catholic Marriages

County Mayo Chronicles # 25, March 1994 has listed Co. Mayo Catholic Marriages 1808 - 1814 from Swinford and Kilmovee. This information was transcribed from LDS film 926020. These marriages are a part of the Kilconduff and Meelick parish register, formerly called Swinford parish, but a note in the register indicates that some marriages are from the ajoining parish of Kilmovee.

Book Reviews

IRELAND AND IRISH EMIGRATION TO THE NEW WORLD, From 1815 to the Famine, by William Forbes Adams. Published and Donated by Clearfield Company, Inc., 200 E. Eager St, Baltimore, MD 21202, (1932) repr. 1993, indexed, paper, 444 pp. Cost is $32.50 plus $3.00 P & H. Reviewed by Ida Troye.

A painstaking, thorough research of the economic, social and political factors underlying these years of emigration. Professor Adams succeeds in treating a complex subject in an exhaustive and engaging manner, placing the history of the Irish emigration on a firm, scholarly basis, weighing cause and effect. Taking in such subjects as the emigrant trade and government policy to the fruits of emigration. A more comprehensive study cannot be imagined.

Although it does not really fall into a genealogical study, it is certainly a study as to why the emigration took place and would be helpful in filling in a lot of questions we all ask.

THE HUGUENOT SETTLEMENTS IN IRELAND by Grace Lawless Lee. Published & Donated by Clearfield Company, Inc., 200 Eager Street, Baltimore, MD 21202, 281 pp., indexed, (1936) repr. 1993. $25.00 plus $3.00 P & H. (410) 625-9004 Review done by Ida Troye.

The French Protestant contribution to the history of Ireland is very well documented, portraying their influence in trade, the professions and Irish social life. There are specific biographical and genealogical details concerning the more successful Huguenot families. A very detailed map includes the Huguenot settlements is included along with a very serviceable index to surnames.

BASIC IRISH GENEALOGICAL SOURCES, Description and Evaluation, by The Irish Research Group, The Ottawa Branch, The Ontario Genealogical Society, PO Box 8346, Ottawa, ONT K1G 3H8. Canada. Publication Number 93-1, 1993, 59 pp. $5.80 ppd. Review by Ida Troye.

A comprehensive look at the sources available both through the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints (LDS) Library (now called Family History Centers) and through the availability of the printed word. Includes a wonderful description of each source, i.e., Griffith's Valuation, Hearth Money Rolls, Tithe Applotment Books, etc. A good book for any Irish Genealogist's book shelf.

County Clare — Gains Two Parishes in 1898 Act

In vol. 15, no. 3 of The Septs we listed the townlands transferred from County Galway, Leitrim Barony, Clonrush, and Inishcaltra Civil Parishes according to research published by Patrick E. Dempsey. The enactment of the Local Government 1898 Act, Ireland made changes in the boundaries of County Clare. You will note the parishes (No. 8 & No. 20) shown on page 29 of A New Genealogical Atlas by Brian Mitchell.

If you have a townland you cannot locate in County Galway, we suggest you search in County Clare. Perhaps it is one of the ones transferred in 1898.

If we seem to keep "harping" on this fact, it is because there are many times a townland can appear in the same county more than once. If it is not located in the correct parish, you will have trouble locating your records. It would seem prudent, then, to look in both counties.

From The President – Ginny Delaney

Hello and an "Irish Welcome" from St. Paul. Your newly elected Board of Directors has begun work on new projects for 1994-1995.

We have several new individuals who have been elected to the Board ... WELCOME! Those who have been actively involved for several years are by your side.

I am looking forward to the upcoming year. As President, I have set goals which include:

1) To fill the position of Historian
2) To increase IGSI membership by 10%
3) To research the possibility of IGSI meeting at various sites (in discussion stage)

As you can see it will take the cooperation and involvement of all the membership to accomplish these tasks. I reach out to all of the members to assist me with these goals. I welcome suggestions regarding ways we can assist you in your research.

I encourage you to think about volunteering, or at least discussing the Historian position. The IGSI Board is a great way to learn more about Irish Genealogy.

This summer saw our volunteers going forth to various seminars and conferences. Some of them were the Celtic Fair at Murphy's Landing, Shakopee, Minnesota; the Gena-Rama in Appleton, Wisconsin; the National at Houston, Texas; and the Great Lakes Conference in Fort Wayne, Indiana. Next year we will try to notify you ahead of time, so you can maybe drop in and talk to us.

The Minnesota Irish Heritage Fair is scheduled for October 21, 22, and 23 in St. Paul, Minnesota. We will have a booth and some beginning classes for your enjoyment.

Beth Mullinax reports that the Ireland Tour in September to take in the second annual Genealogical Congress is full.

Thank you for all of your support. Good luck in your research.

Ginny

Dear Septs...

From John T. Hoban, Jr., of New Jersey.

"Just a little feedback on the Society. I've joined four other organizations related to genealogy and never renewed any of their memberships. In just four months, your society has done more for me than all four of the others, combined times ten. You folks to a great job – keep up the good work. It is appreciated and it helps."

Ed note: It helps us and we appreciate hearing that our efforts are well received.

A new member says

"I became interested in your society when I attended the Gene-A-Rama in Appleton and talked to one of your ladies. She was very informative and helped me a great deal.

"After years of searching and finding little information, going to Irish workshops where the speakers always talked of how difficult it is to find any information on the Irish, I put it aside. A few months ago I became determined to find them so was very pleased to see the Irish table in Appleton and hear your society member talk so positively of researching the Irish.

"I am looking forward to being a member and visiting your research library when we get to Minnesota."

This is from Ann Abts, Denmark, WI

Ed note: Thanks so much Ann, we know you can do it.

Editor's Corner

In October, 1993, Vol. 14, No 4, we began a series of articles on the Local Government 1898 Act. These articles are based on some wonderful research and publication by PATRICK E. DEMPSEY, now of the Vatican. The fact is, the author of this information was not acknowledged in that, and all subsequent articles in The Septs in Vol. 15, No 1, Vol. 15 No 2, Vol. 15 No 3. As an editor that is one of my prime responsibilities and I make no excuses for such an error. Many of the paragraphs were printed verbatim, without the use of quotations to indicate such.

Ida Troye

I am hereby clearly stating that this information, including the list of Townlands Transferred as a Result of the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898 that were published in our Vol. 15, No. 3 on page beginning on page 64, are entirely the research and works of Patrick E. Dempsey. Furthermore we humbly apologize for printing, without his specific written or oral explicit or implicit permission the excerpts and lists mentioned above.

County Clare – there is so much to describe that it may sound like we are on the chamber of commerce publicity committee. It is such a diverse area and the people there must be hardy to have survived the hardships of living there. I doubt very much if they realize the terrible beauty they are surrounded by. I hope, after reading this issue, that you also will be transported to that beautiful spot.

I was happy that two members were able to share their research in County Clare – both of them having gone there to visit the origin of their family tree.

Don't forget the Riley research – there is a continuation of this information in this issue.

I know it may seem early, but Christmas is not far away and we want to be the first to wish you loving holidays coming up. Check out our book list, we have some lovely calendars that would make great gifts, along with some new research books. Can't think of anything I would rather receive, can you?

Welcome to our new officers and we hope you, the members will be as cooperative with them in the future as you have always been in the past. Let us know if you have any ideas you would like us to follow up on.

County Clare–A Land of Contradictions

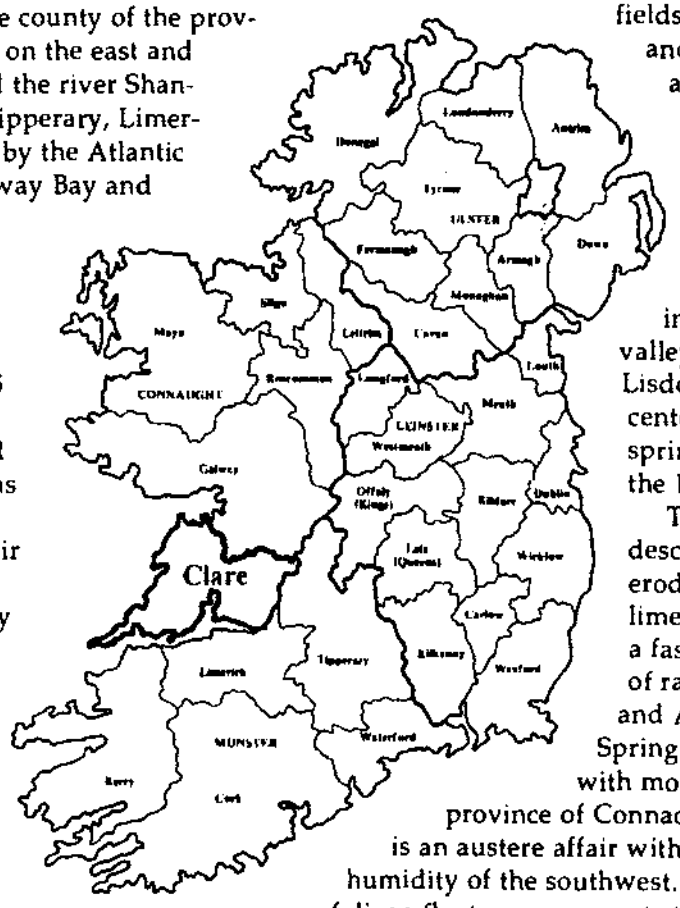
To write a word-picture of County Clare is almost an impossible task. The only way it can be done is to take a tour, because it is so hard to believe the contrasts.

Co. Clare is a maritime county of the province of Munster bounded on the east and south by Lough Derg and the river Shannon, separating it from Tipperary, Limerick & Kerry. On the west by the Atlantic Ocean, northwest by Galway Bay and north and east by County Galway.

It is 802,352 acres, 524,113 are cultivated land, 259,584 are mountains and bogs and 18,655 acres of water.

The population in 1821 was 208,089, in 1831 it was 258,262 and in the famine years they lost 26% of their population.

The baronies of County Clare, on page 29 of the book A New Genealogical Atlas of Ireland by Brian Mitchell are: Burren, Corcomroe, Inchiquin, Bunratty Upper and Lower, Tulla Upper and Lower, Ibrickan, Islands, Conderalaw & Moyarta.



Information supplied by the Clare Heritage Centre and based on the number of families of each name in Church Records for the 46 Clare Parishes—pre 1900 indicates the following as the 10 most popular names in County Clare. McMahon, McNamara, Maloney (Moloney), O'Brien, McInerney, Ryan, Kelly, Keane, O'Connor, and O'Halloran, the first three being almost half of the number of families out of that ten.

On your mental tour of County Clare, picture a rolling countryside, coming from Shannon, into this picturesque town of Ennistymon, with a winding street of shops. Then wandering off towards the Atlantic coast to come upon the majestic Cliffs of Moher. The coastline itself has been hacked and torn by centuries of wind and sea in a sustained battle which has produced these magnificent cliffs. O'Brien's Tower is a 19th century folly built on top of one of the cliffs and if you cannot brave the winds and mist of the crashing waves, you can see it from the tower. They are so unexpected, because of the gently rolling countryside, covered in green fields divided by trees and shrubs. Then—all at once—there they are.

On, northward to Doolin, noted for its traditional music and then down hairpin turns into a breathtaking valley near Lisdoonvarna, which is centered on mineral springs on the edge of the Burren.

The Burren—how to describe it—strangely eroded hills, the dry limestone rocks support a fascinating collection of rare plants - Alpine and Arctic in nature. Springtime in the Burren with more affinity to the province of Connacht than to Munster, is an austere affair with none of the warm humidity of the southwest. The young green foliage floats among great stone wedgetombs where one portal dolmen (tomb) is said to date from about 2500 BC. There are miles and miles of stone walls as far as the eye can see and tumbled down church buildings made of the same rock. It is strangely lunar, and you want to speak in hushed tones it is so eerily beautiful. On the road to Corofin is a "ring fort" which is wooded and lush, but makes you feel that the "little people" may come there. In the winter you are told to expect rain every other day. The warmth of the fireplace and smell of peat comes into it's own. Its a lovely, lonely place, but breathtaking all the same.

From the ringforts to castles, with the Burren, a strange limestone moonscape of terraces honeycombed with caves and vanishing rivers, to the spa town and the Cliffs of Moher, you couldn't experience a dull moment touring County Clare.

In the Beginning

by Virginia Hallinan Mahoney

My first contact with the "bug", that I later characterized as the beginning of a disease, began in 1958 at a bridal shower at St. John's in Sibley County, MN. A small country church basement, with relatives I didn't know. "Who are these people? Who am I?" This disease worms its way into your mind immediately whenever the most pressing problems of the day subside. Often the first thing in the morning and the last thing at night. "Where is John? Where can I look next?"

We have all watched our relatives eyes glaze over at the mention of details, only to have the phone ring when they are ready to take off for Europe, wondering where they should go. In my mind, this is labeled "The Little Red Hen" experience.

Consequently, after acquiring a serious case of this disease, I began what proved to be a lifetime hobby and opportunity for meeting scores of exciting people and traveling to places I never knew existed.

After working my way, in the beginning, through all civil sources and exhausting my three Aunt's memories, injecting into their last days the joyful experience of finding someone who couldn't hear enough of the good old days, I launched myself into the most intriguing quest of all. Back to the "Old Sod."

Tom and Mary Hallinan (1901), the last Hallinan residents of Mause.

To be successful in your Ireland research, you cannot know too much about different family branches. In piecing small details together of people living in areas you search, you may come up with the gold ring. No small thread, odd name, or one phone call is too insignificant to pursue. Many of us have found just the right person to make sense of it all, when least expected.

I knew nothing of my ancestors but was rewarded when visiting St. Thomas Cemetery in Jessenland, Sibley Co., MN. I found Patrick and Bridget Hallinan's grave stones naming County Clare, Ireland as place of their origin. Patrick and wife, Bridget (Mary) Molony arrived in Minnesota in 1862.

In profiling the families in the Minnesota area of Sibley County, Faxon, Jessenland and Washington Lake townships and matching these names in the civil parish of Tomfinlough (#76) located in the Barony of Lower Bunratty on the Barony Map, the names came together in County Clare and I soon had a good picture of their possible origins.

This process can be accomplished through the Griffith's Household Index of 1855, Griffith's Valuation and Tithe Records of 1827–1832. Griffith's and the Tithe Records are both available through the Family History Library of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Later Day Saints (LDS) or more familiar the Mormon Church. These are also available in our Irish Collection at MGS in St. Paul, MN.

My big break came when I acquired a copy of the pamphlet, Notes On Newmarket-on-Fergus by the Church Committee of 1856. It described the combining of seven old parishes, Bunratty, Clonlohan, Dromline, Kilconry, Kilmaleery, Kilnasoolagh, and Tuamfinlogh (Fenloe), now called Tomfinlough and the building of a new church. This came to me through a fellow researcher quite by accident. She received it from a cousin in California who had acquired it in Ireland. The list of parishioner donations included (Daniel) Michael Hallinan, plus the townland name of Mause, which I could not identify on any map or in the resource book of townland names. This was the only area the name Daniel appeared that could be connected back to the early 1800s when Patrick was born.

We made our pilgrimage to Ireland in May of 1994. Through the thoughtfulness and help of Maura Marren, a parishioner of Newmarket, I then learned that Mause – short for Mausmorghan – Townland in Tomfinlough Civil Parish had been the home place of this Hallinan family.

The family died out in this area around 1910—some having gone to the United States. Her brother, Flann McCarthy now owned this land.

Our last day was spent visiting with Flann and Agnes McCarthy and meeting a few of their children. Their property surrounds the area of Knoppogue Castle. We had visited there on our first night on tour, never knowing its connection to our own family. Knoppogue Townland in Quin Civil Parish borders Mausnarylaan, Tomfinlough Civil Parish. In the Griffith's survey the three Hallinan brothers are listed as tenants of Lord Dunboyne. Mr. McCarthy felt that the family probably worked in the castle and fields.

We spent a delightful half day with Flann and Agnes. Agnes showed our son, Michael and his wife, Kathleen, much of Knoppogue Castle. After "Tea," 144 years later, with Flann's guidance, we walked the Hallinan land, took pictures, and all in all had a wonderful time. Flying home the next day, I just knew I wouldn't return, but what an ending to what I often thought of as an "impossible dream."

You can do it too!

MGS Computer Fundraiser

Now available through MGS, for a donation towards the purchase of a new computer for MGS (Minnesota Genealogical Society)—a computer search of about 80% of the listed households in the United States can be made. The result is a list containing name, address, Zip Code, and telephone numbers of listed households.

For $3.00, one spelling of a surname will be searched and a listing of the results, up to 250 names, will be provided. If there are over 250 names, you will be notified of the total and asked for an additional $3.00 donation for each additional 250 names. This will be done before the list is printed and mailed.

Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope, the surnames you would like searched, and a check or money order payable to Minnesota Genealogical Society, P. O. Box 16069, St. Paul, MN 55116-0069.

Step By Step – In Search for the Land of My Ancestors

by Florence Myslajek

When I first started tracing my Irish ancestors, one of my strong desires was to identify the land on which my ancestors lived. This urge seems to be a strong primitive hunger among Irish-Americans whose ancestors were frequently denied the right to own land or were put off the lands they leased or occupied as tenants-at-will of the landlord.

I directed by search first of all to my mother's father, David Connell, because I had the most specific information about where he lived compared to what I had about my other Irish ancestors. (All eight of my great-grandparents were born in Ireland.)

David Connell had died before I was born, but from my mother and her sisters, I had heard family stories about him. My attic research turned up the family bible record and a biography from a history of LeSueur County, Minnesota. As is common in this kind of research, some of the information was contradictory In the family bible, someone had written in his birth place as Feakle, County Clare, which is both a town and parish. His death certificate gave his birth place as Limerick, but I was quite sure this was just identifying the nearest sizable town. The area I was searching is in County Clare, north of Limerick and east of Ennis.

I had one great advantage from the family records. From David Connell's death certificate I had his father's name as Daniel Connell. The family bible record listed David's mother's maiden name as Mary Farrell. When in Ireland in 1989, with the group from the Irish Genealogical Society led by Beth Mullinax, I visited the Clare Heritage Centre at Corofin. The center's director Gerard Kennedy took these names back into the records area and said, yes, they had information on this family that lived in the parish of O'Callaghan Mills, a combination of the parishes of Killuran and Clonlea. The center was willing to do research and send me a report by mail. I filled out the questionnaire with as much information as I could and gave him some Irish money.

I received a report with sufficient information to satisfy some of my questions and direct me elsewhere The parish records did not begin until 1835, so there was no record of baptisms for children born before 1835, nor a marriage record for Daniel Connell and Mary Farrell. The center listed baptisms for four of the nine children listed in the county history (see the listing at bottom of the page).

The center also sent me an outline map of the parishes and a copy of a page from Griffith Valuation of Tenements (1855) in the Barony of Lower Tulla, parish of Killuran, Townland of Ballymacdonnell showing Daniel Connell as occupying a garden, house, offices on 24 acres of land with a total value of 12 lb.s, 8 shillings.

I used the information they provided to look for other records. There was a conflict of information in that the parish records listed his baptism as 24 Feb. 1842 and the county history and his death certificate indicated his birth as 1847, the family bible 1848 and the county history 1846. In case of doubt perhaps, believe the most contemporary record.

But what paid off in my search for the land, was hearing at a session on Beginning Irish Genealogy (sponsored by IGSI in St. Paul) that the records of the Land Valuation Office at 6 Ely Place in Dublin had land maps not only with current changes, but the Canceled Land Books recording changes up to the present in the occupation, size, value and status of the landholdings covered in Griffith's Valuation. (The Valuation Office records are described in John Grenham's book Tracing Your Irish Ancestors, page 48.)

The map identification numbers for the land where Daniel Connell lived were given in Griffith's Valuation. I did not need to consult the very useful surname index and Griffith's Valuation. I already had a photocopy of the page in Griffith's from the Clare Heritage Centre. I wrote to the Valuation Office, giving them the numbers in the left hand column. I enclosed a copy of the page from Griffith's Valuation, as full a description of the location of the land as I could and asked about their fee. The office sent me back the land record, showing the lease of the land transferred from Daniel to Patrick, and then passing out of the family in a Congested Districts transaction in 1915. This was a scheme to buy up small parcels of land combine them and resell them. The Valuation office also sent me back a map with the land highlighted and asked for a small fee.

CONNELL	BAPTISM DATE	SPONSORS
Maurice	3 April 1836	Dan Cooney & Mary Connell

What I was really intent on doing was to visit the actual land. I now had the actual parcels outlined on a map. My problem now was how to relate this map to a modern map. I had help from two places. I followed a suggestion in Irish Family Research Made Simple of Summit Publications to place a paid notice in a provincial newspaper published in the area you are searching. So I typed up a notice and sent it off to The Clare Champion published in Ennis in County Clare and asked them how much they would charge to publish the notice. I enclosed two postal response coupons for reply I said I was interested in finding information about David Connell and his father Daniel Connell and his mother Mary Farrell. I also included the name of his brother Patrick Connell, his wife Margaret Mullins and their six children. Because Patrick stayed in Ireland and I thought I would have more success in tracing him there, rather than David Connell who left in 1863. I had the names of the six children from the Clare Heritage Centre baptismal records.

> "...it was a very moving experience to stand on the same land my grandfather and great-grandfather had occupied."

I did not hear from the newspaper for a two months, but what I got was even better. The newspaper had published the notice without charge. What I received in March of 1991 was a wonderful letter from a person who signed herself Maura Walsh. She told me she and her husband Gerry Walsh

". . . now live in the house where these O'Connells were for some time. We live near Killuran school where all of those people went to school. . .If you wish further research done here in Ireland, write and let us know."

So I did write to her in April of 1991 giving more information about David Connell and his family, and asking how I could get more research done. She turned my request over to the East Clare Heritage Center, which was officially opened in June of 1991. Gerard Madden, the director wrote back to me that they had all the records of the eight parishes in East Clare including O'Callaghan's Mills, but they were not yet computerized. They also had numerous deeds and on one of them George O'Callaghan, the landlord had granted a lease for life and 21 years to Daniel Connell in Ballymacdonnell. He said he was too busy to provide research then, because he was organizing a Clan Rally of the O'Grady's, but he promised to get the required research done by September. I wrote a reply telling him I planned to be in Clare the last week in September, but I did not hear from him before I left.

Before the First Irish Genealogical Congress in Dublin in September of 1991, I toured Ireland for a week with my daughter Vicki and some of her friends from the Irish Dance Group. I tried to call the East Clare Heritage Center, but was unable to reach them at an appropriate time, so my daughter and her husband, Rick Yarns, and I just drove to the Research Center. We had to use three maps, but we were successful. We found the center in St. Cronin's 10th Century Church in Tuamgraney. Even luckier, Gerard Madden was there that afternoon. (Luck they say is a combination of preparedness and opportunity.) He did not have any research done in writing, but he showed me a copy of the lease which Daniel Connell had signed. He made a copy of the signature. The deed itself was too faded to copy. (The landlords, the O'Callaghans, were made infamous later by the Bodyke evictions which played a significant part in the land revolution of the late nineteenth century. This part of Ireland's history is related in the book, The Bodyke Evictions by John S. Kelly, but that is a subject for further study.)

Gerard Madden of the East Clare Heritage Centre had been too busy to answer my letter. (You may hear this answer frequently.) But he offered to take me out and show me the land. He said he had checked with the Walshes, the current land owners, and it was all right with them.

So we followed him in his car, back through the town of Bodyke down a long hill to a small farmstead. We met the owners Maura and Gerry Walsh, and they showed us around their small farm of 28 acres. They had been dairy farmers at one time, then switched to feeder cattle. The husband was semi-retired for reasons of health. The house was not the one Daniel and David Connell had lived in. It was "only" a hundred years old, but the land was the same and it was a very moving experience to stand on the same land my grandfather and great-grandfather had occupied. I was able to take some pictures.

Unfortunately we did not have time to stay very long. We had to drive back and pick up the other members of our group at Craggaunowen Centre, a prehistoric Irish construction re-created in a lakeside setting. On the way out we did drive by the school at Killuran and I took pictures of this also.

The Walshes had asked for pictures of the farming area that David Connell had lived in Le Sueur County, Minnesota. So the next fall my husband John and I drove down to Waterville, where my grandfather David Connell had settled with his family. We took pictures of the farm land along Hwy. 60, between Faribault and Waterville. It was a green and golden lovely land with dairy farms and crops ripening in the autumn sun. In many ways the farms, even today, although larger, were reminiscent of the land he came from—rolling countryside, farm-land that would probably rate as good but not prime. I had a strong feeling that David Connell had found an echo of his home in Ireland, that he felt he had come home again when after a long career working for the railroad, he bought himself a farm on the outskirts of Waterville in LeSueur County Minnesota.

Now I had visited the place where he had his beginnings and where he lived near the end of his life. It gave me great pleasure.

History of Clare Abbey & Killone, County Clare—1826–1829

This is a brief excerpt from this book, available at our library.

Tithes

Tithes were based on the occupation of land varying according the land held by tenant. This form of tax was to pay for the support of the established church; The Church of England. All tenants, regardless of their religion had to support the Protestant Clergy.

The following is an alphabetized list of all persons tithed in the civil parish of Clare Abbey, County Clare. The numbers refer to the townlands listed at the end of the article in that book.

Gleanings

From HERE and THERE and Clans too!

Be sure that you go through the library column, some great additions. An example is the book, Five Lynch Brothers from Limerick, which is the result of 40 years of researching by the author, Mary Lynch Young. The book is available for sale from Gateway Press Inc., Baltimore, MD for $37.50 each. David Lynch left Co. Limerick to come to America in 1846.

PASSPORT SEARCHES—For passports issued prior to 1906, write Diplomatic Records Branch, National Archives, Room 5D, Washington D.C. 20408. From 1906 to present write, The Passport Office, Dept. of State, 1425 K Street NW, Washington DC 20406. Good resource if any of your ancestors returned for a visit to Ireland.

NEW YORK—Eastchester Historical Society, Box 37, Eastchester, NY 10709, has published a book, Birth Records of the Town of Eastchester, 1881-1913. The book contains birth records for the North Section of Bronx County 1881-1898; City of Mt. Vernon 1881-1895 (many Germans); Village of Bronxville 1881-1898; Village of Tuckahoe 1881-1903 (Irish & Italian); and present day Eastchester 1881-1914. Cost is $30 plus $4.50 p & h. To order, write the society or for further information, call Phyllis B. Knowles at 914-237-7164.

BUFFALO BILL—William Frederick Cody was born in Scott County, Iowa in 1846. It is believed his parents came from Co. Tipperary but had some connection in Bandon, Co. Cork. Does anyone know of a good source on "Buffalo Bill's" Irish background? The Bandon Local History Assn. is looking for information. Write IGSI with anything you might have.

POTATO FAMINE—Next year, 1995, the 150th anniversary of the Irish Potato Famine will be commemorated. This is a tragic period in the history of Ireland and currently being referred to as "The Great Hunger" as there really was no "famine" or lack of food. We welcome input from members as they become aware of "ceremonies" on the famine in the coming year. We will try and pass them on. As we stated in the July newsletter, a museum on the Potato Famine has opened in Strokestown Park House, County Roscommon. Be sure and visit them if you are in Ireland. We have ordered the book, The Great Irish Famine, published by the museum.

AUSTRALIA—You will note in the library acquisitions, that we have purchased four books on the Irish in Australia and New Zealand. I didn't realize until the last few years, how many of our American Irish had siblings go to Australia, some via the USA or Canada! We'll purchase more books as they become available.

Belfast Newsletter 1739-1800—The Department of Special Collections, Univ. of St. Thomas, St. Paul, Minn., has recently acquired the microfilm reels of the Belfast Newsletter, the oldest continuously published English language newsletter paper in the world! This includes copies of the newspaper plus a five-part index of surnames, places, ships, general topics and advertisements. The index is on microfiche. Watch for a more detailed article on this plus the Luxembourge collection they have also acquired. If you wish the Belfast Newsletter index checked, we may be able to have a local member search for you. Please note the years!

ESTATES—If you read the article in the latest issue of The Irish at Home and Abroad, you have seen the article on the Estate records in Ireland. This is a great article giving you the background of these records and what IGSI is contributing towards these inventories. We have just received the inventories/indexes for counties ARMAGH, DONEGAL and TYRONE. For additional information send an SASE to IGSI.

Directory of Irish Genealogy—Available for $7 postpaid from Divelina Publications, 30 Brighton Gardens, Terenure, Dublin 6, Ireland. This is published by Sean Murphy and he accepts entries to the Register of Irish Emigrants section for future publications. Write him for additional information.

CLARE—The East Clare Heritage, St. Cronan's 10th Century Church, Tuamgraney, Co. Ireland, has an extensive range of historical and genealogical material relative to East Clare. They do research for a fee and publish a journal which we have just added to our collection. To see if they might help you with your East Clare ancestors, write to Gerard Madden at the above address. Be sure and let them know you are a member of IGSI. If you purchased our book on the Heritage Centers, we have an updated page for Co. Clare to include this new resource.

FERMANAGH—We ordered the 1901 Irish Census Index for County Fermanagh from Largy Books, PO Box 6023, Fort McMurray, Alberta T9H 4W1, Canada. Because we ordered pre-publication, we will receive a book. Future orders will receive the index on microfiche with a county and civil parish maps in hardcopy. Their plans are to do other counties also. If your library is interested, you may want to write them.

KERRY—The County Kerry center has opened at the following address: Killarney Genealogical Centre, Bishops House, Killarney, County Kerry, Ireland. However, queries should be directed to Mrs. Kathleen Brown, Hon. Secretary, c/o Kerry County Library, Tralee, Co. Kerry, Ireland. They are a member of the Irish Genealogical Project. For a complete list of the parish records already indexed, send us an SASE. If you purchased our book on the Heritage Centers, we'll send you a two page update on County Kerry. Just let us know.

KERRY—Kerry researcher, Maurice "Mike" Murphy, has a new address. For information on his genealogical consultations, write him at: The Family Tree, The Glen, Ballinskelligs, Co. Kerry, Ireland. FAX: 353-66-79366

ROSCOMMON—The Drum Heritage Group of Drum Parish in County Roscommon near Athlone, has published a book on the history of their area titled, Drum Heritage Book (see the ad in this issue). We have just received a copy for the library, and it is a great history of this area, including Memorials to the Dead from the Drum Old Cemetery, school rosters, etc.

Clans

O'KELLY—Clan gathering 26th to 28th May 1995. For info write, Kelly Clann, Muintir Ui Cheallaig, Tourist Office, Roscommon, Co. Roscommon, Ireland.

MacKENNA—Clann MacKenna had a rally in Co. Monaghan on 9-12 September 1994. We received the notice in August, too late for this year, but you might want to write about future rallies. Contact Thomas P. McKenna, 3500 Rolling Green, #0-53, Fort Collins, CO, USA. TEL or FAX (303) 226-5704.

SHEAN/SHEANE/SHANE—Clan gathering for Australians with this surname, County Wicklow in June/July 1995. For further information contact Donald Sheane, 'Windermere', Blainroe, Wicklow, Ireland. Can't believe that they wouldn't allow others with the surname but you may want to write before making plans! Notice was in the 1994, No. 2 issue of Irish Roots.

Queries

Address queries to: IGS, P.O. Box 16585, St. Paul, MN 55116, ATTN: Queries. When sending a query to be published it isn't necessary to send a SASE. IGS number and/or most recent mailing label must accompany query.

husband was semi-retired for reasons of health. The house was not the one Daniel and David Connell had lived in. It was "only" a hundred years old, but the land was the same and it was a very moving experience to stand on the same land my grandfather and great-grandfather had occupied. I was able to take some pictures.

Unfortunately we did not have time to stay very long. We had to drive back and pick up the other members of our group at Craggaunowen Centre, a prehistoric Irish construction re-created in a lakeside setting. On the way out we did drive by the school at Killuran and I took pictures of this also.

The Walshes had asked for pictures of the farming area that David Connell had lived in Le Sueur County, Minnesota. So the next fall my husband John and I drove down to Waterville, where my grandfather David Connell had settled with his family. We took pictures of the farm land along Hwy. 60, between Faribault and Waterville. It was a green and golden lovely land with dairy farms and crops ripening in the autumn sun. In many ways the farms, even today, although larger, were reminiscent of the land he came from—rolling countryside, farm-land that would probably rate as good but not prime. I had a strong feeling that David Connell had found an echo of his home in Ireland, that he felt he had come home again when after a long career working for the railroad, he bought himself a farm on the outskirts of Waterville in LeSueur County Minnesota.

Now I had visited the place where he had his beginnings and where he lived near the end of his life. It gave me great pleasure.

History of Clare Abbey & Killone, County Clare—1826–1829

This is a brief excerpt from this book, available at our library.

Tithes

Tithes were based on the occupation of land varying according the land held by tenant. This form of tax was to pay for the support of the established church; The Church of England. All tenants, regardless of their religion had to support the Protestant Clergy.

The following is an alphabetized list of all persons tithed in the civil parish of Clare Abbey, County Clare. The numbers refer to the townlands listed at the end of the article in that book.

Céad Míle Fáilte - "a hundred thousand welcomes"

"Limerick, You're a Lady"*

County: Limerick Province: Munster Capital: Limerick City (pop. 76,000)
Other Cities: Abbeyfeale, Adare, Kilmallock, Newscastle West, Rathkeale
Land Area: 640,621 acres Cultivated: 548,640 acres Mountains & Bog: 91,981 acres
Bounded by Counties Cork, Kerry, Clare (River Shannon) and Tipperary.

Limerick's general aspect is flat, though diversified by many small hills and in some parts mountains of considerable elevation. The entire face of the country, notwithstanding its great natural fertility, presents a very denuded appearance, for the want of trees; hedgerows being very uncommon and timber trees being seldom seen except in the vicinity of the residences of the wealthy proprietors. Only one-fourth of the land is under tillage, the balance being in pasture for black cattle and sheep. The fertility of the land is such that in some area, potato yield is over 100 stone (2000 pounds)

This and the nearby area of Clare are famous for their orchards and Cackagey cider.

Among the natural curiosities may be included Laugh Gur, with its romantic knolls, islands and cave; the Castle Connell spa; and the sulfurous spring at Montpelier.

So numerous were the castles rendered necessary by the former unsettled state of the country that they are sometimes found within a half mile of each other.

Limerick, located 60 miles up the Shannon River, did see many (quite) small emigrant ships leave from its docks. The trip was not very safe, so most emigrants sailed out of Cork, or more probably, Liverpool, England.

Palatine Names

The following names are extracted from The Palatine Families of Ireland by Henry Z. Jones, Jr. The book is in our library. The list is of all Palatine names which appear more than 4 times in his book. It includes people from other than Limerick, but since Limerick was the largest and most important Palatine settlement, the list is useful. As with all names, variant spellings exist for most of the names. Consult the index to the book for the different spellings and for other Palatine names.

*A song written and recorded by Dennis Allen

From The President—Ginny Delaney

A happy 1995 to you and yours. I am writing this letter in a wintery Minnesota, with a possibility of snow in the forecast. What a perfect time to work on family histories, or better yet to write a short story for The Septs.

Winter, in fact, is a great time to get reacquainted. Write to those cousins you haven't seen for years. Write to those aunts and uncles that are getting on in years. What better way is there to cheer their winter days than to remind them of years gone by. Make it easy for them to answer, by sending a sheet with specific questions and an SASE to send back to you. Write to those court houses for vital records, even for siblings of your parents your grandparents, as there may be a clue there to help you. After the holidays are over, we need a task to get through the winter blahs and correspondence will do it. Every time you get one of those envelopes back, it's one more piece of the puzzle. One researcher in our group says she doesn't care if they tell her they can't locate something, because then she knows she will never have to look there again.

To date we have approximately 1522 members of IGSI and still continue to grow. Be sure to continue to tell your friends and family to become a member — you are our best advertisement.

1994 saw IGSI board members traveling in many directions to spread the word and boost our membership. To name a few, Moorhead State University Heritage Fair in Moorhead, MN; the Second Irish Genealogical Congress in Dublin, Ireland; Minnesota Irish Heritage Fair in St. Paul and others reported by Beth Mullinax in this newsletter. If you have a conference or seminar coming up in 1995, let us know if you would like to have a speaker and we will see if we can work it out.

IGSI could not function as effectively as it does without the volunteers and board members. A special thanks to those travelers and to the volunteers that donate their time to help make these appearances successful.

The board members continue to brainstorm for ways to provide assistance to Irish researchers. Again we welcome your suggestions and ideas.

In closing, I would like to be the first to wish you a Happy St. Patrick's Day. Good luck on your research.

Dear Septs...

"I have been a member for about four months – delighted I am to already have heard from someone I feel has to be a distant family member. I hope more research on my part and continued help from The Septs will prove this true. So glad I was referred to you."

Nola McGuire Garner of Fulton, MO

And from Pat Davis, Glendora, NJ:

"Many thanks for all your help. The newsletter is so far up the ladder from the several other organizations I belong to it almost blows all "Competition" away. I try to glean something from each publication. Even sitting here a long distance from Minnesota, The Septs brings a learning tool to my door. I have so many issues piled up, I'll be forced soon to share them. Even after a few years, the information is relevant. Keep up the wonderful work."

Member Mary Caviston Zlobl, 327 Sheridan Ave., Roselle Park, NJ 07204, sent in information on two death certificates that she found while trying to locate death information on her grandfather, Joseph Connor. These were not her Joseph, but they might be yours! Write her if you are interested in these.

Joseph Connor, died 12 May 1928, New York City, Bellevue Hospital, Manhattan Borough, chronic heart disease. Age 52, born in Ireland, resident of NYC 45 years. Father: Patrick, Mother: Mary O'Connor, both born in Ireland. Buried in Calvary Cemetery 16 May 1928.

Joseph Conner, died 9 January 1927, NYC, Kings County Hospital, Brooklyn Borough of multiple external injuries, extreme. Struck by trolley car in front of his home. Age 86, born in Ireland, resident of City 4 years at 4810 8th Ave, Brooklyn. In U.S. 84 years, retired machinist, widower. Father: Edward, Mother: Mary Seery, both from Ireland. Buried St. Joackum Cemetery, Landford (? unclear) PA on 12 Jan 1927.

Member Regina Reddington, 115 E. Hilton Ave., Youngstown, OH 44507-1912, gathered the following information in researching for her Carrolls. These are not her ancestors, but are they yours?

From Holy Cross Cemetery in Malden, MA, a Patrick Carroll lot. The lot was purchased by Patrick on 29 May 1894. His residence at the time was 1 Linnehan Court, Cambridge, MA. The names and dates of internment in this lot are as follows: 30 May 1894, Margaret Carroll, 28 years – 21 June 1894, David Carroll, 10 months – 27 October 1899, Mary A. Carroll, 16 years – 4 May 1906, Timothy Carroll, 15 years and 8 months – 15 February 1913, Joseph Carroll, 27 years – 5 May 1928, Patrick Carroll, 63 years and 2 months

From Father Daniel J. Burns, P.P, The Presbytery, Belgooly, County Cork, Ireland. A baptismal search for Carroll 1860-1867 came the following: – 1860 April 11, John of Jerry Carroll and Ellen Delea? Sponsors: Maurice Murphy and Kitty Buckley – 1861 May 9, Margaret of James Carroll and Catherine Buckley Sponsors: James Carroll and Mary Buckley – 1863 February 27, Mary of James Carroll and Catherine Buckley. Sponsors: Maurice Murphy and Margaret Lineham – 1866 May 12, Catherine of Michael Carroll and Mary McCarthy Sponsors: William Ahern and Mary Horgan 1867 February 16, Catherine of James Carroll and Catherine Buckley. Sponsors: John Murphy and Johanna Collins.

Thanks for sharing this information with us. I'm sure we all have certificates and/or certificates that we have dug up in our search for information on our own ancestors. I've got baptismal information on at least five John Hennessys from County Kerry if anyone is interested.

Editor's Corner

A new year has rolled around and we hope 1995 is your most successful research year yet. There is so much to pack into this issue of The Septs, that my message is going to be very brief.

Ida Troye

We have an additional list of interments by surname for Calvary Cemetery in New York. These have been provided by members of IGSI. There were so many, we will have to publish them in subsequent newsletters. We have the complete file, Part I and Part II in our library, so if you want us to check on a name, just request it with an sase.

We are going to try a new department in the newsletter. Computer interest. With all the new things out and so many with computers, we thought you might enjoy the addition. If anyone has any suggestions or introductions to new items related to Irish research, please contribute. We all need to help each other.

A story of search of an adoptee and a success story in Co. Clare are both delightful. Hope to hear from members as to their experiences in genealogy.

Enjoy!

Ida

Limerick— More Than a Silly Rhyme

County Limerick was a Norse settlement of the 9th century (Vikings) and has survived many invasions since.

Visitors to the province of Munster should learn to expect sudden heights and long drops, tiny cameos of green meadow, the constant bubbling of running water and mellow landmarks from every period of Irish history. Although Limerick's general aspect is flat, though diversified by many small hills, some parts boast mountains of considerable elevation. One conspicuous site is Knock Patrick, between Shanagolden and the Shannon River.

"Who Lived at Ballygannor Which Lies Across a Valley a Short Distance From Ballytumulty."

By Roy Rozycki

Isn't that a mystical statement? The search for my Irish ancestors was granted to me by my nephew when he published the Rozycki-O'Dea genealogy. We had a family reunion in Blackduck, Minnesota in Aug. 1992 with each of the living relatives submitting family charts. There is only limited information on my mother's Irish ancestry.

My brother and his wife visited Ireland in 1964 with limited information from my mother regarding the location of the O'Deas and the Wards. They visited P. J. O'Dea at Ballytumulty, the birthplace of my grandfather, Thomas O'Dea. P.J.'s son, Kevin was living with his parents. They also visited Paddy and Mary Bridget Ward at Clogher, the birthplace of my grandmother Margaret Ward O'Dea. Both farms are in the vicinity of Kilfernora, County Clare.

I found many letters that my mother had received from Mary Bridget Ward as they had corresponded almost monthly from 1964 to 1975 when my mother died. In one of the letters I found that Paddy had sold Glogher to James and Anna Howard, due to his failing health, but that the Howards had added a room to the house and invited Paddy and Mary Bridget to continue living with them from 1967 until 1974 at which time they moved to Lisdoonvarna.

When my wife, Helen and I decided we would actually go to Ireland to search for our relatives, I wrote three letters. One was to P. J. and Kevin O'Dea at Ballytumulty, one to Paddy and Mary Bridget at the retirement home where they now lived, and the third to James and Anna Howard at Clogher, Kilfernora, County Clare, Ireland.

Kevin O'Dea's wife Mary wrote that P. J. had died in 1973 , however she and Kevin invited us to visit them.

Anna Howard wrote that Paddy and Mary Bridget were both dead but gave us the address of Paddy's niece, Ann Ward Burke who operated a B&B near Ennis. We contacted Ann and asked to reserve a room at her Casa Maria B&B for three nights. Ann and Michael Burke are a wonderful couple and have a lovely new home designed to incorporate the B&B.

The Richard Wards from Cottage Grove, Minnesota arrived from Corofin where they were seeking information on his great-grandfather, Martin Ward born about 1815. Since my great-grandfather, Martin Ward was born in 1840 they may be related, but we were not able to confirm this fact.

Ann Burke invited her cousins and brother to meet us and I was able to obtain information about many members of their families and complete several family group sheets. One of Ann's cousins, John Joe O'Llaughlin is an artist at telling stories and kept everyone entertained while I was trying to record my data.

Ann Ward's father, Thomas and her uncle, James were well-known musicians, having spent some time in Las Vegas performing at Ceasar's Palace. They were also journeymen masons and during the time that Dromoland Castle was being restored, James opened a wall where an original doorway had been and he discovered a large cache of gold and other precious items. These were turned over to the Irish Government for safekeeping. When we visited the national museum in Dublin, we saw many exhibits of golden art that had been found in such places as peat bogs and caves, supposedly to keep it from the hands of invaders.

Mary had found a small sheet of paper in a sealed jar that had been written by Kevin's grandfather John. He had listed the names and birth dates of all his brothers and sisters including the date his older brother Thomas emigrated to the U.S. in November 1887.

Upon my return home, Mary did send a listing of the children of two brothers of Martin O'Dea, but I still have not been able to find the name of Martin's father "who lived at Ballygannor, which lies across a valley a short distance from Ballytumulty" (County Clare).

Computer Talk

OK, So you're thinking about buying a computer. What can it do for you?

by Ray Marshall, IGS Member

The main reason I bought a computer and printer in 1989 is that I got very tired of having to do Family Record Sheets when new babies appeared or birth order changed as my inquiries spread. It's as simple as that. I'm lazy and I didn't want to have to spend my limited research time in retyping forms.

The joy of having nice clean up-to-date records is unbounded. But once one gets a computer, then you start thinking of new ways to use it.

Some of the most valuable information provided by our IGS in Septs is the "Queries" section and the monthly list of members and the names they are researching. I am a firm believer in that method of genealogy (in hopes of finding someone who will have done all my work for me) and have sent a fair number of letters over the years.

The word processor program in a computer allows me to keep my letters on file and copy them for re-use when sending to someone who is interested in a name for which I have already created a letter. I same time in not having to type the letter from scratch each time and I end up with a nice history of my correspondence and the addresses of people interested in my names.

I don't have very many names in my files (850 or so) but the geneaology program which I use (Personal Ancestor File from LDS) makes it very easy for me to spot people who have been entered more than once, people without parents or spouses and other problems which come up from time to time when handling larger databases of people about which you only vaguely know. When you end up with eight "William Scanlons" in your files, you need some system to quickly figure out which one.

These programs create nice charts and displays which make it easy for the non-genealogist to understand what you are talking about when you are inquiring about Great Aunt Kate. They also create your files in a form which would allow you to give a copy of your information to someone else or file it with the LDS Ancestry File in Salt Lake City.

MGS Computer Fundraiser

Now available through MGS, for a donation towards the purchase of a new computer for MGS (Minnesota Genealogical Society)—a computer search of about 80% of the listed households in the United States can be made. The result is a list containing name, address, Zip Code, and telephone numbers of listed households.

For $3.00, one spelling of a surname will be searched and a listing of the results, up to 250 names, will be provided. If there are over 250 names, you will be notified of the total and asked for an additional $3.00 donation for each additional 250 names. This will be done before the list is printed and mailed.

Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope, the surnames you would like searched, and a check or money order payable to Minnesota Genealogical Society, P. O. Box 16069, St. Paul, MN 55116-0069.

Famine Commemoration

Remember that 1995 is the 150th anniversary of the "Great Famine" and we are interested in any information that you have on "celebrations" around the world marking this anniversary. For instance, "The Great Famine" will be the theme of the 1995 Minnesota Irish Heritage Fair. Thanks for the contributions that have already been sent. We'll pass this information on in the April newsletter.

Adoptions From Ireland

At the 1992 Minnesota Irish Fair a young man stopped by our booth and said that he was adopted and was wondering if there was a way to research his ancestry in Ireland. He knew he had been in a Dublin orphanage and that a Parish Priest in the U.S. arranged the adoption.

We mailed him some addresses from our resources and a letter from the Irish Echo on an Irish adoptees group and he took it from there. The following is a result of his inquiries within the U.S. and in Ireland. We have printed this with his permission in the hope that it will be of help to other Irish adoptees interested in their birth parents. His letter:

"In June 1957, I was adopted from an orphanage in Ireland. In February 1994, I began the search for my birth mother.

"First, I wrote two government agencies requesting information. One letter I sent to the Adoption Board in Dublin, and the other to the Irish Embassy in Washington, D.C. The Adoption Board replied immediately. The reply from the Embassy took almost three months. The Adoption Board stated that if you were born in Ireland but adopted in America, you have a right as an American citizen to all papers regarding your immigration/citizenship under the Information/Privacy Act. They also stated that there is no actual legislation in place in Ireland about obtaining information, but all agencies are helping adoptees trace if that is what they want and they suggested I write my adoption agency. The Embassy responded that as far as they knew, all adoption files are sealed in Ireland. They also said that I may wish to contact the Adoption Board in Ireland whose jurisdiction this falls under. Despite this mixed message, I continued the search.

"My adoptive parents were proud of the fact that their children were from Ireland. They have contributed to the orphanage over the years, so I have always known the name of the orphanage from which I was adopted. I was also fortunate to have always known my birth name. Armed with this information I wrote the orphanage asking if a search could be initiated.

"The first letter I received from the orphanage was encouraging. It came from a social worker who is now conducting my search. In the letter she told me about the changes in attitude toward adoption in recent years, and that many other adoptees are also beginning to search. She impressed upon me the fact that being "found out" is still a very real concern of some birth mothers."

The letter went on to say that, "agencies understand giving up a child for adoption is something a birth mother never forgets, or in some cases, never gets over. She went on to tell me about my own adoption. She gave me my birth mother's first name and that her sister had accompanied her from a rural town. I was told my father was a farmer. I had not known that before, nor had I expected so much information so soon.

"As of this writing, I'm trying to wait patiently for the next letter to arrive from Ireland. I'm hopeful that this search will conclude with letters that might lead to a face to face reunion. If not, I think that I'm prepared for whatever the outcome."

If you don't know the agency you were adopted from, write to:

U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service 425 I Street NW, Room 5114 Washington, D.C. 20536

Address of the Adoption Board:

Adoption Board Hawkins House Hawkins Street Dublin 2, Ireland

NOTE: Watch for further development on this search. A special thanks to the adoptee who shared his experience with us.

February Quarterly Meeting

Researching Irish Records in Dublin at Home and Abroad

Speakers: Beth Mullinax and Florence Myslajek

Researching for information in Dublin records and repositories is easier if you know just where to look. What do you need to know beyond the hours and the location? Beth Mullinax and Florence Myslajek will bring you information on a number of different sources—The National Library, the Registry of Deeds, the Valuation Office, the Public Register Office, all of these enlivened by their personal experiences. They will also explain the methods and possibilities of doing some of this research from your home base. They will distribute handouts to help you do this. Beth will round off the meeting by showing slides of Ireland.

The next quarterly meeting will be Saturday, May 20, 1995

IMMIGRATION OF IRISH QUAKERS INTO PENNSYLVANIA, 1682-1750, With Their Early History in Ireland, by Albert Cook Myers, M.L. Published and donated by Genealogical Publishing Co., 1001 N. Calvert St., Baltimore MD 21202-3879, repr. 1994 (1902), 499 pp., illus., indexed, cloth. Price $30.00 plus $3.00 postage & handling. Tel: 1-800-296-6687. Reviewed by Kathleen Wetherall.

This book gives us the history of the beginnings of the Quaker religion in Ireland and the subsequent emigration of many of the Irish Quakers to Pennsylvania. It is truly absorbing history of this small group of people, as well as an amazing genealogical account for their descendants. The Quakers were almost exclusively from English and Scottish Protestant background. The number of original emigrants was probably no more than 2000, including women and children.

The book is full of letters, short biographies and "Certificates of Removal" from the Irish Meetings to those in New England. You get to know the intimate details of the people's lives, where they came from in Ireland, where they settled in this country, the names of all the family members, how they lived and when they died. For anyone who is of Quaker heritage, this book is a treasure not to be missed. For the rest of us, it is a fascinating piece of the social history of our country.

AN INQUIRY INTO THE GENEALOGY AND PRESENT STATE OF ANCIENT SCOTTISH SURNAMES: WITH THE ORIGIN AND DESCENT OF THE HIGHLAND CLANS, AND FAMILY OF BUCHANAN, by William Buchanan. Published and donated by Heritage Books, Inc., 1540-E Pointer Ridge Pl., Suite #300, Bowie MD 20716, repr. 1994 (1820), 337 pp., index, paper. Price is $24.00 plus $3.50 shipping. Tel: 1-800-398-7709. Review by Beth Mullinax.

This reprint is basically a history of the Buchanan surname in Scotland, going back to its beginning. Along with the history of the name, you get a review of Scottish history and the Clan system in Scotland. Besides the Buchanans, some of the other surname origins mentioned are: Murray, Stewart, Douglas, Wymess, Campbell, Ogilvie, Kennedy, Graham, Seaton, Hamilton, Hepburn, Gray, Munroe, Grant, etc. The author also goes into accounts of some of the other surnames, such as MacDonalds, MacDougal, MacNeil, Macleod, MacFarlane, MacGregor, etc.

This book is a must for anyone with Scots or Scots-Irish ancestry. It is indexed by surname which was added in the reprint making it an easy reference. However, if you don't find your surname, read through it anyway. The historical account of these various clans is interesting, especially from the 1820 perspective.

INTERNATIONAL VITAL RECORDS HANDBOOK, 3rd Edition, by Thomas Jay Kemp. Published and donated by Genealogical Publishing Company, 1001 No. Calvert St., Baltimore MD 21202, 1994, 417 pp., paper, $29.95 plus $3.00 postage & handling. Tel: 1-800-296-6687. Reviewed by Beth Mullinax.

Anyone who has done any genealogy at all is familiar with Thomas Jay Kemp's vital record books. This is the 3rd Edition with updated costs, forms and addresses. It contains information for the vital records of the U.S., Canada, as well as the rest of the world.

The information on each state, province, or country, gives you the dates that the records begin (usually the vital statistics for birth, death and marriages), the addresses, telephone numbers and even some FAX numbers as well as copies of most of the forms required to apply for a certificate.

All 50 US states are covered as well as the U.S. Trust Territories. The international countries begin with Afghanistan and end with Zimbabwe! A great resource if you are looking for a birth, death or marriage record, and what genealogist isn't.

Gleanings

From HERE and THERE and Clans too!

Since the last issue I have attended the Second Irish Genealogical Congress in Dublin and then toured the south of Ireland with a group of our members. Some of the information in this column is from that trip, some from members and other sources, which we really appreciate. Don't assume that we "know it all," we'd rather receive information from ten different sources than not receive it at all. For example, members referred us to the December 1992 issue of Tree Talks, a genealogical journal with Irish immigrants listed. We have not been able to obtain a copy of this, but will keep trying.

Another member referred us to two issues of NEXUS, the journal of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, with records of deaths in Massachusetts of Irish natives which lists their place of origin in Ireland. We did obtain copies of these and they are mentioned below.

We receive and read many journals and newsletters, but mostly from the Irish societies. If you see anything on the Irish in other journals that you subscribe to, please pass the issue number and its name along to us. Thanks.

MASSACHUSETTS—NEXUS, April-June 1993, features Deaths in Mass. (1841-1851), With Named Parents, of Irish Natives Born Before 1800, by Richard Andrew Pierce. The August-September 1992 issue features Selected Inscriptions from St. Mary's Catholic Cemetery, Milford, Mass., Giving Exact Place of Origin in Ireland, transcribed by Richard Andrew Pierce.

TEXAS—Texas Seaport Museum, 2016 Strand, Galveston Island, TX 77550. Tel: (409) 763-0027, FAX: (409) 765-7851. This museum has an Immigration database of immigrants who came through the Galveston Texas seaport. If you are in the area, you will want to visit the museum which, among other things, has a restored 1877 Tall Ship. You can also check the database if you had immigrants come through that area or they will accept mail inquiries and print out the family records for $2.50 per surname. There are several Irish communities in Texas and the database contains thousands of immigrants, of course not all Irish. Texas has large German and Czech communities. We have a few of their brochures.

There

IRISH INDEX—Mrs. P.A. Berner, 15 Dover Close, Hill head, Fareham, Hampshire PO14 3SU, England, has thousands of names (1665-1902) from censuses, wills, deeds, newspapers, directories, passenger lists, tax lists, lists of emigrants, etc. Many entries give ages, trades, townlands and religion in addition to names. Search fees are 2 Pound Sterling (no stamps, please) or $4 (bills only). Checks payable to P.A. Berner.

EAST CLARE—Patrick Callaghan, 4 Murchison St., St. Ives 2075, NSW, Australia, has started a "Descendants of Tulla Register" for people researching their Irish ancestors in the parish of Tulla, County Clare. He records the name and address of the researcher together with the basic details of the families being researched. Once or twice each year he mails out the full list of members and their interests so you can correspond with anyone that is researching a similar family. There is no cost for this, all he asks is for an SASE, or an International Reply coupon for overseas correspondents. Mr. Callaghan is the person who notified us of the book, For God or King, The History of Mountshannon, Co. Clare, 1741-1992, Edited by Gerard Madden, of the East Clare Heritage, Tuamgraney, Ireland.

DUBLIN—Sean Murphy, MA, Genealogist, who is listed in the County Dublin part of the Heritage Centers book has a change of address. It is now: Carraig, Cliff Road, Windgates, Bray, County Wicklow, Ireland. Tel: (01) 2874290.

The Dun Laoghaire Genealogical Society has published a book, Memorial Inscriptions of Deansgrange Cemetery, Blackrock, Co Dublin. The cost is six Irish Punts, plus four Irish Punts shipping outside of Ireland, about $18.00 US. Mail orders to: Barry O'Connor, DLGS, 14, Rochestown Park, Dun Laoghaire, Co Dublin, Ireland.

GALWAY—We have mentioned in prior issues, information on the "Connemara Settlement" in Minnesota. I believe we also published a list of them as passengers coming over in June 1880. I just completed an index of this passenger list which had been copied by a member from the microfilm copy in the National Archives. Most of the passengers are from Galway, Ireland, but about 75 from Londonderry, and about 45 from Scotland, mostly Glasgow, Aberdeen and Dalry.

There were also four passengers whose last residence was Boston! They were Michael McDermott, John Doherty, R. Kirkland and Martin Darcy, all "Cattle Tenders." John Doherty was born in Ireland, the other three in Glasgow. This list gives name, age, occupation, birth place and last place of residence. We have shared the passenger list and the index with the County Galway Family History Society in Galway, Ireland.

KERRY—In the October 1994 issue I stated that County Kerry is now accepting inquiries from the parish records indexed by the Kerry group. On visiting the Bishop's House in Killarney, and Mrs. Kathleen Brown in the Kerry County Library, Tralee, I found that the information we passed on from the Directory of Parish Registers Indexed in Ireland by Irish Family History Society, Naas, Ireland, is incorrect. The Bishop who was pushing the project died recently and everything in Killarney is on hold. Mrs. Brown assured us that they are not taking any inquires and have no planes to do so until the indexing is completed. They have a little over half of the parishes finished to date. She projected January 1996 as a possible deadline for completion. If anyone wrote them after we published the notice that they were taking inquiries, please let us know the results.

I also visited with the Southern Health Board, Registration Office, St. Columbanus Home in Killarney. They have the vital statistics for the area, but we do need the place of birth, death or marriage before they will search for you. They have 32 districts and need to know which one. I obtained copies of the applications from them.

KILKENNY—The Irish Genealogist printed in three of their journals, Extracts From the Census of 1821, Barony of Iverk, County of Kilkenny. These extracts were from the papers of Edmond Walsh Kelly, uncle of Kathleen Kelly who contributed them to the journal. These listings are in Vol. 5, Nos 3, 4 & 5, 1978.

SCOTLAND—See the article on Galway passenger list, above.

TIPPERARY—The Bru Boru Heritage Centre, Rock of Cashel, Co Tipperary, TEL: 062-61122, FAX: 062-62700. I visited at this centre while our group was touring the "Rock" and found that their current project is an index of the vital statistics of the area. In other words, they are taking the births, deaths and marriages since 1864 and producing an index to them. This means that you do not need an exact location (district) of your ancestors in southern Tipperary.

AS OUR MEMBERS TRAVEL AROUND IN 1994—

by Beth Mullinax

Our membership has now gone over 1,500!! This has taken a lot of work by you members and the Board, both past and present. You have been passing out the membership brochures in your areas, putting information about us in your local newsletters, and passing by word of mouth, as well as by computer networks, information on the Society.

Members of your Board have traveled around so much this summer, attending conferences, meetings and giving talks on Irish research and the society, that I was asked to share some of our experiences with you. Also, to offer our help in giving classes, setting up Irish Interest Groups, and promoting Irish travel and research. Several of us are interested in doing this, especially in the Midwest area. We will try and notify you ahead of time when we will be in your area.

We started off the "season" with the usual St. Patrick's Day Celebration held in St. Paul, Minnesota, at the historic Landmark Center. Information was passed out and questions answered. We always brought some of our research books and maps for people to look through.

Next was a two-week trip in April which began in Minneapolis, down to San Antonio and El Paso, Texas. We went up through New Mexico and then back home. We made no formal presentations but left information and brochures in libraries along the way. Greats trip covering more than 4100 miles made by myself and a friend.

May began with a slide show on Ireland for a local group, and then the beginning of another drive to Texas for the National Genealogical Society's Conference in Houston. Our Society was given a room during the Conference to have a meeting where I passed out some information, had some of our publications for people to browse through and then told them about the Society. There were about 22 attendees, several of whom were already members, but we had a few more join as a result of this.

We just returned from Texas and got ready for the Gene-A-Rama held in Appleton, Wisconsin this year. Ida Troye and I manned a booth selling books and offering information. We've attended this for the last five years or so and are always well received. Lots of Irish in Wisconsin!

July 9th found us at Ironworld up on "The Range," Chisholm, Minnesota, for their Ethnic Days. This was their Irish Day, and a great celebration. Ida Troye, Paddy Crague and I were there to man a booth and to give several short talks on Irish research.

August began with a bus trip to the first Great Lakes Conference, held in Fort Wayne, Indiana. This was a great conference which I hope is continued. I and several other members attended, distributing brochures and attending lectures.

We always take a carload or two to the Milwaukee Irish Fest, the largest in the US, held the third weekend in August. The Irish Genealogical Society of Wisconsin has a Genealogy Tent, which the last two years has included the LDS people with their computer systems so they could go into their records right there for you! This year, Ida and I offered our services for a couple of hours when they were short handed. They are nice enough to put our brochures out on the tables.

The Celtic Fest, held at Murphy's Landing, an historical site in Scott County, Minnesota, was in August also. We had a group of volunteers man a booth with research material and literature on the Society. A fun weekend which included the local Scottish, Welsh, Manx and Irish groups.

September was the Family History Workshop, sponsored by the Heritage Education Commission, Moorhead, Minnesota. Ida Troye and Virginia Mahoney attended, Virginia giving two presentations. This is our second year of participation in the workshop, selling books and assisting with research questions as well as the presentations. The Irish are always well received in this German and Scandinavian area of Minnesota!

We can't forget the Second Irish Genealogical Congress in Dublin. This was a full week of Irish genealogy, 8 A.M. to 5 P.M. almost every day—didn't start until 11 A.M. on Sunday! There were also films, slide shows, presentations, etc., going on until close to 10 P.M. most evenings. This is not counting all the social happenings. I could write pages on this, and you will be hearing more on some contacts we made in future newsletters. We purchased about $1,000 worth of books, many listed in this issue. A few were in the last newsletter and there are more to come.

As one of the sponsoring groups, we were given a table. We did not sell anything but displayed our surname books, past newsletters and membership brochures. Our newsletters were so popular that several disappeared as did two of our surname lists! The County Galway group asked for the April 1994 issue of the newsletter which featured Galway. They were given this as well as the first run of the Index to the 1880 Galway Passenger List mentioned in Gleanings.

I did miss one session of lectures to go haunt the book stores of Dublin, both new and used. I hated to do this, but there was no time after classes and I had used almost every lunch period to look. After a week of the Congress, I felt I could have gone for another week at least! That should tell you how interesting the lectures were. Usually after two or three days at a conference I'm getting bored. I had the feeling that I finally understood many of the things that I had been hearing about for years.

There were many members there. We had fifteen in our tour group that first week, plus I met members that had joined us after the last Congress. Several came up and introduced themselves, which we enjoyed. Next Congress we will sponsor a luncheon if we are asked. Start planning for 1997!!!!

NOTE: Repeat Performance, 2911 Crabapple Lane, Hobart IN 46342, taped the Congress. If you are interested in any, write them and ask for The Irish Genealogical Congress list of tapes.

Less than two weeks after returning from Ireland in October, I headed to Peoria, for the Illinois Genealogical Society's Conference. I presented a lecture on Irish Research which was well attended. What an interesting city. My hotel room overlooked the Illinois River which reminded me of our Mississippi River, paddle boats and all.

I got off the plane from Illinois and went over to the last day of the Minnesota Irish Heritage Fair. Volunteers from our Society manned a booth with book sales and information for two days plus Friday evening. Ida Troye and Virginia Mahoney gave classes on Irish Research. Our booth is so popular that we will have to double our space next year. The Fair had a cultural booth this year for the first time which they hope to expand.

We have picked up new members from all of these events, as well as from the individual members' efforts. We will do our best to maintain these memberships. We have already promised speakers and participation in events in 1995. Hope to see many of you in our travels. Be sure and come up and say hello.

Some of the most intriguing sights include the survival of Gothic palaces erected by extravagant landlords during the 19th century and they are particularly impressive. Typical of these is the astounding turreted structure of Dromore, which has a round tower sprouting from the roof and overlooks the Limerick estuary.

Lough Gur, a tiny U-shaped lake where archaeologists discovered how people lived 2300 B.C. is fascinating. 30 monuments around the lake in the form of stone circles, forts, dolmens, megalithic tombs, standing stones and prehistoric dwellings have been found.

From the banks of the Shannon River stretching southeasterly is a vast tract of land, which is justly considered to be the richest in Ireland, fit for every kind of culture; 100,000 acres, 32 miles long and 18 miles wide, a part of what is called The Golden Vale.

Northern Limerick with its small stretch of shoreline on the south side of the Shannon Estuary offers the exquisite Georgian proportions of its elegant city namesake. Limerick City's Thomond Bridge spans the Shannon to link the ancient High Town – built on an island surrounded by a branch of the Shannon known as Abbey River.

In 1691, yet another war ended in Ireland with the Treaty of Limerick. That day, 13,000 men would march out of Limerick, on French ships to fight for that country. Not one of these men ever saw their homeland again. It is known as "The Flight of The Wild Geese" and this continued for many years. These men became what is know as The Irish Brigade and eventually Ireland lost a half-million men to service in other European countries, even to serve in the American Revolution. Serving with Lafayette, they asked for the right to be the first of the French service to strike Britain on our soil.

County Kerry

County: Kerry Province: Munster Capital: Tralee

Other Cities: Ballylongford, Blennerville, Cahirciveen, Castlegregory, Castleisland, Dingle, Kenmare, Killarney, Listowel, Milltown, Tarbert, Valencia

Land Area: 1,148,720 acres Cultivated: 581,189 acres Mountains & Bog: 552,862 acres

Under Water: 14,669 acres

Bounded by: Counties Cork, Clare (River Shannon), and Limerick

The northern part of County Kerry, lying towards the Shannon River is comparatively low. To the south is an extensive range of mountains, many of the summits of which are among the highest in Ireland [a few thousand feet]. The valleys are commonly occupied with bog, round the upper edge of which, and along the margins of the streams, are narrow stripes of cultivated land. The southern baronies are among the wildest and most uncultivated tracts in the county.

The lakes in the mountainous regions are numerous but few are of large dimensions. The most remarkable, both for extent and beauty, is the celebrated Lough Leine, the principal of the lakes of Killarney, three in number, which are connected by straits.

Several of the mountain ridges form headlands projecting boldly into the sea, the intermediate valleys being the basins of noble bays and estuaries, into which the rivers empty themselves.

The bogs are not confined to the mountainous districts, but occur frequently in large continuous tracts in all parts of the county and cover an extent of 105,577 acres, exclusive of small bogs, not estimated. The general crops are potatoes, wheat, barley, oats and flax. Vegetables, with few exceptions, are little known. Dairies abound, especially in the district around Castleisland.

This county produces the celebrated Kacageogh cider. The fuel universally used is turf, of which the supply may be said to be inexhaustible. The chief manufacture, that of coarse linens, is nearly confined to the barony of Corkaguiney. The flax is uniformly grown on potato soil and yields abundantly. (Topographic Dictionary of Ireland, 1837)

Population:

1821	216,185	1861	201,800	1901	165,726	1951	126,644
1831	263,126	1871	196,586	1911	159,691	1961	116,458
1841	293,880	1881	187,000	1926	149,171	1971	112,772
1851	238,254	1891	179,136	1936	139,834	1981	122,770
				1946	133,893	1986	123,992

Note the continued decrease in population from 1841 to 1971, where things begin to turn around a bit. (Comment: No wonder there are no jobs in Ireland. Who would want to start a business knowing that there would be less customers than there are now ten years down the road).

From The President—Ginny Delaney

Greetings from Minnesota. By the time The Septs reaches you, St. Patrick's day will have passed. I hope that it was an "Irish" day for you and yours.

It appears that winter is leaving and being replaced with sunshine and growth. IGSI has also been experiencing growth. Membership is now well over 1500. Welcome to all of the new members, as well as those who have been with us for many years.

The board continues to work on new ideas and ways in which Irish research can be enhanced. As usual, thanks for all the great work.

In reviewing my goals set in July, our membership is rapidly approaching a 10% increase, the historian position awaits someone to begin work on the history of the society. Progress has begun regarding researching the possibility of IGSI meetings at various sites. I will continue to report progress on the goals as they occur.

How is your research going for you? When you least expect it, genealogy will knock at your door. I experienced, quite by accident, success in my research. I was on my way to a board meeting and stopped at the city library to pick up a book. Little did I know how important that stop would be. I met a distant relative at the reference desk and since then have met several times to share our research. So, when you least expect it, your hard work and effort are rewarded with another piece of the puzzle.

I wish you success in your research, and as always we are open to your ideas and suggestions. Good luck in your research.

Ginny

Editor's Corner

My congratulations to our membership. There has been so much cooperation in submitting stories, extracts, ideas and help with production of this newsletter, I cannot express my thanks enough. It takes a lot of people to get this publication together every quarter, and the continued work of so many that go unrecognized. Beth Mullinax, with all her library news and gleanings, clans, etc. is always on top of things and keeps us informed. Joe Huber, works on the membership constantly, and gets us our surname list on time and well done. He also does the tremendous job of hauling, sorting and hauling the newsletter to the post office. A job consisting of lots of care and patience, as well as muscle power. He gets the job done and on time. Dan Moriarty is right there with our book orders, keeping us up on the latest available and getting them mailed out. Also a job of running to the post office and getting them mailed in good time. You will notice that a member, Ray Marshall has been on board the last two newsletters, researching and submitting informative articles on the County series. Bill Conlan has one little line in our newsletter that says "Layout/Design." What an understatement that is. He is the one that takes all the information and puts it in order, makes it look professional and gets it ready for the printer. His beautiful design work and expertise is what turns a pile of printed paper into a newsletter we can be proud of. Without the above, I would not have a job that is so rewarding. Thanks to each and every one of you who contribute to The Septs.

Ida Troye

This issue is full of experiences and information about County Kerry. Even if you are not researching that part of Ireland, I believe you will enjoy these accounts of discovery, history and the travelogue. Please keep your articles and letters coming. We are here to serve you and ask that you consider, in your research, anything that might serve your fellow members.
Enjoy!

An Irish Proposal

by Brother H. Lewis, FSC

We Irish are a bashful lot
When it comes to Love and Marriage:
These "things" sometimes are dangerous
Just like the horse and carriage.

We are afraid to say "I love you dear," or "Will you marry me?"
We'd like to take it slowly, and Proceed more cautiously.

We are also more practical –
It is one of our strongest traits;
I'll tell you a story of an Irish lad
Who declined to tempt the Sates.

He was a friend of "marriage age"
No need this time to coax,
As he said to the girl "How would you like to be buried with my folks?"

The Journal of the Kerry Archeological and Historical Society (#22 - 1989) located in the MGS library contains extracts from the Roman Catholic Diocesan Archives for Kerry for the year 1890 which are ALL of the returns for each parish in the County. The information includes information on pastors, parish boundary changes, church construction, the moral state of the parish, school attendance and the like. One delightful question asked was the status of "wakes", that is, how were they observed, or more bluntly, did the parishioners tend to drink to excess at them. This is definitely a must read if your people are from Kerry, even if they had left by 1890.

The Garden of Kerry

By Ida Troye

County Kerry is the most western County of Ireland. Ballinaskelligs is the last European parish. As you go around the end of the peninsula, there is a grotto with a sign that says "Last European parish, next parish Boston."

There are so many beautiful areas in County Kerry, it is hard to describe. You could take each area, not necessarily large in size, and spend a whole article on that place alone. Probably the most famous is the Ring of Kerry. It starts and ends in Killarney and covers 110 miles of enchanting scenic road through lofty mountains that gently slope down to rugged sea washed fringes along the ocean. It is as if the mountains shelter golden beaches along the way. There is an achingly beautiful road to drive between Kenmare and Sneem which takes you along the shores of Kenmare Bay and continues on to Caherciveen and Waterville. One favorite scene is Waterville, with the white buildings and houses snuggled together as if to withstand the battering of the Atlantic at it's doorstep. The Ring of Kerry takes you through these mountains, sometimes through tunnels through solid rock. Hairpin turns and steep embankments down from the edge of the road keep you alert. Where are the walls and hedges when you need them? Along with this, you can experience some of the most beautiful flowers and hedges around every turn. Little golden lilies and fuschia bushes that stretch for miles and delightful and surprisingly, palm trees. One place had Morning Glories growing in such profusion they would compare with our lilac bushes, and rhododendron and azaleas abound.

There is almost an exotic tropical climate in Kerry due to the Gulf Stream air from the coast. Believe everything you read about the beauty of the Lakes of Killarney, the rugged ravines that wind down toward Glengarriff, the view of Skellig Rocks, dizzying mountain roads, the stillness of the forest above the Lakes of Killarney where all you can hear is the musical waterfall from high above and moss and lichen grow on the trees. It almost convinces you that this is where the "little people" congregate.

A delightful experience is a visit to Muckross House and National Park. There are no cars allowed on 19,955 acres of road, lands and mountain lakes. It overlooks the Lakes of Killarney and is certainly a priceless museum and formal gardens. We did what almost all tourists do, and that was take the 6 mile trip in a horse driven cart-somewhat like the jaunting car you see in the movies. It was really delightful and our driver was a gem. He told us all about what we were viewing, and waited while we walked up to the waterfall. On the way back, we went down the main highway, everyone along waving at us. It really made you feel grand. The Muckross estate is a priceless gift to the Irish Government made by a generous American. It is a superb stately home now a splendid folk museum that is open to the public. The Muckross Abbey, now a ruin was founded in 1448 and the mansion was build in the mid 1700s.

The Dingle Peninsula is just as dramatic and beautiful. Magnificent mountains that overlook Dingle Bay on one side and on the other, the Atlantic. The pony drawn milk carts were at a meeting place waiting for the tank truck to pick up the milk. It was just like it has been for centuries. We saw one of the gaily painted red wagons, that remind you of our covered wagons of 100 years ago, but are all wood. It is reminiscent of the living mode of the ancient "Travelers" We climbed the side of a hill to see the Beehive huts built hundreds of years ago for the living place of monks. They look like rock igloos and a man of 6 foot could not stand up in them. They have no mortar, just rocks piled artfully to withstand the winds and wetness of the area. Unbelievable.

We saw peat being harvested in contours along the mountain, some by machinery, but mostly by hand. We got in a classic traffic jam in Dingle town and sat in one place for at least a half hour, because one delivery truck was trying to go up a street that was too narrow and everyone just sat there. Finally the only way we could get out of it was to drive up on the sidewalk and go between parked cars. We had a pint of beer in a dirt floored pub that must have been there at the turn of the century, if not before. Ireland was showing off that day and giving us a glimpse of olden ways.

There is a three day "Puck Fair" in Killorglin in August. A wild billy goat is captured in the mountains, enthroned as King Puck and presides over the celebration. Music, dancing, parades, and all forms of fun and foolishness is practiced. Many such traditional celebrations in Ireland are possibly derived from ancient pagan rites. In Killorglin, we stayed at a beautiful B and B overlooking Dingle Bay and the mountains. We worshiped in an ancient church on top of the hill in the middle of town and drove several times over the oldest bridge in Ireland. Lovely place.

If there were only one place you could visit in Ireland, pick County Kerry. I cannot begin to describe many other delightful towns and scenes we experienced. It's hard to understand why anyone could leave it.

New York Research

by Mary A. McKeon

Last year I read an article about New York's Calvary Cemetery in The Septs (Vol. 15 No. 1.) Many people do not appreciate the treasury of research available to them from New York City's research facilities. So many people listen to the bad press about New York City that they rarely look for the good.

New York has been my home most of my life. I started my research in New York City in 1977. May I explain how my research has been conducted. My primary source has been New York City records, supplemented by the Family History Library (FHL) in Salt Lake City. This research, combined with several journeys to Ireland, enabled me to trace my family back to the late sixteenth century in Ireland.

To understand the scope of the research it must be realized that between 1820 and 1860 New York contained about one-seventh of the population of the United States. By 1820, New York City was growing faster than the state itself. By the 1850 census there were 343,000 Irish-born people in New York state—three times that of the next most populous ethnic group, the Germans. The city and environs became the first stop for many of our immigrant ancestors. Here they found work, raised and educated their children to prepare for their place in America.

By the 1850 census there were 343,000 Irish-born people in New York state—three times that of the next most populous ethnic group, the Germans.

New York City did not comprise the territory that it does today. The city was Manhattan Island, mostly populated to 14th Street. This was an area about four miles long and one or two miles wide at the widest points. The need to expand was met by taking the path of least resistance—a ferry ride over the East River to another city, Brooklyn.

The records of New York City are available to anyone willing to take the time and effort to look. Much of the groundwork can be accomplished from your own area. I have outlined an approach depending on when the person arrived in New York City and how long they settled there.

If your relative arrived in New York City before 1898, you will have to search the records for both New York City and the city of Brooklyn. After 1898 New York City incorporated the five boroughs; namely Manhattan (old New York City), Kings (Brooklyn), the Bronx (which was part of Westchester County), Queens, and Richmond (Staten Island.)

City Directories and Census Records

Assuming you have only a tentative date for their residence in New York City before 1898, you must search the New York City directories. Part of the Bronx was considered New York City. Other sections were part of Westchester County. Brooklyn on the most western part of Long Island remained a city within itself, The outlying areas were part of Nassau and Suffolk Counties. In 1898 the city boundaries were established. The above-mentioned areas became boroughs of New York City. Thus you must search these areas for the pre-famine and post-famine immigrant families. After 1898 all the records were incorporated as New York City. The boroughs became sections of the records.

To begin searching the records you must first establish where the person lived. Manhattan and parts of the Bronx had directories as early as 1786. Brooklyn's began in 1796, although it was not published annually in the early years. Residents were listed alphabetically by last name, head of household (male adult; women usually only if widowed), his or her occupation, home address and/or business address. The list was repeated with each subsequent directory until the person was no longer a resident either by death or relocation. If the male head of household died, the widow usually continued the listing as "the widow of." This listing remained until her status changed, or a son became head of household.

The city directory is vital for the research as the census records, both state and federal, were enumerated by an Enumeration district and a Ward. I have used an old reprint map of New York City and Brooklyn, sold by Jonathan Sheppard Books, Box 2020 Plaza Station, Albany, NY 12220. This map is not indexed. To overcome that, purchase a current five borough atlas of New York City which is indexed. Find the desired street on the newer map, then refer to the older map to find the ward. The enumeration districts are in the ward. They are not usually listed on a census, but they are in the same microfilm roll.

I had no idea when my family arrived. I copied all similar names in the city directory, until I reached a death which did not apply or a census year. Then I checked the census to find my family or searched for a death certificate to find the cemetery. This process worked very well. Using this procedure I was able to find my mother's maternal family's arrival in 1836 and trace them to the time of her father's death in 1914. The Family History Library (FHL) has microfilmed both the city directories and death records for New York City. The films may be ordered from your nearest Family History Center (FHC.) If you are not close to an FHC or to a Regional Office of the National Archives, census film may be ordered from the Census Microfilm Rental Program, P.O. Box 2940, Hyattsville, MD, 20784. Many public libraries in other parts of the country, for a fee, will order the census film for you.

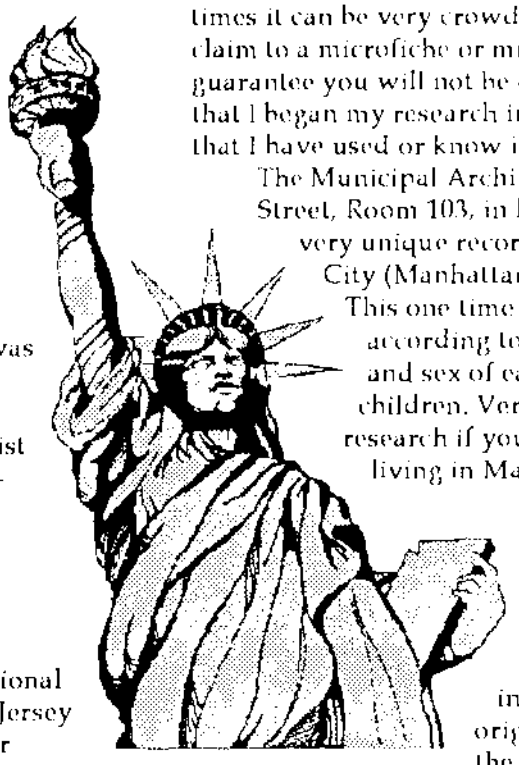
Churches and Cemetery Records

Following this procedure you should be able to locate some of your relatives. To continue my search I have followed many paths, most of them in New York City. I have sent the Minnesota Genealogical Society library in St. Paul, Minnesota, a list of New York City area cemeteries, identified by county and a list of Catholic Churches in Manhattan and Brooklyn. The Archdiocese of New York covers a very large area of down state New York, including New York City, Richmond, Westchester, Putnam, Dutchess and Rockland Counties. The Brooklyn Diocese covered all of Long Island. In the early 1960s the diocese was split. The Diocese of Rockville Center was formed, comprising Nassau and Suffolk counties on Long Island. The list of churches gives the date of establishment. This information can also be obtained from the Official Catholic Directory, also shelved at the MGS Library and in other large libraries.



Record Repositories

Recently the National Archives regional branch relocated from Bayonne, New Jersey to 201 Varick St., New York City. Their holdings include ship and passenger arrival records, census records 1790–1920, citizenship documents and Civil War Records.

One of the city treasures, of course is the New York Public Library. The Research Library at 5th Avenue and 42nd Street is devoted to research and does not lend out its collection. In room 315N you will find one of the finest genealogical libraries in the country. In my opinion, it ranks with the Family History Library in Salt Lake City. Of course, its holdings are not as vast, but they are very impressive. It does contain much of the information you will need for research on your Irish ancestors. They have Irish newspaper from the 1800s and many local newspapers from their original printing dates. Notable among them the New York Times.

[Besides the Irish-American newspapers, some other journals most popular with the Irish were the New York Herald, the New York World, the Brooklyn (Daily) Eagle, and the Standard Union.]

My problem at the library every time I go is that there are not enough hours in the day to absorb the information. It is a treasury for the genealogist. However, to take advantage of the facility you must visit the library in person or have a researcher do it for you. The library staff does not undertake genealogical research for the public. They do publish a list of genealogists who offer their services. The library does not rate them.

The library is absolutely "free." Therefore at times it can be very crowded, so go early and lay claim to a microfiche or microfilm reader to guarantee you will not be disappointed. It is here that I began my research in 1977. Other resources that I have used or know include:

The Municipal Archives at 31 Chambers Street, Room 103, in New York City has a very unique record, the 1890 New York City (Manhattan only) "Police Census." This one time only census listed according to address the name, age and sex of each resident, including children. Very useful for your research if you had a family member living in Manhattan at that time.

The Municipal Archives also have birth, death and marriage records filed and indexed according to the locality (borough) in which the event originally occurred. Most of the records start in the mid-1800s, but there are a few earlier ones. Consult the archives or a guide for exact dates. They also have city directories for Manhattan dating back to 1820 and to 1796 for Brooklyn. The records of assessed valuation of real estate 1789-1975 for the five boroughs are held here. More modern records, post 1925, are held at the Dept. of Health, 125 Worrit St., New York City.

The Board of Elections, Brooklyn at 345 Adams St., 4th Floor Brooklyn, NY 11201 has records from 1890 to the present.

The main branch of the Brooklyn Public Library, Grand Army Plaza, Brooklyn NY 11238 has information on Brooklyn history including microfilm of the Brooklyn Eagle newspaper.

The New York State Archives at Empire State Plaza in Albany New York has Civil War records of New York regiments. Some birth, death and marriage records may be obtained from the New York State Department of Health, Bureau of Vital Records, Tower Building, Empire State Plaza, Albany NY 12237, but not for the whole state and not for all time periods. Some earlier records are in the larger cities. Consult one of the detailed record lists in George K. Schweitzer's New York Genealogical Research, or Roger Joslyn's article on "New York" in Ancestry's Red Book, 1992 Edition, or write to the State Dept. of Health for record series.

Just a word of caution. Remember when the Irish arrived in New York, it was their first taste of freedom from oppression. It would take some time before they felt secure enough to give the government any information not absolutely necessary. Therefore sometimes the only written information will come from a death certificate, This form had to be filed before burial. In case of birth or marriage the only place they knew was the church. This is where most of the records are. [In 1880 the state passed a law mandating registration of births, but compliance was only 50 percent by 1900. Later more stringent laws were enacted. Not until 1925 was registration mandatory in New York City. Some larger cities in the state, including New York City and Brooklyn began keeping birth records earlier.]

I have no birth certificates for any of my mother's six brothers all born in Brooklyn. As to marriage certificates again people went to the priest. He would apply for them, but in many cases he did not. Alas very few Irish marriage certificates are on record for earlier years.

Hopefully this article will be of some help to you and give you an incentive to go on with your research. The most important thing to remember: do your homework before coming to New York City for research. Use the Family History Library from your local Family History Center. Research the U.S. Census records before attacking the New York records. New York is a big town that once was the next parish to Ireland. If your ancestors stayed for a time, chances are they left more than their footprints.

MGS Computer Fundraiser

Now available through MGS, for a donation towards the purchase of a new computer for MGS (Minnesota Genealogical Society)—a computer search of about 80% of the listed households in the United States can be made. The result is a list containing name, address, Zip Code, and telephone numbers of listed households.

For $3.00, one spelling of a surname will be searched and a listing of the results, up to 250 names, will be provided. If there are over 250 names, you will be notified of the total and asked for an additional $3.00 donation for each additional 250 names. This will be done before the list is printed and mailed.

Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope, the surnames you would like searched, and a check or money order payable to Minnesota Genealogical Society, P. O. Box 16069, St. Paul, MN 55116-0069.

The Minnesota Irish Heritage Fair is looking for someone to organize their Irish family reunion in conjunction with the 1995 Fair. If you are interested in planning a family reunion at the time of the next Fair (weekend of October 21-22, 1995), please send a note to IGSI and we'll pass on the information. We have several members on the Fair's Committee. They hope to make this an annual affair so you might want to plan for 1996 or 1997 if you can't make it in 1995!

Kerry Revisited

by Suzanne B. Walker, Beaverton, Oregon

When the opportunity arises to visit the country of one's ancestors, tracking down distant relatives can be a rewarding experience for genealogists. I would like to relate the account of my successful visit to County Kerry, Ireland, hoping it will encourage readers to seek out their connections in Ireland.

In 1976 my husband and I were just out of college and had a chance to visit Europe on a shoestring budget, so we decided to visit Ireland for a week. Half that time was spent in Dublin where we did a little research in some of the national depositories, and then we headed by train and bus to Dingle Parish, County Kerry, origin of nearly half my ancestors for three days of research and exploration. I enjoyed perusing the old parish registers and found entries for some of my ancestors who were born in the townlands of Kinard, Ardamore and Aghcarrible, four or five miles east of Dingle town. I would have loved to see the area and houses where my people once lived, but we had no transportation and I was pregnant and not up to walking the distance. The idea that there might be living relatives still in the parish never entered my mind, as my grandmother told me that our entire families had left over a hundred years ago.

During the next 14 years of research, it became apparent to me that only parts of my families had left Ireland. When the opportunity for a second visit arose in 1990, one of my goals was to seek out relatives and since we had a rental car this was possible. I first visited with the Dingle Parish clerk, Padraig Lynch, who had been of great help to me over the last 15 years. He urged me to go to the Flahive Pub down the road, saying that Peggy Flahive and I were related on my Ashe line. Peggy and her husband, Johnny were thrilled to have a visitor from America and it didn't take long to figure out that my 2nd g-grandfather, Matthew Ashe, was her g-grandfather. She retrieved a pile of hand-written notes from her desk which traced the Ashe lineage back through our common relative and three generations further; these were notes she had taken after numerous conversations with an old man of the Ashe line who had visited her pub regularly, but who was now dead. Much of this information was strictly oral history that pre-dated the parish registers. Peggy hand-copied these notes for me.

She insisted I visit Mary Ashe Griffin of Kinard who was also my 2nd cousin once removed so that house was my next stop. This woman and her son, Johnny were so very cordial and invited me into their tidy little home. I mentioned to them that I was hoping to find the house once occupied by my g-grandfather, Matt Ashe (Matthew's son), which an aged relative in America had recalled as having been in the Kinard area. The two of them looked at me a little funny before blurting out, ~This is the house!". They explained that it had been there so long no one knew when it was built, but that four Ashe men had each built a house at Kinard; theirs had been built by Matthew (my 2nd g-grandfather). Thomas's was next door, James's down the lane, and the ruins across the lane were of John's house, whose family had eventually moved to Kildare. The first three were in good repair and still occupied by descendants of the original occupants. Mary and Johnny described the improvements and additions they had made over the years and they invited me to take photographs of my ancestor's house.

It was suggested I visit Hannah Farrell of Ardamore, less than a mile down the road, who was another relative of mine. The Farrells live in a large farmhouse built in the 1930's, which they refer to as the "new" house. The "old" house down the hill is now used as a bull pen and is where my 2nd g-grandparents, Thomas Doyle and Mary Murphy once lived. That house is so tiny and so primitive that I can't imagine raising a family in it. Once we established our relationship (Tom and Mary were her g-parents), Hannah had a sly smile on her face and sent her daughter, Ann, to the basement for a box of photographs. Without saying a word, Hannah handed me a photograph—I recognized Auntie Kate Doyle Sullivan sitting with two children, one of whom was me at age 2! She had other family photographs, including one of my mother at age 8. Over the years various relatives in America had been sending her pictures and she had not only kept every one, but remembered who each person was. As we left that day, my husband commented on what the odds might be of visiting someone I had never heard of before that day, who lived on a remote dairy farm in a foreign country, and to have that person pull out a photograph of me as a small child, this was quite a unique experience.

Before leaving Kerry, relatives seemed to come out of the woodwork. I stopped in on Nell Nelligan in her pub on Main Street, Dingle, and she was able to describe the deathbed scene of my 3rd g-grandmother, Nellie Wren Murphy, which was still part of family lore in Ireland, but had been forgotten by her descendants in America.

Though it was difficult to leave this little peninsula, I departed determined to come again someday to visit my new family connections.

Book Reviews

COUNTY CORK, IRELAND, A COLLECTION OF 1851 CENSUS RECORDS, by Josephine Masterson. Published and donated by Clearfield Company, 200 East Eager Street, Baltimore MD 21202, 117 pp., indexed, paper, 1994. Cost $17.50 plus $3.00 shipping. Reviewed by Michael J. Sullivan.

In the past two weeks I've had the chance and privilege to review the above book. I found it easy to follow: 1) The names were indexed alphabetically; 2) townlands (42 of them) among the four parishes of Kilcrumper, Kilworth, Leitrim and Macroney are presented in the manuscript in alphabetical order; and 3) each individual is indexed, not just heads of family. The book presents facts and significant information that could possibly not be found in other sources, for example:
Number 1, page (1), entry #1:

001	Sullivan	Ellen	38	head		wife of John in America	Ballinacarriga	KC (Kilcrumper)	08

Also listed were David—13 yrs, Johanna—7 yrs, Margaret—6 yrs and Stephen—3 yrs, all children of Ellen and John and all listed in the index. Note: The "Page" listed is the page number of the entry on the manuscript in the National Archives, Dublin, from which this index was taken. Other examples of significant data in the "Remarks" column: 1) Hennesy, Ellen, 40 yrs, wife, husband Dennis in America. 2) Doran, Owen, 30 yrs, head caretaker to Mr. Campion. 3) Hennesy, Mary, 40 yrs, wife, dressmaker, husband in America. 4) Mulcahy, John, 40 yrs, head carpenter to Mr. Campion. 5) Ahern, Mary, 18 yrs, to America April 8, 1853. 6) Ahern, Ellen, 12, to America April 8, 1853. 7) Fanning, John, 28 yrs, labor, to America Aug 3, 1852. 8) Walsh, Mary, 42 yrs, wife, died Feb 12, 1852. 9) Walsh, Margaret, 18 yrs, dau, died Feb 12, 1852. 10) Connell, Martin, 36 yrs, head, shoemaker, to America Oct 22, 1852. 11) Connell, Honora, 36, wife, gone to America.

The Census was taken as from those living at sites as of March 1, 1851 but "Remarks Made" have dates as late as April 1853. Therefore, was initial census initiated in March 1851 and kept until 1853 period before being submitted? See dates of examples given above. Please note that the title can be misleading, the manuscript only covers the four parishes in the Union of Kilworth—Kilcrumper, Kilworth, Leitrim and Macroney Parishes (750 households—4,000 persons).

The individual researcher should be aware of the various spellings of surnames. My own example: My branch related to the family of Daniel Reddin and Norah Power Reddin, their son William Reddin, born 1851. From four parishes and Griffith's Valuation, the surname is spelled as either REDDIN or REDDEN. In this work I found them listed on Page 54 with the spelling of REDDING!

In all, I found the book quite interesting and useful. It was quite a surprise and very encouraging to be able to review the work with positive findings, especially after receiving so many dead-ends and often questionable findings for the searches performed.☘

"Finding Ancestors in Catholic Church Records"

May 20, 1995

Speaker: Patrick Anzelec, Asst. to Archivist of Archdiocese of St. Paul.

The archdiocese has microfilmed records of baptisms, marriages and deaths in the parishes of the 12-county area surrounding Minneapolis-St. Paul. Patrick Anzelec, Asst. to the Archivist of the Archdiocese of St. Paul will explain what records are there and how they may be accessed. Since many of our Irish ancestors were Catholic, this is a repository rich in important records.

Patrick Anzelec will also review the information available on parish histories, and the help he can give in searching other Minnesota parishes.☘

Gleanings

From HERE and THERE and Clans too!

Member, Nancy B. Crilly of Lockport Illinois, donated 18 books by E. OE. Somerville and Martin Ross, plus a book by Geraldine Cummins on the life of Dr. Somerville. Nancy wrote and asked if the society would be interested in this collection for the library. We said yes as being familiar with the Irish R.M. books and the TV series, we thought this would be a good chance to begin a "lending library" for members. Although these books are not of a genealogical nature, they do tell of the life of the Irish during the period they were written (1917-1951). The books are all listed under Library Donations. When the books were received and the value of them clearly understood, we questioned Jim Kellen, University of St Thomas, St Paul, Minnesota, Department of Special Collections, Celtic Library. They had only six of the 19 books and would gladly accept the thirteen for their Special Collection. The Board agreed to donate these books to St Thomas' Library so that they would have the care that they deserve. Anyone going into the library there, will have access to this collection.

PERSI—PERiodical Source Index, published by the Allen County Public Library Foundation, Fort Wayne, Indiana. THE SEPTS is one of the periodicals they have indexed. They had copies of our newsletter from 1990 to date and we have just sent them all the earlier copies. PERSI is a great resource, with an index of surnames and a separate index of locations/places. Most large libraries have a set of them and you'll find them well worth searching through. What a service this provides to researchers!

CIVIL WAR—Archeology Magazine, Nov/Dec 1994, has an interesting article on the identification of unknown soldiers and how they arrived at their conclusions. The three possibilities are all Irish: Pvt James Gallagher, 41, a stonecutter born in Kilkenny, Ireland; Pvt Martin McMahon, 41-49, a laborer born in County Clare, Ireland; and James McGarigan, or McGaffigan, 44. All men were members of the Irish Brigade and killed in 1862 at the battle of Antietam. Illinois - I will be in Springfield IL the first part of May 1995 and in Chicago in October 1995. If you are interested in the Springfield meeting, drop us a line. There will be more information on the October meeting in the next newsletter.

TEXAS—Member, Paul J. Curtin, 11007 Legends Lane, Austin TX 78747-1222, has donated a book titled, West Limerick Roots, about his Curtin family. The book is 440 pages in length with numberous photos, illustrations and a surname index. If you are interested in purchasing the book, write Paul. The cost is $25.00 plus $3.00 shipping.

WISCONSIN—Father Timon Costello O.F.M. Capuchin, has written another book on his Irish ancestors in Wisconsin. Shining Emeralds, Chronicles the lives of Peter and Kate McGalloway in Dotyville, Wisconsin, where Kate married James Byrnes and moved to Iowa. The Book can be ordered from Jane Majeska, 152 15th St., Fond du Lac, WI 54935, phone: (414) 921-0699. Cost is $9.95 plus $1.74 postage.

CLARE—While at the Quin Abbey and looking at the tombstones in the ruins of the Abbey, I noted the surname Doolaghty. Very unusual name, with MacLysaght saying it is a Clare name. If anyone is interested, I can send them a copy of the stone.

KERRY—While searching for my own Sullivan and Moriarty marriage in St John's Church, Tralee, I was sent the following marriage certificate which is not mine. Andrew O'Sullivan and Brigid Moriarty married on the 21st May 1845. Witnesses were Maurice Collins and Ellen Hurley. Priest Rev Ed O'Flaherty. Ring a bell with anyone? If so, let us know and we'll send you a copy.

Clans

BOLER—The Boler Family News was just inaugurated by members Bob and Joan (Boler) (Duffy) (Fitzgerald) McCaffrey, PO Box 215, 308 Wood Spring Road, Gwynedd Valley PA 19437. Tel: (215) 646-2128 Fax: (215) 646-2970 If you have any Boler ancestors you might want to drop them a line.

MURPHY & MCGUIRE—Member Kevin J. Tobin, PO Box 272, Monticello IL 61856, is interested in family group sheets on the Murphy and McGuire surnames. He is accepting these sheets and will notify anyone submitting one, if he finds any related families. He eventually plans on submitting the information to the LDS Library in Salt Lake City and possibly writing a book. Be sure and include your name, address and date on all group sheets submitted and write Murphy or McGuire on the back of the envelope. No charge!

O'KELLY—Clan Gathering May 26-28, 1995. For additional information write, Chris Allen, Clan Co-ordinator, Kelly Clann, Muintir Ui Cheallaig, Tourist Office, Roscommon, Co Roscommon, Ireland. Tel: 353 903 26342 Fax: 353 903 25477.

MCKENNA—The following info received from member, Thomas McKenna: "If you have McKenna ancestors you should belong to Clann MacKenna. It was reorganized a few years ago and has just inaugurated its first chieftain in 300 years. Clann MacKenna holds an annual rally in County Monaghan, historic home of the McKennas, and publishes an excellent annual journal with articles on family history and genealogy. To join, send your check for $13 (US) payable to Clann MacKenna to Maria G. McKenna, Registrar, Clann MacKenna, Emyvale, Co Monaghan, Ireland."

O'NEILL—International Gathering of Royal Clan O'Neill, 17 - 25 June 1995. For further info, write The Royal O'Neill Clan Society, A.215-217, Portview, 310 Newtownards Road, Belfast BT4 1HE, Northern Ireland. Tel: (0232) 455325, Fax: (0232) 454459.

POWER—Clan Rally, June 9 - 11, 1995. For further information write Michael Power, Community Hall, Passage East, Co. Waterford, Ireland.

ULSTER—Kaleidoscope of Ulster Family and Local History, will run during the first weekend in September (2nd, 4th & 5th) with an optional bus trip on Sunday 6th. For more information, write Irish Heritage Assn., same address and phone numbers as The Royal O'Neill Clan Society.

My Kerrymen

by Beth Mullinax

My Irish research is rather unique in that both of my families came from County Kerry and landed in Minnesota after several years and children in Ontario, Canada. Also, both couples had one child in Ireland before leaving Ireland which is a great advantage.

John Sullivan married Mary Moriarty sometime before their first child, Mary Ann, was born in Ireland, about 1845. They left Ireland in the 1840s as their second child, Michael was born in Ontario in 1848. Their sixth child, John, was born about 1857 in Minnesota. Family letters say that several of the Moriarty brothers of Mary left with them. I'll refer to this as my "Sullivan" line. John Hennessy married Margaret Costelloe and had their first child, Mary Ann, in Ireland in the 1850s Their second child, John Joseph, was born either in Ireland or on the ship, in 1861. In 1870 they were on the Minnesota Census. I'll refer to this as my "Hennessy" line. Two Hennessy daughters eventually married two Sullivan sons in Minnesota! I am a descendant of one of these marriages, my cousin in Washington a descendant of the other one. How did I find out about these families before I began researching? Some from family letters, and some from courthouse and cemetery records given to me by relatives. We had no letters from Ireland and no idea where either of these families came except County Kerry.

"Sullivan and Moriarty are not a good combination to research in County Kerry."

I began collecting family history and doing some research in 1980 after my first trip to Ireland. This was before the Irish Genealogical Project began in 1989. How do I begin? Where do I start? Being that this was my first genealogical project and I was very naive, I began with the Sullivans! Now fourteen years later, and after doing the Hennessy line, I realize that this was not a smart move. Starting with the Householders' Index to Griffith's Valuation (GV), I assumed that I would find my John Sullivan right away. Well-l-l-l what a surprise when I looked into the Householders and eventually Griffith's. There were 2,489 Sullivans, with Johns in every parish and almost every townland in Kerry!! But that didn't stop me, I'll work on his wife's family, (smart move usually), Mary Moriarty. There were 469 Moriartys and I did not know Mary's parents' names! I decided that Sullivan and Moriarty are not a good combination to research in County Kerry, at least not when you are a beginning researcher. After consulting some members of IGSI at a quarterly meeting, I was told that it is almost impossible to find a name like Sullivan in County Kerry without a more specific location than county. We would usually go to the spouse's surname, but in this case it was too numerous also. (Once the indexing is completed, this will no longer be as much of a problem.) Blocked, but not for long An elderly relative remembered the mention of Tralee. Bingo!! I was on my way to Ireland in a few months, so went to the Catholic Church in Tralee (St. John's) and was given access to both their marriage and baptismal books. After an hour or so I found the entry of Mary listing her baptism on 29 August 1845, her parents, the witnesses, and the location of "Blennerville." I was actually sitting in the church where my ancestors had brought their child in for baptism 139 years before (this was in 1984). I can't tell you what a thrill that was and it was just the beginning.

I never did find a marriage for John and Mary, either at St. John's or any of the parishes surrounding Blennerville, a small town right out of Tralee. Most of their parish records began too late. I'm hoping that when they have finished the indexing and open up the Heritage Center in Killarney, I will find it, if one exists. They were probably married in 1844 and these were hard times in Ireland. Griffith's Valuation (GV) in Kerry was in 1850, and my Sullivans had left by then. How do I know? Remember, Michael, was born in Mt. St. Patrick, Ontario, Canada in 1848. I do question the fact that Blennerville was their home as that was also a port of debarkation during the famine times. Were they there waiting for a ship and had their child baptised while waiting, or did they actually live there? There was almost three years between the first two children, which is unusual when looking at the birth dates of the other children. They had 13 children total.

There is a Thaddeus Sullivan in Blennerville GV, next to two vacant houses. Maybe one of these vacant houses was theirs, or maybe Thaddeus was a relation, although Thaddeus is not a family name. I hope to answer this question by looking at some land records and the GV notebooks in Ireland. The survey crews that took the statistics for GV, worked on an area two, three or even four years before it was published. They kept notebooks with their findings and in most cases, the names were double checked before publication. If someone had left when the check was made, their names were crossed out and sometime notes made as to what happened, i.e., death or emigration.

Now for my second Irish family. John Hennessy married Margaret Costelloe and the research on this family went as your research should go, without a really common name like Sullivan, Murphy, McCarthy, etc. There were only 51 Hennesseys and 96 Costelloes in the Householders Index to GV. Also, this family left Ireland between 1858 when their daughter, Johanna, was baptised and 4 May 1861 when their son John Joseph, was born, either in Ireland or on the ship. No baptismal for John Joseph was found in Ireland so I'm assuming that he was born on the ship. Also, family history says they left Ireland in 1860. My Hennessy line was in Kerry during the GV but not listed as far as I could tell. They were not married so were probably living at home so would not be listed. Only the head of the household is listed in Griffith's Valuation. Now to go to work on the GV. I began with the Householders' Index, and had only three baronies with both Hennessy and Costelloe surnames. I then went into the parishes (civil) of these three baronies. I copied the map of the County Kerry Parishes from Brian Mitchell's book, A New Genealogical Atlas of Ireland. For each of the two surnames, I used a different colored pen and placed a dot in the parishes they were found. I must mention that when working with the Griffith's I take every spelling variation of a surname. I had found family records using several variations by this time, especially with Costelloe and Hennessy. Once I had done this, I had three clusters of dots, both colors. From the civil parishes I looked up the Catholic parishes in the book, Irish Records, by James Ryan. Now I had the civil and Catholic parishes where the Hennessys and Costelloes were listed in circa 1850 in County Kerry.

The first cluster was just a few in the east-central area. Checking these out in the GV showed none of the first names my family used. This is a real clue, especially in the first and second generations after leaving Ireland. I proceeded to check out the actual GV on the other two clusters. The second cluster I was sure was right, as it had all of our first names, Timothy, John, Patrick, Michael, etc. Very unique names so this had to be my family! Also, they were living near, and in some cases renting land with some Moriartys! Maybe they knew the Sullivan line in Ireland. From info I had collected by this time, both families went from Kerry to Mt. St. Patrick, Renfrew County, Ontario and then to Minnesota. This cluster was in the area of Castlegregory, on the Dingle Peninsula, not far from Blennerville. A stop at Castlegregory after the First Genealogical Congress proved fruitless. The clerk had this beautifully indexed book of the parish, but no Hennessy and Costelloe marriages or baptismals. I was disappointed but did not have the time to go up to Listowel where the third cluster was located. As soon as I returned home, I wrote the Parish Priest at Listowel giving him the name of John Hennessy and his birth year, Margaret Costelloe and her birth year, date of their marriage and the birth year of their daughter, Johanna. I told him that all the dates given were approximate from U.S. Census records. (We use a lot of approximations and probabilities in this business!) By this time I knew that Margaret's father's name was John and her mother's was Catherine Stack and that at least four of her brothers (James, Garret, Martin and Patrick Henry) had come to Minnesota also. I gave the priest the name of the parents and approximate year of birth of the brothers, again from census records.

Beth Mullinax

Less than a month later, the parish clerk sent me the marriage certificate of John & Mary, and the baptismal certificate of their daughter, Johanna, from St. Mary's Church in Listowel. He had gone to the next parish, Duagh, and found the baptismal of my Margaret, James, Gerald (Garrett) & Patrick Henry. The marriage information did not include the parents of the couple. I have written the five Catholic parishes around Listowel asking for a baptismal for John Hennessy. All five priests answered, three had no Johns during the time period, one priest had two and the one had three. I don't know John's parents' names, so do not yet know which, if any, of these is my John. Continued letter writing and research helped fill in many blanks. I had joined several different genealogical groups, besides IGSI. I put a query in the newsletter, Lost In Canada and a Canadian researcher answered the query as she has Moriarty relatives from the same area. She just may be an ancestor of my Mary Moriarty's family. She also searched some records and found the marriage of one of Margaret's brothers, Garrett Costelloe, giving his parents' names. This helped with getting the baptismals in Ireland.

Through the IGSI surname lists I found a cousin whose Sullivan family had left Minnesota about 1904. Her grandmother was Johanna Sullivan whose baptismal I had found in Tralee and the second couple mentioned above where two sisters married two brothers! A query in the St. Cloud Area Genealogical Society's newsletter, found descendants of several of the Costelloe brothers. I did all the U.S. censuses for Minnesota, going back until I found my first Sullivans, Moraritys, Hennessys and Costelloes. On the 1870 census, I found all the Costelloe brothers as well as a John & Catherine Costelloe in their 60s. They lived right near my Hennessy and Costelloe families and I'm convinced that they are Margaret's parents. I'm hoping to find an obituary on them that will confirm this. When doing these early U.S. censuses for Minnesota, I again copied every one of my surnames in the whole state, except for Sullivan. Even in 1870 there were many Sullivans and I knew where they settled so did that county only. I am still working on both of these families, but feel if I don't find anything else, I have already walked the same ground as they did, at least 150 years ago. The Irish Genealogical Project began in 1989. This is a project to index all the Catholic parish records in the country. They are also indexing any other church parishes that are made available to them. They are collecting tithe records, cemetery inscriptions and any other data that are of genealogical use in their county and/or area. With this project researching in Ireland has changed from when I began. The Septs has run articles on this project since its beginning and have a book for sale, listing the works of the different centers throughout Ireland.

County Kerry has been indexing its parish records since at least 1989. However there is no current central area to write as they wish to complete the indexing before they take inquiries. So in Kerry you still need to write or visit the parish priest for baptismal and marriage information. If the parish is indexed, the priest will have a copy of the index. Over half of the Catholic Parishes had been indexed in October 1994. I have had great luck with the Parish Priests in Kerry answering my queries. I always send them a donation, either U.S. cash or Irish Punts if I have any. However, I am still anxious for the county to complete the indexing so that they will take inquiries. Maybe some of my questions can than be answered. There are a lot of things I can do here in the U.S.. I found where all the Sullivan siblings were living from probate records when their parents died. I can follow up on these families through census records, getting their children and the spouses that I haven't already picked up.

If anyone has questions on their Kerry research, I'll be glad to look at it for you. You do not have to go to Ireland as I did to get information, I just happened to be going on tours and did some research when I could. The Hennessy line could have been completed from home and the library. The book, A Guide to Tracing Your Kerry Ancestors, by Michael H. O'Connor, is a great help in your Kerry research. IGSI sells this book as well as the others mentioned.

When in Ireland this past Fall, I went into St. Mary's in Listowel as well as the town of Duagh and through cemeteries but found nothing of use yet. However, we ran into a group in the Duagh Cemetery who were transcribing the tombstones. They were doing all the cemeteries in a small area, and had finished several of them. I have written them to check their other cemeteries for Costelloes and Stacks and to see if we can purchase copies of their works. In the 1860 U.S. census, I found a James Costelloe who was too old for Margaret's brother James. He was married to a Mary with three children born in Ireland (Margaret, Ellen, Mary) and two sons in Ohio (Patrick & James H.). In a later census he had other children born in Minnesota. He was in St. Paul in 1860, but in a later census in Elk River, Sherburne. He worked in the railroad, as did many Sullivans and Hennessys. In one census, a Hennessy was living in his home, also working on the railroad. I'm sure there is a connection here, but I haven't found it yet. I wrote the clerk at Listowel and asked him to again check the Duagh records but never got an answer. I'll have to write him again.☘

County Cork — Ireland's Largest County

County: Cork Province: Munster Capital: Cork City

Other Cities: Ballincollig, Baltimore, Bandon, Bantry, Buttevat, Castlemartyr, Castletown-Bearhaven, Castletown-Roche, Charleville, Clonakilty, Cloyne, Cobh (originally called Cove, renamed "Queenstown" in honor of Victoria, who visited there in 1849, and changed back to the Gaelic spelling of "Cove" after independance), Donneraile, Dumanway, Fermoy, Innishaven, Kanturk, Kildorrery, Kilworth, Kingwilliamstown (re-named Ballydesmond), Kinsale, Macroom, Mallow, Midleton, Mitchelstown, Passage, Rathcormac, Rosscarberry, Skibbereen, West Millstreet, Youghal

Land Area: 1,725,080 acres Cultivated 1,024,320 acres Mountains & Bog: 700,760 acres

Bounded by: Counties Kerry, Limerick, Tipperary and Waterford

The surface of the County is of considerable variety and of much natural beauty, but exhibits a very great deficiency of timber and of hedgerows and plantations. The western part is bold, rocky and mountainous while the northern and eastern parts are distinguished for their richness and fertility.

The great longitudinal ranges of high ground are often intersected by deep glens and gullies through which numerous small streams find a rapid descent, and, because of the often heavy rains, form beautiful waterfalls

The entire southern and southwestern portions of the county are composed of stupendous masses of rocks standing as a barrier against the Atlantic Ocean winds which for the greater part of the year are driven with fury against them. The line of coast presents a series of magnificent headlands separated from each other by numerous inlets forming safe and commodious harbors. The numerous estuaries offer access to the interior of the country by navigation.

The tillage presents rather unfavorable features, owing in a great measure to the want of skill and adequate capital, the too minute subdivision of farms and the super-abundant population of the arable districts.

A considerable portion of the northern part of the county is appropriated to dairy farms and is but thinly inhabited, but the land there is in good condition and the farm houses more comfortable than in the tillage districts.

The mountain lands, covered with little but heath and sedgy grass, forms extensive tracts of comparative waste; the bogs and marshes are confined to these elevated regions being elsewhere of very small extent.

From The President—Ginny Delaney

Summer greetings from Minnesota. I hope that you are having a great summer and that your research is going well.

Your new Board of Directors was elected at the Quarterly Meeting on May 20, 1995. Congratulations are in order - all of the officers were reelected for another term with the same positions they filled last year. I thank all of the officers for their dedication and expertise they bring to each position.

In reviewing my goals set in 1994, IGSI membership is now at 1575, which is an 8.4 % increase over last year.

Secondly, the Historian position has been filled, not by one, but two volunteers. Now I call that the luck of the Irish! Thank you Kathleen Wetherall and Doris Lattery for sharing the Historian duties. If you have any information about the history of the society, such as meetings, pictures, special events, etc, please advise us, as the project has already begun.

These were good goals, and I think we accomplished what we set out to do. One thing we did not accomplish will be carried on in the coming year. We continue to brainstorm the possibility of IGSI meetings at various sites. We will develop a plan as to the feasibility of this happening. I would also like to set a new goal for membership—how about a 10% increase again?

I would like to submit to you that all of the volunteers and officers who give of their time and talents deserve a good round of cheers. And, as always, I wish you all good luck on your research.

Ginny

Editor's Corner

Do you love summertime, or what? In genealogy, this time of the year is always so exciting. Beth and I have been to several out of town meetings and look forward to more. We, of course, plan to be at the Irish Festival in Milwaukee, WI. That's a must for anyone who loves good music, good people, good times.

Ida Troye

This issue is so packed with information that I hope you read it more than once. County Cork is our focus and there is so much to tell you, we will have to do it in two issues. I hope, that if any of you have County Cork experiences, or information, you will still submit it because we will be able to put it in the October issue. Please share any extractions you might have done, or some experience that might help others do their research. Of course, Cork is very hard to research because it is the largest County in Ireland and a good percentage of our readers are searching that County. County Cork lost 24% of their population due to the potato famine in 1841-1851. Just think, one-fourth of their people!

You can see, we are growing by the size of our Irish Surname Interest List. Also, Beth's library report is growing all the time. We'll have to keep her home, I guess, because every time she goes over she brings back some great things not available to us here in the U.S. Be sure to visit our library if you plan to be in the Twin Cities.

Our new Computer Talk column is very exciting this issue. All kinds of on-line numbers that you can contact. If you know of any we have missed, or would like to share your on-line address with us, be sure to let us know. Any information you may have about Irish Genealogy on computer would be very welcome. We like to keep informed and it is growing so quickly it is hard to keep abreast of the new things happening. We have entered our computer address on the World Wide Web through the Minnesota Genealogical Society and hope for good things to come of that.

The maritime towns and richer inhabitants obtain coal from England; the mass of the people are compelled to seek for peat which in many places has been exhausted.

Manufactures are various and of trifling importance (1837 Topographical Dictionary of Ireland). [The author of the Cork section in the TDI obviously was not seeking employment with the Cork Chamber of Commerce ed.].

Population:

1821	730,444	1861	544,818	1901	404,611	1946	343,668
1831	810,732	1871	517,076	1911	392,104	1956	336,663
1841	854,118	1881	495,607	1926	365,747	1966	339,703
1851	649,308	1891	438,432	1936	355,957	1991	409,814

Note the decrease of almost 50% in population between 1841 and 1891. While a great deal of the decrease was due to famine deaths, the greater majority was due to emigration.

Roman Catholic Parishes generally have different names than those of the Civil Parish in which they are located. There are many of the latter in which there is more than one RC Parish and there are some RC parishes which are in more than one Civil Parish. The Civil Parish names actually are the old Roman Catholic names from before Henry VIII and the Reformation.

Catholic record keeping did not generally begin until 1830 or later. Many records have been microfilmed by the LDS Library and are available for viewing through their Family History Centers.

Records not yet microfilmed are generally available for all parishes unless the Bishop of its diocese has placed restrictions on their use which may require prior written permission before gaining access to them. These restrictions have been placed on a few dioceses. It is best to check ahead before traveling in search of such records.

Cork Estate Records Index (Binder No. 12)

Working with the Irish Government's Genealogical Office in Dublin, our Irish Genealogical Society is a sponsor of a project which is indexing the landlord owners (not the renters) of Irish estates in all of the counties.

The records which are being indexed are not currently microfilmed by the LDS or any other organization and are located in Ireland (in a library or perhaps still in private ownership). The Index gives a reference number which can be used by an Irish genealogical researcher (yourself, if qualified) in searching out and examining these records to obtain the needed information.

The Index is copyrighted and may not be freely copied for your use. However, the IGS does sell the 29 pages available for Cork for $10. The following other Irish counties have been indexed to date:

Armagh	Cavan	Cork	Fermanagh
Galway	Leitrim	Mayo	Monaghan
Roscommon	Sligo	Tyrone	Waterford

In addition to the above counties, 31 manuscripts from the Lismore Estate dating between 1570-1860 have also been indexed. [This article was researched, compiled, and submitted by Ray Marshall.]

Bulletin Board

1995–1996 Board of Directors

Our Annual Meeting was held May 20, 1995 and after a count of ballots it was announced that the slate of officers were elected as presented by the Nominating Committee. Actually all of the Officers were reelcted to another term.

President—Ginny Delaney, 1st Vice President—Florence Myslajek, 2nd Vice President—Patricia Conn, Secretary—Herbert Noble, and Treasurer—Virginia McDermott. Their terms will begin with the new fiscal year, July 1, 1995.

Our speaker for the meeting was Patrick Anzelec, Ass't to Archivist of Archdiocese of St. Paul, Minnesota. The speaker is very knowledgeable and information was invaluable. With his complete knowledge of the archives and collection there is available a wonderful source for the Archdiocese of St. Paul.

The Minnesota Irish Heritage Fair is looking for someone to organize their Irish family reunion in conjunction with the 1995 Fair. If you are interested in planning a family reunion at the time of the next Fair (weekend of October 21–22, 1995), please send a note to IGSI and we'll pass on the information. We have several members on the Fair's Committee. They hope to make this an annual affair so you might want to plan for 1996 or 1997 if you can't make it in 1995!

"Cork Harbour 2000" and the Irish Genealogical Project

by Ray Marshall

Beth Mullinax, our hard working and much travelled past President has kept most of us up to date on the status of the Heritage Centers which Ireland has created in each of its Counties to aid Irish genealogists in our researches. If you are like me, and have Cork ancestors on your list of people to find, you may have wondered why not much news was coming out of Cork, the largest and most populous County in Ireland. Well, it may have been slow in coming, but there's good news at last!

Most of you who have traced your family over to the old country have no doubt begun to realize that there is no one central depository for family records. Many records have been microfilmed by the Mormons and are available to us in our own countries. Many others have been found to be located only in Dublin or Belfast. County and Poor Law Union records still are stored in the towns where they were originally created. Land records are all over the place and our own IGS is beginning to index Estate records, the majority of which are still in private ownership. Church of Ireland Records are centralized in Dublin, but of course we know that those Roman Catholic records which have not yet been microfilmed are still under the control of the local Bishop and are located in the parish church, under the control of the pastor, neither of whom are always over-cooperative with family historians.

The keepers of these local depositories have been reluctant to have copies made of their holdings for a very simple (FINANCIAL) reason. If they send copies to Dublin, then tourists might not come and spend money in the smaller communities where the originals were originated. A way has finally been found around this stumbling block.

The Cobh Heritage Foundation is one of several groups which are involved in the restoration of the port of Cobh, Cork City's gateway to the Atlantic and the world. (Before we proceed further, let's have a quick lesson in Gaelic: "Cobh" is pronounced "cove" and means exactly that, a "small, sheltered, bay." For a period of time, it was called "Queenstown", in honor of Queen Victoria of England, who once visited there). Most people who left south or west Ireland, whether to Liverpool to seek a bigger ship, or direct to North America or Australia, left from Cobh.

The aim of the Cobh Heritage Foundation is to promote and develop the Cork Harbour area as one of the major centers for culture, tourism and industry in Ireland and by doing so, create employment in a country which suffers greatly for lack of opportunities for its children.

Funds are being raised from Corporate Givers, Philanthropic and Governmental Funds, as well as from private individuals in the United States, Canada, Australia and other areas where Irish emigrants once headed. They will be used to promote research and education in the keystones of Irish history: Famine, Emigration, Genealogy, and Shipbuilding. The very fields in which the Irish had historically become either expert or victim are now to be the means of solving current economic problems. Allied to this, the transfer of current technology, entrepreneurial skills and ingenuity will find a ready home in the well developed and sophisticated business environment of Cork and its Harbor area.

The most requested information by people of Irish ancestry is for genealogical information on the origins of their ancestors. Practical steps are now being undertaken in the development of state of the art computer indexing to allow visitors to Ireland to obtain meaningful information in their quest for their personal "roots." Cobh will play a major role in developing this program; in obtaining academic recognition for students of genealogical research, in alliance with their counterparts in Northern Ireland, a true "hands across the border" co-operation. Similar depositories will be located in Shannon, Dublin, Galway and Belfast.

These regional centers will not generally contain the detailed county and parish genealogical information which you will no doubt be seeking. Rather, they will be a genealogical "Signpost" center whereby you will be able to spend a relatively short period of time determining where the records which you are seeking are located. You won't be inconvenienced too much by this compromise. Don't forget that Ireland is not very large and most of the locations to which you will then be headed are less than an hour or two away from the central location where you would be beginning your researches.

If you are unable to travel to Ireland for your researches, these centers will also prove to be a boon to professional Irish genealogists who will have access to them. The "signposting" system will speed up their efforts and lower your costs. Efforts will also be made through the University of Cork to create a program for the certification of genealogists, something which has not yet been done at an academic level anywhere in the world. This also should make our work easier.

The records which will be indexed in the regional centers will include birth, marriage, death, Tithe, Griffith's, gravestone and census records. When we finish our indexing project of Estate Records, there is no doubt but that they will want to include our results in their indexes.

The people involved in the Irish Genealogical project appear to have their heads screwed on right. That is, they know that some of us already know a lot and want to do the work ourselves (not necessarily because we are cheap); there are many others who know a little bit and would be willing to pay for competent research by reputable people. And, of course, there are some who know only that grandpa was born in Cork and nothing else and expect everything for free. Knowing that, I am confident that they will be developing a system which we all can use. I don't know what it will look like, but I am really looking forward to using it. And I guess that I don't have much choice but to wait the four or five years til its completion. I trust in their goal which is that those like me who "take to the ancestor trail will have a pleasant experience."

County Cork — Surprises Along the Way

We came through the Caha Mountains via the Ring of Kerry. Twisty roads with no barriers, no hawthorn bushes, no rock walls and very little "edge". (Where are the rock walls when you need them?) The trip down hairpin curves and through tunnels built in solid rock that look way too narrow to navigate is breathtaking. White knuckle area.

Coming upon Glengarriff, which is on the Beara Peninsula that stretches over thirty miles between Bantry Bay and the Kenmare River estuary you immediately think of it as a quaint little picture postcard fishing village. The road from Killarney through Glengarriff, Macroom and Cork City is one of the scenic highlights of County Cork. Bantry Bay, set among magnificent mountain scenery, with brooding cliffs rising above the dark waters reminds you of romantic historical novels. Its too beautiful to be real.

We "experienced" Bantry Bay, we did not just see it. We stayed at a lovely country home B & B off the main road. The house was built on the side of the hills and our room was on second floor, with a balcony hovering over beautiful gardens and with a magnificent view. We went for a walk along the country lane and hearing sheep bellowing, we turned around to encounter a "parade" of about a hundred sheep being driven along the road. They came to an old curved rock bridge and the shepherds were at work to take them to an upper field. They told us they move them sometimes twice a day. What a lovely Irish picture - even the old bridge. We crossed the bridge, paused to enjoy the waterway and then we meandered on about three miles, turned the corner and before us lay Bantry Bay at dusk. We ran out of film - every angle was too beautiful. It was so beautiful it took your breath away. I can agree with the tour book that says it is one of the most beautiful bays along the Irish coast.

We visited Bantry House and gardens. It is now an art museum built about 1750 by the Earl of Bantry, from whom the present owner is descended in the female line. In 1840 the 2nd Earl of Bantry built the south front to the house and filled it with a collection of tapestries and works of art gathered from his travels of the world. They had a 200 year old carpet on the floor that you could walk on. There were tapestries on the wall of the parlor that were made for Marie Antoinette. There were at least three baby grand pianos and Ming vases everywhere. In the foyer there was an inlaid table - black teakwood and hand inlaid Chinese painting. The dining room was set for dinner with delicate crystal and beautiful ornate china. There were Waterford crystal everywhere, several chandeliers. It was amazing. The back of the house was even more ornate than the front entrance. There were three levels of gardens going up a steep hill. They were more formal "English Gardens", not so many flowers, but green plants and bushes set in patterns around fountains and rock paths. The side garden was a maze. It was off a flagstone patio where there was furniture to have high tea. Tranquillity must have been a word that was born here.

We went to Dunmanway to track down a family "rebel" that escaped hanging by the English with the help of a local priest to hide and escape to France in a garbage scow. When we approached the town, we saw a sign that said "Doheny Festival". My heart beat a little harder because that is the surname we are searching, but was quickly stilled when we found out that is the name of their football team. Ha Ha, We were successful in finding the church and locating a story of that man, though, so all was not lost.

We left there and traveled along the unexpected gorgeous Lee Valley. I have seen many river valleys in my life, but this was an exceptionally lovely area. You see, it has all those fields, outlined by bushes and trees in the background and the road twists and turns right along beside it. No road signs or gas stations to block your view. We came to this delightful little town, Macroom. The castle and the town once was the property of Admiral Sir William Penn, the father of the founder of our state of Pennsylvania. We lunched at the Victoria Hotel, looking at the castle. There was a farmers market taking place in the square and the houses, leaning gently on each other were painted in pastel colors. If I were an artist, I would have spent a year there.

Everyone has heard of Blarney Castle and Woolen Mills. I would rather tell you about Bandon. During the Desmond revolt and later wars, the McCarthys, O'Mahoneys, O"Donovans, O'Driscalls, O'Learys were just some of the Septs ousted from their lands by the Earl of Cork. He was "awarded" this land by Queen Elizabeth for services rendered. It is certainly a historical area to visit and learn from.

This is all of County Cork that we traveled and I could still tell you about the lighthouse at Youghal (pronounced Yawl) and the pottery factory in Shanagorry. The Irish sea just lures you to repose and contemplate the beauty.

In County Cork there is so much more to see. Cork City, Cobh (Cove) where most of our ancestors took their leave, Kinsale, Skibbereen, oh the list goes on and on. I have just taken you for a tour of the outer fringe. around the sea. Each place seems to have its own special place. We discovered a general store in Macroom, where we found lace by the yard and a hand crafted lace tablecloth that we could not have matched in any other place. In that store they had everything from jeans to lace and no tourist items. It was delightful.

Let County Cork lure you to those special places and experience a magical place where your ancestors lived and loved. It was a dreadful day they had to leave—both the place and the family. What purgatory they suffered. The reality, I guess, was leave or starve. No wonder the songs lament their leaving, never to return.

August Quarterly Meeting

"Finding the Treasure: an Irish Roundtable."

August 26, 1995

Believing that sharing our stories helps other people to find their stories, the August quarterly meeting will present three of our members who will tell brief stories about their own experiences. It might be a specific incident, success in locating the home place in Ireland, an especially effective method for working a particular set of records, or just a few special hints—what worked for them that might work for you.

Come and hear their stories and perhaps share your own.

GERMAN IMMIGRANT SERVANT CONTRACTS, REGISTERED AT THE PORT OF PHILADELPHIA, 1817-1831, by Farley Grubb. Published by Genealogical Publishing Co., Inc., 1001 North Calvert St., Baltimore MD 21202, 1994, 158 pp, cloth. ISBN 0-8063-1416-8, $20.00 plus $3.00 postage and handling. Reviewed by Margaret Westman.

German Immigrant Servant Contracts covers the period from 1817 to 1831. This was a peak period of German immigration. Forty percent of the immigrants entering the Port of Philadelphia choose servitude to pay for their passage.

The introduction explains the term, "redemptioners" (the practice of German immigrant servitude in America).

The records start with Book "C", dated May 5, 1817. These are not the official records but contain the following information: Name of the immigrant (if female and married, the husband is given; if a child, the parent is named), the buyer of the contract, his occupation and town.

Also included are the conditions of the contract such as, the length of time to be served and sometimes the education of the immigrant, at the expense of the buyer.

Lastly, at the expiration of the term, what the immigrant is to be given, such as one or two suits of clothing, shoes, a spinning-wheel, a cow, and very seldom, a cash consideration.

The original records are located at the Philadelphia State Library at Harrisburg. The author includes a good list of references and an "Index of Persons."

IN SEARCH OF YOUR BRITISH & IRISH ROOTS, by Angus Baxter. Published & Donated by Genealogical Publishing Co., Inc., 1001 N. Calvert St., Baltimore MD 21202-3897. Toll-Free: 1-800-296-6687. Revised 1991 (1982), 320 pp. paperback, $14.95 plus $3.00 P & H. Reviewed by Patrick L. Coleman.

As a reviewer for the Irish Genealogical Society and a person with only Irish roots, I enter the review of this book with a distinct bias. The book is well-written, well-researched, and highly informative for those who have little experience in searching their roots in the British Isles; but, alas, I cannot recommend it for one who wishes to research roots in Ireland. This is not to say that there is nothing in the book for those looking for help in Ireland. There is generally a small section in each non-geographical chapter which deals with the particular issue (probate, LDS records, etc.) in Ireland. However, specific Irish information is relegated to only one chapter, which is less than 30 pages long (in a 300 page book). The detail for someone with a particular problem to research is just not possible in 30 pages.

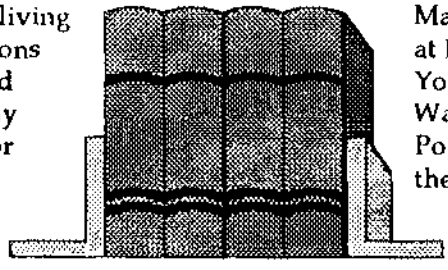
In contrast, the detail in the British Isles chapters is clearly sufficient for that audience. The author is a British subject and can be allowed the natural bias of his years of experience in his home territory. However, this book is in its third edition, and it features Ireland prominently in the title, and I would expect much more regarding Ireland if I were to buy such a book.

I recommend it to those who have British research. I suggest that those who need to get started in research into their Ireland connections use the library's copy.

HISTORY OF THE ANCIENT RYEDALES, by G. T. Ridlon. Published & Donated by Heritage Books Inc., 1540-E Pointer Ridge Place, Bowie MD 20716. Toll-Free: 1-800-398-7709. Reprinted 1944 (1884), 801 pp., two volumes, paperback. $46.00 plus $3.00 P & H. Reviewed by Kathleen Wetherall.

The characteristic progression of the development of a family genealogist is as follows. They start very simply thinking that they will perhaps find out who their great-great-grandparents were and where they came from. Then, when they get the hang of it, they decide to branch out and find all living relatives and a couple of generations of dead ones. The story builds and their curiosity grows until one day they find themselves searching for the in-laws of their great-grandfather's cousins twice removed.



Well, The History of the Ancient Ryedales seems to be the ultimate extension of this genealogical quest. Mr. Ridlon traces the Ryedales and all of their kin, the Riddells, Riddalls, Riddles, Ridleys, Ridlers, Rhuddians, Ridlands, Ridlons, etc., for a thousand years. He catalogs them by the locations from which they came or to which they went.

The book is stunningly thorough, giving very detailed biographies of individuals in a given branch, sometimes through as many as thirty generations. When reading this book one is tempted to call everyone with a Riddell-type name in the phone book to be sure they don't miss the enjoyment that this family story would give them.

I would also recommend it as a guide for anyone who is attempting to put their own family history into print. When Mr. Ridlon was about to embark on this project many of his friends assured him that it could not be done. Not only did he do it but the book has not disappeared, but has endured as an historical source book for over one hundred years.

THE HUGUENOTS: THEIR SETTLEMENTS, CHURCHES, AND INDUSTRIES IN ENGLAND AND IRELAND, by Samuel Smiles. Published by Clearfield Company, Inc., 200 E. Eager Street, Baltimore MD 21202. Tel: (410) 625-9004. Reprint (1868) 1995, 448 pp., indexed, paper. $32.50 plus $3.50 P & H, order #5430. Reviewed by Beth Mullinax.

The author included in this book a thorough history of the Reformation in Northern Europe, and the beginnings of the "Reformed Church" throughout that area. He goes on to describe the beginning of the Huguenots, no one knowing where the name came from but referring to the Protestants in France; their persecution in France and fleeing for a place of safety and being invited to England to establish the weaving trades there. Eventually the were invited to Ireland to do the same.

The chapter on Ireland includes: Refugee Colony at Dublin; Settlement at Lisburn, near Belfast; Louis Crommelin appointed "Overseer of Royal Linen Manufactory of Ireland"; Settlements at Kilkenny and Cork; Settlement at Youghal; Refugee Colony at Waterford; The French Town of Portarlington: its Inhabitants and their Descendants; among other subjects.

There is a list of refugees with information about their backgrounds and information on the "French Churches" that they established in Ireland and England. There is a chapter on the Huguenots in America by the Hon. G. P. Disosway included in the book.

If you are a history buff, there is much included in this book, including the Reformation, the French Revolution, and the linen trade in Ireland and England. Remembering that the book was originally published in 1868, it can give you a different perspective of some of the history of Europe. Very interesting and informative especially since I had just toured the Lisburn Linen Museum in February and we have just acquired the Registers of the French Church of Portarlington, County Offaly. The Huguenots call their churches "French Churches". Anyone with Huguenot ancestors will want to peruse this book.

IRELAND: A GENEALOGICAL GUIDE FOR NORTH AMERICANS, by Kyle J. Betit & Dwight A. Radford, Editors of The Irish At Home and Abroad. Published by The Irish At Home and Abroad, PO Box 521806, Salt Lake City, UT 84152, 1995, 75 pp., paper, maps, illus., Available from publishers (and IGSI soon) for $14.95 plus $2.00 shipping & handling. Reviewed by Ida Troye.

This is an excellent guide to Irish sources. It is of interest to any Irish researcher, whether new or experienced. It has a very concise and easy to understand explanation of sources in North America and Ireland. Every chapter gives direction on how to locate information at the Family History Libary, references, and further reading. When you find a chapter to be particularly helpful for your research, they tell you where to go to find detailed information.

This guide will encourage and enable you to do your "homework" here at home before going to Ireland or having research done for you in Ireland.

For any serious researcher, this is a vital source book to have at home. I'm ordering mine today!

THE GREAT HISTORIC FAMILIES OF SCOTLAND, VOLUME 1, by James Taylor, MA, DD, FSA. Published by Heritage Books, Inc., 1540-E Pointer Ridge Pl., Suite 300, Bowie MD 20716, (1889) reprint, 431 pp., addendum, index, paper. $25.00 plus $3.00 P & H. #T095. Reviewed by Ida Troye.

A book giving historical and biographical descriptions of leading members of families of Scotland in great detail. The families are: Douglases, Keiths, Setons, Rughvens, Crichtons, two MacKenzies, four Campbells, four Leslies, Hamiltons, Hamilton-Douglases, Ramsays, Maules, Lauderdale Maitlands, Homes, and the Marchmont Humes.

Very interesting insights into the personal character, manners and customs make this an unusual look at the Scottish peerage.

THE GREAT HISTORIC FAMILIES OF SCOTLAND, VOLUME 2, by James Taylor, MA, DD, FSA. Published by Heritage Books, Inc., 1540-E Pointer Ridge Pl., Suite 300, Bowie MD 20716 (1889) reprint, 410 pp., index, paper, $25.00 plus $3.00 S & H. #T096. Reviewed by Ida Troye.

The families covered are in this volume are: Maxwells, Johnstones, Stewarts, Drummonds, Strathallan Drummonds, three Erskins, three Grahams, two Scotts, two Frasers, four Gordons, three Hays, the Maclellans, and the Hepburns.

Painstaking details of the leading members of these families gives a strong perspective of what their personalities and times were actually like. If you are a descendent of any of the Scottish nobility, this would be a wonderful source of information.

TARTAN FOR ME! SUGGESTED TARTANS FOR SCOTTISH, SCOTCH-IRISH, IRISH, AND NORTH AMERICAN SURNAMES WITH LISTS OF CLAN, FAMILY AND DISTRICT TARTANS. EXPANDED 6TH EDITION, by Philip D. Smith. Published by Heritage Books, Inc., 1540-E Pointer Ridge Pl., Suite 300, Bowie MD 20716, 1994, 144 pp., paper, $20.00 (#S539), $3.00 P & H. Reviewed by Joe Huber.

Mr. Smith has a 26 page introduction discussing all aspects of tartans. A tartan is a cloth with a distinctive pattern or "sett" woven at right angles and made into various pieces of clothing. These distinctive patterns are identified with districts in Scotland, clans (septs in Ireland), families and some other special cases. Yes, there are tartans from Ireland, mostly families from Ulster. The book gives the national tartans, colors and shades of tartans, where tartan patterns are recorded and how you can find and wear your tartan. It also lists all 539 clan and family tartans, and has district and family/clan listings and maps.

The book discusses family names, the many spelling variations, the difference (there isn't any) between "Mac" and "Mc", and non-traditional Scottish names.

The surname section of the book has over 16,000 surnames listed. In this section, there are two columns. The first column has the surname and the second has its associated tartan. The spelling variations are handled in two different ways. There are some names that can have a prefix (e.g., McDonald or Donald). One would have to look under both spellings to find this kind of variation. Other names may have spelling variation of a non-prefixed name. These are handled by including the different spellings in the same listing (e.g., Mac Leggan,-en, -in or Mac Lerga(i)n). Finally, there are some names that are found both in Scotland and Ireland (e.g., Lynch).

This book should interest those who want to figure out which tartan they should choose and it may have some interest for those looking for spelling variations in their name.

HEIRLOOMS OF IRELAND, AN EASY REFERENCE TO SOME IRISH SURNAMES AND THEIR ORIGINS, by Joseph J. Osborne. Published by Clearfield Company, 200 E. Eager St., Baltimore MD 21202, 1995, 183 pp., paper, $24.95 plus $3.00 P & H. Tel: 1-410-625-9004. Reviewed by Joe Huber.

Mr. Osborne begins with a five page introduction that talks about four major events that influenced Irish surnames -the Vikings, the Normans, the plantation of Ireland, and Oliver Cromwell.

The major part of the book is concerned with over 2,000 surnames and information about these names, organized into 11 columns. How these surnames were chosen is not discussed. - Col 1 - The prefix associated with each surname (Mac or Mc, O, De or de and Fitz). - Col 2 - The surname, listed alphabetically without the prefix. There are a few spelling variations listed. - Col 3 - The language from which that the surname derived. - Col 4 - The country from which the surname came. - Col 5 - The century when the surname first appeared in Ireland. - Col 6 - The Irish county or province where the people with the surname originated or settled. - Col 7 - The definition or meaning of the surname, if determined. - Col 8 - The language from which the surname meaning was derived. - Col 9 - The prefix associated with pseudonyms or synonyms for original Irish surnames. - Col 10 - Pseudonyms and synonyms for original Irish surnames. - Col 11 - The language from which the pseudonyms or synonyms derived.

Finally, there are five appendices: a fifth century map of Ireland showing the boundaries of lordships; a list of the Irish clans of old; the most popular surnames in Ireland (in 1890); a list of the Irish chieftains now and then; and sources plus a suggested reading list.

This book may interest genealogical newcomers or someone who is casually interested in the origins of their Irish surname, but would seem to offer little to anyone already into their genealogical search. It may also interest those who are interested in the pattern and origin of Irish surnames in general.

Computer Talk

Computer Genealogy Resources

When the subject of computer resources first came up a few months ago, it was thought that there was not an awful lot available in the genealogy areas. But they are growing fast. Nothing can beat the LDS Ancestry File and their International Genealogical Index (available only through your local Family History Center). Then there also is the Social Security Death Index which came out a few years ago. And of course, entrepeneurs have come up with the "Phone Book on a Stick" (CD-Rom) which is useful for those searching out people who are still alive.

And it appears that there is a lot more. None of the resources is very large as of yet, but remember most of these are less than a year old. There are treasures to be found and these places are a good place to start. If you are uncertain as to how to gain access to these places, a computer dealer may lead you to a local resource who would be happy to help you out. Then again, buy a book.

To let you know how fast sources are growing, a draft of this article was sent to the MN Genealogical Society Computer User Group so that they could add the sources to their brand new "Home Page." Not only did they respond quickly, but they also informed us that a "Home Page" has been set up for the IGSI!!! Look forward to seeing nifty things there!!!

If you do know of other resources which should be listed here, write a letter to the Septs and we will from time to time reprint updated lists or steer you towards definitive lists which may be created as the need arises.

For reasons of space, this list presumes a certain degree of computer literacy. Connection to some of these areas will be dealt with in an upcoming issue of the Septs.

IRISH GEMS IN QUEBEC CITY

by

Brian O'Regan

When in Quebec City most people seek out such gems as the Citadel or the majestic Chateau Frontenac hotel. Mine are in the home of ~~the~~ Literary and Historical Society of Quebec, the only English library in the region. It was founded in 1824.

The Society has a 25,000 volume collection. In it are many gems for genealogists. It has great appeal to me. My area of interest is records on Irish ancestry, particularly the O'Regan surname.

After researching City records about an O'Regan family that had emigrated to Quebec in the 1830s, there was time to spare. I spent it scanning other references located in an old glass-door cabinet in the building's attic. And what a delightful find I made: some original early 19th century Irish records.

The establishment of the Irish Records Commission (IRC) in 1810 marked the first determined effort of government to deal with the problem of public records in Ireland. But its interest, previously spasmodic, was to last only 20 years.

The IRC, however, published three important volumes before its patent was revoked in 1830. They embraced 15 annual reports with supplements and appendices. And these are the records I found.

Each volume contains five reports , an index, supplement and appendice. In volume I is a Calendar to the Pleadings from the Reign of Henry VII to that of Philip and Mary in which may be found the Calendar number, reign, names of plaintiffs and defendants. premises (i.e. appeal of murder), places and counties.

Volume II includes A Catalog of the Inquisitions Preserved in the Rolls of His Majesty's High Court of Chancery, Four Courts (Dublin). The Inquisitions are listed by county, reign, number, names of persons, and the date and place where taken, i.e.,

Com_Cork
Carolus I
580 Johannes McTeige O'Riegan, 25 August 1640, Old Castle

Volume III includes additional inquisitions; Index of Persons in the Grants under the Acts of Settlement and Explanation; Abstracts of Grants of Lands and other Hereditaments under the Acts of Settlement and Explanation; Abstracts of Estates Forfeited in 1688; Index Nominum to the Inrolments of the Decrees of Innocents; Index Nominum to the Inrolments of the Connaught Certificates; and an Index Nominum to the Inrolments of Adjudications in Favour of the (1649) Officers.

There were many other gems. To list only a few:

> Original Lists of Emigrants Who Went to America 1600-1700 -
> Published in London in 1874 and taken from MSS in the > State Paper Department, Public Records Office, England
> It includes names, ages, former mother country locality, > names of ships and other interesting particulars.

Calendars of the Proceedings in the Chanceries in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, three volumes, London 1827-32

Inquisitionum in officio Rotulorum Cancelloriae Hiberniae asservatarum, repertorium, two volumes, London 1826-27

Rotuli selecti res Anglicas et Hibernicas spectantes ex Archivis in Domo Capitulari Westmonasteriensi, deprompti, Cura Josephi Hunter, 8vo, London 1834

These valuable publications are housed in the oldest library in Canada - a four-storey structure built in 1812 in the heart of old Quebec. The building, known as Morrin College, is classified as a historic monument, as indeed it should be.

It combines the Haldemand Library of 1779 and the Quebec Literary Association of 1845. Library hours Monday to Friday are 10 to 12:30, 2 to 6, and 8 to 10; Saturday 10 to 12:30. The telephone number is 694-9147.

When in Quebec City plan your time to drop in and visit this gem of a Library and explore its jewels. It is inside the old walled part of upper Quebec City, at the corner of St. Anne and St. Stanislas Streets, ~~not~~ far from the famed Chateau Frontenac Hotel. You will not be disappointed.

If you carry out any research, please remember that it is a private library which subsists on Society membership fees and donations. Be generous toward the maintenance of a priceless gem for genealogists.

If You're looking at Cork, Don't Forget the Casey Collection

by Ray Marshall

If your people lived within the area covered in the O'Kief, Coshe Mang, Slieve Lougher and the Upper Blackwater in Ireland series, a collection of 16 enormous volumes of primary and secondary genealogical and historical records of Ireland, don't forget to check it out. (Nobody calls it by its name, however, to serious genealogists it is either "The Casey Collection", or just OCM).

The relatively small area (40 miles square) of NW Cork, and a bit of Kerry and Limerick covered in the series is the homeland of the family of Albert E. Casey, an Alabama pathologist, who created and compiled this fabulous collection in the course of researching his own family history and had it published between the years 1952-71 by the Amite and Knocknagree Historical Fund in Birmingham, AL. Most of the original records were compiled by folks in Ireland, for their own reasons, or for Casey. Casey hired typists, copiers, and most importantly, indexers, for the preparation of these volumes.

But don't stop reading now if you figure that your people aren't supposed to be from around that area. This collection is, in addition to aiding researchers in the Slieve Lougher ("Bog with Cattle") area, a terribly valuable resource for you who are able to go way back in time with your pedigrees. For it contains Roman Catholic (RC), Church of Ireland (C of I) and Quaker births, marriages and death records, Tombstone inscriptions, newspaper abstracts, Civil Documents, Court Records and whole lot more on:

1. The primary area up until the year 1900 (and a bit beyond).
2. All of Cork and Kerry before 1825.
3. All of Munster before 1625.
4. All of Ireland before 1182.
5. Some very interesting maps, a few photographs and some culture, history and emigration pieces.
6. Copies of Tithe and Griffiths Valuations House- holder lists and maps for some areas.
7. Copies of some of the classic Irish histories, some with parallel translations from the Gaelic and Medieval Latin for the extremely serious genealogists among you.

Thus you can see that this is an extremely valuable reference work and thanks should be given to the family of Lorraine (Mickey) Huber who so very kindly donated funds in her memory for its purchase a few years ago. There are not very many of these sets available and we are very fortunate to be able to count ourselves among the small number of libraries who do have them.

In addition, thanks must be given to Casey, and especially, his indexers, whose incredible undertaking was done before the age of the personal computer (3,000,000 names, remember), the results of which make this work not only fascinating and interesting, but also a practical genealogical tool not only for the serious researcher of some knowledge.

Each volume of the O'Kief series contains, along with its own index and table of contents, an extensive introduction written by Casey which indicates where he got his information, some historical commentary and some of the conclusions he has drawn.

The introduction to volume XI does contain a good bibliography and a partial guide to the collection by Parish and Religion. You might want to peruse this first and make copies for your own reference. (Note: the completion of this guide would be a good project for someone to undertake). Volume XVI does not contain an index as it contains copies of four volumes of a work which pertains to an adjoining region of Cork.

A word of caution before you proceed. Be creative with your spellings and dates and bring a very large magnifying glass for most of the documents are reduced in size from the originals. And don't be surprised if you can't find your people. For 3,000,000 names, given the time frame this series encompasses, does not cover everyone who lived in that area. Sorry.

Céad Míle Fáilte - "a hundred thousand welcomes"

A Road to Remember

by Damian Quinn, Liverpool, England

Could I pass on to your readers my recent experiences of a visit to the Smithsonian Native Indian Museum in New York. Magnificent! Don't miss it! The story of the Indian nations and the people certainly hooked me.

I attended the Great Hunger Walk from Doolough to Louisburgh in beautiful County Mayo, Ireland. To my amazement, I found a Choctaw Indian there from Oklahoma who walked the ten miles from Doolough to Louisburgh in the footsteps of the people who had lost their lives in a horrendous walk between the two villages, looking for help from the two paid officials in the form of a bag of corn.

The people were told to go away as the two "gentlemen" in question were having lunch and to return to Delphi, ten miles away. They set out on what was to be their last journey, hundreds dying of hunger and cold, with green stains around their mouths from having eaten grass in their desperate hunger.

The Chocktaw nation heard of the plight of the starving Irish and collected a "widow's mite" to help and sent money. They knew from bitter experience what Ireland was enduring as they themselves had experienced the genocide of their nation in what became known as their "Trail of Tears."

The Irish people who died or emigrated at the time, the 1840s, were not all poor. They had money and jewelry, but there was no food to buy. During 1846-1849, England took from Ireland 572,485 head of cattle; 839,118 sheep; 699,021 pigs; 2,532,839 quarts of oats; and 1,821,091 hundredweight of oatmeal. The Irish ate grass, seaweed, rotting potatoes, all at the door of the wealthiest nation in the world—England. Bountiful food in sight, but they dare not touch it. Political and economic Colonialism.

The Chocktaw nation has maintained a link with Ireland ever since and it was certainly impressive to observe and listen to Mr. White Deer in beautiful Mayo this year. He has a rapport with the starving of all nations and asked us all to remember, as we walked, that the hundreds of people who perished on that hunger walk in the last century would be walking with us again. That said it all, what a great way to put it. His dignity was something to behold and he was certainly a worthy ambassador to remember our dead in beautiful Ireland.

*[Mr. Quinn sent along a brochure telling about the walk and the participants. ed.]*k

Fall greetings from Minnesota! I hope that your summer was fun and packed full of genealogical treasures & pleasant surprises.

As the leaves begin to fall and the landscape changes it's scenery, it reminds me that winter is approaching. It's not winter – its the genealogy season – we're not shut in, we are getting all our correspondence done and are traveling via mail all directions.

It also may be the time to begin to think about holiday gifts. Why not give a subscription of the Septs to your aunt or uncle, or any other family member interested in genealogy? We also have an extensive selection of Irish books and, finally, the maps we have been waiting for. These are available by mail order and you will see them listed in the back of the newsletter.

Speaking of the holidays, when you need a break from the hectic pace you can always turn to your Irish research to relax and get your mind refocused. Write a letter to those relatives that you haven't heard from in a while, or to a source you have been putting off contacting. Contemplate about what you think your grandfather/grandmother would be doing during this season in years past and try to visualize their life. When you think of what they survived, it makes todays "stress" seem minor

Our August Quarterly Meeting "Finding the Treasure," an Irish Roundtable featured Elizabeth Delmore, C. S. T., Kathryn Smith and Terry Carroll. They shared their experiences which included successes as well as challenging experiences in their research. Thank you for sharing your tips in research your ancestors. At the meeting I urged members to volunteer time with IGSI. I realize that this is a busy and hectic time for all. However, the Society continues to operate on a volunteer basis. Your knowledge and skill could be an asset to the society. What a perfect opportunity to write that article for the newsletter. I know that Ida would be thrilled.

IGSI could also utilize volunteers for the library Irish Days on the second Saturday of the month.

I would ask you to read the article which focuses on the MGS 21st Century Campaign. It is important to IGSI as well as the Minnesota Genealogical Society and the members of all the branches.

Good luck in your research!

Ginny

Editor's Corner

You will be entertained by two members who have shared their experiences in researching County Cork. Perhaps you will be able to pick up some new ideas from their searches, there are some unusual sources reported here. Thank you for sharing your exciting stories.

Ida Troye

The Casey Collection volumes have been indexed by Ray Marshall, and as far as we know this is the only one. We promised to share it with you and even though it takes up a lot of space, we think it is valuable. The Casey Collection should be available in any large library in the US, so it is something you should be able to access. This is only a small portion of County Cork, but wouldn't it be grand to locate your family ties there?

At last! We have been able to make contact with a supplier in Ireland to provide the maps we have been trying to acquire. Be sure check this out – Beth has described them later on in the newsletter. These are not road maps, they are area maps, showing the townlands.

There is still lots of information about County Cork, but we have to move on. If you want further information about the "sources" to search with, see vol 2, number 4 of The Irish At Home and Abroad. The article on County Cork, by Kyle J. Betit is enlightening.

What would you like to see in our Computer Talk column? Ray Marshall is doing such a lot with this, but we are interested in anything you might contribute or desire to read about. Please send him an E-Mail, the address was in last quarter's issue, but I'll include it again. It is as follows: http://www.mtn.org/mgs/branches/irish.html for the society and: raymarsh@legarto.minn.net for the E-Mail.

There are more Calvary Cemetery listings. Remember, send in your information if you know of any burials there. As far as we know, we are the only group creating this index. This is the one in Woodside, NY. If you have any information, or wish the index to be checked, write to us, and send an sase if you need a reply. You will see a continued list, from time to time, in The Septs.

For those root seeking, tree shaking friends and family, don't forget what a wonderful Christmas gift it would be to give a subscription to The Septs, a new research book, or those maps. That's something they can't get in any Mall or catalog. I know its early, but it is actually just around the corner. We want to be among the first to wish you a great Christmas and New Year.

Wonderful holidays ahead. I hope yours is memorable! We won't be seeing you until 1996.

Enjoy!

Things to Know About Cobh (Cove), County Cork

Source: Cobh Heritage Foundation: Cork Harbor 2000

The Cove of Cork was a marshalling center for British troop ships in the American War of Independence, Boer War and Crimea War.

Rebels from the 1798 Rising and Robert Emmet's 1803 rebellion were among the 30,000 men and 9,000 women transported as convicts from Cove/Queenstown between 1791 and 1853.

Over 4,000 orphan girls from workhouses were transported as domestic servants to Australia between 1848 and 1850.

Between 1845 and 1851 Cove/Queenstown (renamed for Queen Victoria in 1849 and Cobh after Irish Independence) was the departure point for 1,500,000 Irish emigrants to the United States – more than the volume of emigrants in the previous 50 years.

Famine relief was shipped to Ireland from the U.S.A. when the "Jamestown" brought 800 tons of food into Cork in 1847 to be followed two months later by the relief ship "Macedonia."

On January 1, 1892, Annie Moore from County Cork celebrated her 15th birthday by becoming the first emigrant processed through Ellis Island, New York, when landing from a vessel which sailed from Queenstown.

Between 1848 and 1900, Irish emigrants in the USA sent home more than 46 million pounds to families in Ireland.

Queenstown was the last port of call from the "Titanic" on her maiden voyage in April, 1912.

Survivors and victims for the "Lusitania," sinking in May, 1915, were brought into Queenstown. Many of the dead are buried in a graveyard a mile north of the town.

Did My Grandmother Have Something to Hide?

by Barbara Sexton

My maternal and paternal ancestors are from County Cork, Ireland. My father's great grand parents were William and Mary (Fitzgerald) Nagle from Kilmacabea townland. The name of the townland came from the obituary of their son, Michael, although it was misspelled. The incorrect spelling stopped me for a time. I wrote the Catholic Church in Ireland to receive the correct spelling.

William and his eldest daughter, Mary Nagle, arrived in New York City on April 3, 1851 on separate ships according to Volume VII of the Famine Immigrants. They worked and sent money home to the family until there was enough for the rest of the family to immigrate. To save money, the rest of the family lied about their ages. Even their mother, Mary, reported to be 35 when she was over 40. The rest of the children stated themselves to be younger so more could come at half-fare. The rest of the family arrived in New York City from Liverpool, on July 10, 1852. They went to live near Kingston, New York in Ulster County. William worked for a cement manufacturer. William was the son of Daniel Nagle. His wife, Mary Fitzgerald Nagle was the daughter of Edward Fitzgerald and Mary (Regan) Fitzgerald.

> "My mother's mother told a lot of stories about her background. That woman had something to hide."

William and Mary's son, Edward, died in Ireland before they left. Margaret and John died three days after landing in New York City (of measles). Another son, John, was born in the state of New York.

In 1860 the family appears in northern Michigan working in the iron mines. They were there only two months, but at the time the census was taken. In the fall of 1860, they settled in Wiscoy Township, Winona County, Minnesota. William was a farmer. Their daughter, Mary, married and remained in New York State. Daniel, the oldest son, married Mary Hennegan of County Mayo, Ireland. They invited her sister, Bridget, to visit and she became the bride of Michael Nagle. Mary and Bridget were the daughters of Edward and Katherine Hennegan. Edward was a weaver and died about 1851. Michael enlisted in Company K, 11th Regiment Minnesota during the Civil War. When he applied for his pension, he had to explain why he said he was age 22 at enlistment when his baptismal record showed he was 27. He replied that he didn't know how old he was. Michael and Bridget were the parents of nine daughters.

My mother's mother told a lot of stories about her background. That woman had something to hide. She was the reason that I became interested in genealogy.

She was born Anne Marie Cunningham, October 30, 1873 in Buttevant, County Cork, Ireland. Here in the U.S.A. records, she had added a year. She said she was born in Ealing, near London, the daughter of a Baptist minister. She told the truth when she said she immigrated at age 16, but I was hunting for a birth record in England that I just couldn't find. She did say her grandfather Hayes was a member of the Royal Irish Constabulary. Bingo! In going through the registers of the IRC, I found a Michael Hayes, born in County Clare in 1816 whose entire service was in County Cork. First in western County Cork, then in eastern County Cork. I got his death record and Annie Cunningham was a witness to his death. Her mother, Frances Cunningham, received what was due from his retirement. Her father, George Cunningham, son of Alexander Cunningham, died in August 1873, choking on his food.

Anne Marie had a brother, Alexander Cunningham that I am still trying to find in this country. My grandmother immigrated from Queenstown in the spring of 1890. She worked in New York City for an attorney by the name of Sedgewick, then west to Chicago to work at the World's Fair in 1893. In Chicago, she met and married her first husband, Orrie B. Stimpson, from Iowa. Her son Charles Stimpson born in Fond Du Lac, Wisconsin in 1895, where her mother-in-law, Eunice Stimpson was caring for her father. The young family moved to St. Paul, where Orrie was a waiter. They must not have gotten along, because my grandmother deserted her husband and got a job in Minneapolis. Her husband filed for divorce in Hennepin County on grounds of desertion. He had to wait one year to bring it to court in Minneapolis. He received custody of their son, whom she had also deserted. A month after the divorce she met her second husband as they lived in the same boarding house. She was about to leave Minneapolis for a job elsewhere. My grandfather realized that he had to immediately pop the question or lose her. They were married after knowing each other six weeks. She then had five more children, their father being Robert Lewis Simpson. My mother, Laura Simpson Peterson was terribly shocked to find that she had an older half brother we knew nothing about.

Genealogy does bring surprises.

The Mother Lode of Irish Genealogy

by Ray Marshall

What if someone told you that there exists an Irish resource with over 3,000,000 (count 'em) names, most not duplicated, all indexed alphabetically? And they told you that this resource was in the MGS Library. You'd figure that you had it made, right? Weellllll, maybe, but only if your people lived within the area covered in the O'Kief, Coshe Mang, Slieve Lougher and the Upper Blackwater in Ireland series, a collection of 16 enormous volumes of primary and secondary genealogical and historical records of Ireland.

Albert E. Casey, an Alabama pathologist (remember Quincy?), created and compiled this fabulous collection in the course of researching his own family history and had it published between the years 1952-71 by the Amite and Knocknagree Historical Fund in Birmingham, Ala. He went to this effort because by his calculations, he is related to everyone who ever lived there (I don't expect that you will want to believe all of his suppositions, but the raw data more than makes up for hopeful extrapolations). Most of the original records were compiled by folks in Ireland, for their own reasons, or for Casey. Casey hired typists, copiers, and most importantly, indexers, for the preparation of these volumes.

In the words of that late night sidekick, Ed McMahon, then, one would suppose that Casey's put everything, everything that you could possibly want to know about Irish genealogy in this series. I mean, 3,000,000 names, right? It must be the complete history of Ireland! Wrong, genealogical dreamer! The area where Casey's family came from is a small portion of NW Cork and E Kerry and the most recent records in his books pertain almost exclusively to that location, which is much smaller than the Twin Cities Metropolitan Area (maybe being 40 miles square in extent).

Casey found the almost incomprehensible title for his series on a 1605 map. The O'Kief's were the kings and owners of southern and western Duhallow Barony (Cork) before that time, Coshe Mang (from the Maine River) is in eastern Magunihy Barony (Kerry) and Slieve Lougher ("Bog with Cattle") and Upper Blackwater (from the river of the same name) comprise portions of Muskerry West (Cork) and Trughanacmy (Kerry) Baronies.

The area is bounded roughly by Newcastle, Tralee, Killarney and Mallow, with the primary

Motherlode (continued from previous page) area of emphasis of his searches being the central portions of this geographic parallelepiped or rhombus (I've always wanted to be able to use those two words outside of geometry class).

But don't stop reading now if you figure that your people aren't supposed to be from around that area. This collection is, in addition to aiding researchers in this particular area, a terribly valuable resource for you really, really serious (or lucky) folks who are able to go way back in time with your pedigrees. For it contains Roman Catholic (RC), Church of Ireland (CofI) and Quaker births, marriages and death records, Tombstone inscriptions, newspaper abstracts, Civil Documents, Court Records and whole lot more on:

1. The primary area up until the year 1900 (and a bit beyond).
2. All of Cork and Kerry before 1825.
3. All of Munster before 1625.
4. All of Ireland before 1182. Some of the early records purport to go back right to Adam and Eve (ah, give me a break).
5. Some really arcane and jaundiced stuff on blood types, skull sizes (remember Casey was a pathologist), ancient writings and world pre-history.
6. Some very interesting maps, a few photographs and some culture, history and emigration pieces.
7. Copies of Tithe and Griffith's Valuations House-holder lists and maps for some areas (say, whoever bombed the Public Records office and destroyed those census papers? They sure did make life difficult).
8. Copies of some of the classic Irish histories, some with parallel translations from the Gaelic and Medieval Latin for the extremely serious genealogists among you.

Thus you can see that this is a no fooling extremely valuable reference work and thanks should be given to the family of Lorraine (Mickey) Huber who so very kindly donated funds in her memory for its purchase. There are not very many of these sets available and we are very fortunate to be able to count ourselves among the small number of libraries who do have them (a partial list of other locations is given at the end of this article).

In addition, thanks must be given to Casey, and especially, his indexers, whose work was done before the age of the personal computer (3,000,000 names, remember), the results of which make this work not only fascinating and interesting, but also a practical genealogical tool not only for the serious researcher of some knowledge, but also for the beginner who only knows that great-grandpa was born in Rathbeg and worked on the Kenmare Estate.

Casey must have had a lot of spare time in his life and he largely put it to good use. For a bibliography of his work given in the last volume indicates that besides this collection, he wrote or compiled a four volume set on Amite County, MS, one volume on Southern Pathologists, another on cancer and 260 monographs on such diverse subjects such as cancer in mice, polio, rabbit cholesterol, trichinosis and the like.

Each volume of the O'Kief series contains, along with its own index and table of contents, an extensive introduction written by Casey which indicates where he got his information, some historical commentary and some of the conclusions he has drawn. The least valid portion of this collection appears to be his pathological and pre-history assumptions about the pre-eminent role of the Irish in world history. I would like to think that also, but one should probably write it off to wishful thinking in most cases. Some of his pathological data and conclusions are sometimes quite disconcerting.

The introduction to volume XI does contain a good bibliography and a partial guide to the collection by Parish and Religion. You might want to peruse this first and make copies for your own reference. (Note: the completion of this guide would be a good project for someone to undertake).

Volume XVI does not contain an index as it contains copies of four volumes of a work which pertains to an adjoining region of Cork.

A word of caution before you proceed. Be creative with your spellings and dates and bring a very large magnifying glass for most of the documents are reduced in size from the originals. Finally, if you find Jeremiah Reidy's (of Meenleitrim North) dad in there someplace, give me a ring. All my Mom's people are supposed to have lived in what Casey calls Slieve Lougher; but I'll be danged if I can find them in here.

Because, alas, even 3,000,000 names do not account for all of the people who have ever lived in this area. We will, of course, be taking the names of volunteers who want to work on the next 16 volumes.

November Quarterly Meeting

"The Midlife Crisis of the Family Historian: How Did I Get into This, and Where Do I go from Here?"

Speaker: James W. Warren

Whether you've been pursuing your family history for 30 days or 30 years, at times the frustrations overwhelm the joys of genealogy. Are you bogged down by all that unsorted paper? Have you about had it chasing those uncooperative ancestors who simply will not appear in the records where they should? Do you just know that there will never, ever be enough time to get it all done and written? Regardless of your age, you may have reached your midlife crisis as a genealogist. Take heart – there is hope! During this hour, Jim Warren will help you put it all in perspective, laugh at what we simply cannot change, and together come up with simple, specific steps to help each of you move past the crisis before your well of genealogical enthusiasm runs dry!

Jim is a full-time professional genealogist, lecturer and writer, specializing in on-site research throughout the Midwest and at national repositories. Jim is a former newsletter editor and past president of the Irish Genealogical Society. His mother's Irish family came to Dakota County, Minnesota in 1853.

He is currently a director and a former vice president of the Federation of Genealogical Societies and past president of the Minnesota Genealogical Society.

Jim and his wife, Paula Stuart Warren operate Warren Research and Publishing, conducting research, consultations, writing, and publishing for clients.

Directions to the Southdale Library

Ordinarily the library is easily reached from the Xerxes exit of Hwy. 62 Crosstown. In view of construction this year on Hwy. 62, crossing Minneapolis from east to west may be easier along 66th St. Go to York Ave., turn south to 70th; or take France Ave S. to 70th, go east to York. Meeting rooms are on the second floor with stairs and elevator available.

Irish Famine

A famine in Ireland was not an unusual event. However, the Irish famine was an historical event as it triggered the mass exodus of the Irish into North America, England, and Australia. This famine was different in that the potato crops were ruined by a blight for three years in a row.

Famines usually mean there is no food available. This was not true in Ireland as there was plenty of food. Ireland was growing enough food to feed itself and most of England. The problem was that the Irish Catholics had no money to purchase the food, so estimates of one to two million people died of hunger or from desease caused by their emaciated condition.

The first blight was in 1845 and the starving conditions continued until 1850. The worst year was reported to be 1847. Although there was no blight that year, few potatoes had been planted as the seed potatoes had been used in prior years and there was no money for more.

The Irish all over the world began commemorating the famine this year (1995) as the 150th year of its beginning. The "rememberance" will continue until the year 2000. Watch your local areas for events.

Members have written to inquire about reading material on this. There are many books out plus any history of Ireland will give the basics. However, the two that I have read are older ones and were excellent. Inquire at your local library or if you wish to purchase, IGSI can either get the books for you or tell you where to order them. The books I have are as follows:

1) The Great Hunger, by Cecil Woodham Smith Originally published in 1962.
2) Famine, A Novel by Liam O'Flaherty. Forward by Thomas Flanagan. Originally published in 1937
3) When Ireland Starved, An Gorta Mor, The Great Famine. A Video by Celtic Video. Inc., 141 E. 33rd St., N Y NY 10016. 1-800-99-CELTIC.

These books and video will give you an understanding of why our families left Ireland, before, during and after the famine. You owe it to your ancestors to know this story.

International Membership

Please note that membership fees outside U.S.A. are $20.00 in U.S. funds. Please do not send postal money orders. A personal check is okay; drawn on a bank with a branch in the U.S. if possible.

Gleanings

From HERE and THERE and Clans too!

by Beth Mullinax

Not much information was received this quarter. Remember that the members write this, that is they send us the news. We try to keep up with everything but it is impossible without you members out there. If you are not sure if it is newsworthy, send it anyway. We will print what we think you want and what is timely. We get many notices that arrive too late for a timely notice in the newsletter. Our newsletter deadline is six weeks before the first of the month that the newsletter is due. For this October newsletter, the deadline was August 15th!!

Here

Foreign Monies – Several members have asked about an inexpensive way to purchase Irish Punt or English Sterling to send to Ireland and Northern Ireland. I have found most places all over Ireland will take a personal check in US Dollars, adjusted to the current exchange rate and rounded up! Also, some will take credit cards!

However, there are some who will take only the currency of their country. I have used one company several times with excellent service. They are, Ruesch International, U.S. Hqrs, 700 11th St. NW, Washington DC 20001-4507. You call their toll free number (1-800-424-2923), tell them the amount of Pounds, English or Irish, and they will give you the cost to purchase that amount at the current rates. They add $2.00 only, give you the total cost which you must mail to them. A personal check will have to wait clearance before they send you a check made out as you requested. You can also request that they send the check for you, but that costs more and I would rather see the check and copy it before sending it on! They deal in all foreign monies, not just Ireland.

IGSI – Again the Irish Genealogical Society, Intl., has been asked to be one of the sponsors for the Irish Genealogical Congress. The third congress will be held in September 1997, at St Patrick's College, Maynooth, Co Kildare. This is about 15 miles from Dublin City center. IGSI will probably be sponsoring a luncheon at the congress so if you have any suggestions for a subject and/or speaker, please let us know. I will be taking a tour over so start saving your money!

Passport or Renewals – The U.S. Passport Office is reporting the heaviest demand in history. If you are planning a trip and need a passport or renewal, be sure an apply very early!

Michigan – Michigan Genealogical Council's 22nd Annual Genealogical Seminar, November 9, 10 & 11, 1995. To be held at Treetops Sylvan Resort, Gaylord MI. For further info write: Charlevoix County Gen Society, 201 E. Main Street, Boyne City MI 49712, c/o Nancy Fulkerson, Pres.

There

Ireland – You will note in the Library News, that we list the townland maps of Northern Ireland. We have just received the townland maps of the Republic of Ireland also, but there are about 179 of these and it will take awhile to catalogue them. When we are finished, we should have maps covering all of Ireland in the Library. These maps show townland borders and are very detailed. They do not show the houses as the Valuation Office maps do. We have still to determine what our reproduction policy will be on these. Because of their size, they would be hard to copy even a small area. More on this later.

Valuation Office – Speaking of maps, a member wrote them for a certain map by number. These are the numbers found in several places, including Griffith's Valuation, that show your townland and the locations of residents which correspond to GV. The Valuation Office has been asked by the Archives of Ireland not to reproduce the maps any more because of their fragile condition. I made this same comment after my last visit to this office. They are using the originals to make copies and being around 150 years old, they are worn!

IGSI has offered to assist in the cost of reproducing masters of these maps for use to researchers. They are invaluable! Remember there must be over 1,000 maps and most are very large so the cost will be high. They wrote that they are looking into the feasibility and expense of this project. We'll keep you informed of the progress. I copied several of these maps while in Dublin in February.

Note the Ordnance Survey Maps we are now carrying for sale.

Canada – Grosse Ile, the quarantine station for immigrants into Canada from 1832-1937, has an interesting history as well as being in the news much in the last few years. We will try to do an article on it soon but in the meantime we have been collecting everything we can on the area, especially the books by Marianna O Gallagher. Her father

IRISH PASSENGER LISTS

by Brian Mitchell, Derry, Northern Ireland

OFFICIAL EMIGRATION SOURCES

The only comprehensive and complete recording of passengers on their departure from Ireland are the Board of Trade Passenger Lists. These lists, arranged by year under the ports of departure, detail passengers leaving the United Kingdom by sea between 1890 and 1960. the ages, occupations and places of residence of each of the passengers is given. The Public Record Office, Ruskin Avenue, Kew, Surrey, TW9 4DU, England holds these Board of Trade Passenger Lists. Lists earlier than 1890 no longer exist.

The only official registers of passengers leaving Irish ports which survive prior to 1890 were those kept for a brief period from March 1803 to March 1806 inclusive.

For this brief period lists of emigrants to the United States are contained within the so-called Hardwicke Papers. These lists with particulars of age, occupation and, in most cases, place of abode were compiled by masters of emigrant ships and were sworn before the Commissioner, a Customs Official, in the Custom House of the port in which the ships were to sail from. A duplicate of these oaths were then submitted to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The Lord Lieutenant's permission was required before any emigrant ship could leave port. Earl Hardwicke was Lord Lieutenant of Ireland from 1801 to 1806. The majority of sailings recorded in the Hardwicke papers left from the ports of Dublin (28 sailings), Derry (26 sailings), Belfast (22 sailings), Newry (19 sailings) and Sligo (6 sailings).

BUSINESS RECORDS

Prior to 1890 surviving passenger lists in Ireland owe their existence to shop owners, who kept them for business reasons. The port of Derry is especially fortunate in this regard, having two series of such lists - the shipping lists of J & J Cooke, 1847-1867 and William McCorkell & Co., 1863-1871. These lists generally provide the name, age, and address of the passenger, and the name of the ship.

In the years 1847 to 1867 J & J Cooke carried 21, 199 passengers to North America. In 1847 alone it carried 5,071 emigrants (1,197 (23%) to Philadelphia, 2,210 (44%) to St. John, New Brunswick and 1,664 (33%) to Quebec.

A look at the order book of J & J Cooke, which lists the emigrant's place of residence, confirms that Derry served as an emigration port for counties Donegal, Derry and Tyrone. Of 1,395 passengers carried on J & J Cooke ships in 1850, 553 (40%) came from County Donegal; 363 (26%) from County Tyrone, and 307 (22%) from County Derry; so 88% of all passengers carried were from these three counties.

By the 19th century the emigrant trade depended to a large extent on people in North America paying the fare to bring out family and friends. These "engaged" passengers ensured the viability of the passenger trade for Derry shipping firms in the middle years of the 19th century. For the years 1863 to 1871 the order book of William McCorkell & Co. records the names of 5,184 passengers - all these intending emigrants were "engaged" in Philadelphia by Mssrs. Robert Taylor & Co.

ORDNANCE SURVEY MEMOIRS

In Ireland, as a prelude to a nationwide valuation of land and buildings, is the so-called Griffith's Valuation, the Ordnance Survey was directed to map the whole country at a scale of 6" to 1 mile.

It was originally intended to accompany each map with written topographical descriptions for every civil parish. The field officers of the Ordnance Survey gathered a wealth of historical and socio-economic information for many parishes in their notebooks before the idea was abandoned in 1840.

All the original manuscripts are deposited in 52 boxes in the Royal Irish Academy in Dublin. They cover 19 of Ireland's counties: Counties Antrim and Londonderry contain by far the most detailed information, with 17 and 20 boxes, respectively, of work papers. Counties Donegal, Down, Fermanagh and Tyrone consist of 2 or 3 boxes, whereas the remainder, Counties Armagh, Cavan, Cork, Galway, Leitrim, Leis, Longford, Mayo, Meath, Monaghan, Roscommon, Sligo and Tipperary have only one or part of a box each.

Although these memoirs were compiled a decade before the Great Famine, emigration was already a very significant demographic feature which was commented on and recorded by the compilers of the memoirs.

The memoirs for Counties Antrim and Londonderry were unique in that for many of their parishes, lists of emigrants were compiled for a brief period in the mid to late 1830's. As emigration records these lists are unparalleled. These lists identify both the destination of the emigrant and their place of origin in Ireland. In addition, the age, townland address, year of emigration, and religious denomination are given for each emigrant named in the memoir.

EMIGRATION DATABASE

The Ulster American Folk Park, Mellon Road, Castletown, Omagh, County Tyrone, is compiling an emigration database. This database contains information on all aspects of Irish emigration to North America. It consists of ships's passenger lists, emigrant letters, diaries, shipping advertisements and newspaper reports.

NEWSPAPERS

As the majority of Ulster emigration agents relied on newspaper advertisements to recruit passengers, it is clear that newspapers themselves contain a wealth of relevant information on emigration. For example the Londonderry Journal (new known as the Derry Journal) has been in continuous publication since the 3rd June 1772.

Generally an emigrant ship advertisement was inserted in the newspaper prior to arrival of the ship and it appeared in every issue fill the vessel sailed. Sometimes by signing their names to an advertisement previous emigrants commended sailing on a particular vessel. In Ireland copies of local newspapers will be found in libraries.

Brian Mitchell is an author and editor of genealogical books and Director of The Genealogy Centre, in Derry, Northern Ireland.

IGSI has, in its library, 39 volumes of the Ordnance Survey Memoirs. We also have the books mentioned above.

and grandfather were also interested in the preservation of this monument to the suffering of the Irish.

We have contacted the Public Relations Officer, Centre Educatif Des Migrations, in Quebec and they were nice enough to send us some brochures on the island and its tourist services. If you are interested in receiving one, please send an SASE.

Dublin – The library has received a book on the Glasnevin Cemetery in Dublin. This is a cemetery of Historic Graves, that is many history-making men of 1916. Among the memorials is Kevin Barry and his nine comrades who were hanged in Mountjoy. The cemetery conducts tours throughout the summer on Sunday mornings only. I know many of you would find this most interesting. I can copy their letter for you, just send an SASE.

Kerry – Latest update on their indexing project. They are still busy with the indexing and will not take queries until it is finished, hopefully by the beginning of 1996. Also, a new Bishop has been appointed for the Diocese but no word yet on his attitude towards the opening of Co Kerry Catholic Parish Records (Kerry is one of the closed Diocese).

Waterford – We have been adding cemetery transcriptions of Waterford City to our Library. Michal O Sullivan, 15 Andrew Street, Waterford City, is responsible for this project. Anyone interested in purchasing his works can write him for costs. He does accept U. S. Dollars!

Clans

Ross – Clan Ross has a Clan Ross Association and has just published the third edition of the book, The Great Clan Ross, With Genealogies of the Cadet Branches in Scotland and the New World. For further info, write: Marilyn L. Ross, 5430 5th St So, Arlington VA 22204-1203. Many Ross' in Ireland!

Minnesota Genealogical Society, P.O. Box 16069, St. Paul, MN 55116-0069 is where you send a request to join. The cost, as of January 5th is $18.00 for individual membership and $22.00 for family membership for one year. If you are doing any research in Minnesota, you might consider joining. further information, call MGS at (612) 645-3671

Two issues ago, we ventured the opinion that there was not very much genealogical stuff available on computer. Then, last issue, after a few months "surfing" the Internet, a list of lots of nifty places was printed, showing areas where genealogical information is kept. Now the question is, what kinds of information will be found on sites such as those listed and elsewhere.

First of all, most of the primary records which we are all seeking will generally not be found on computer. That is, raw census information, church records, birth, marriage, death records, and wills. If you stop to think for a moment, the reason is obvious. These records were and are being kept on paper and there is no government or church which has the funds or time or even the interest in computerizing its old records.

What might you find then?

Primarily, you will find people such as yourself and the volunteer groups to which they belong. There is no big telephone directory giving the names and addresses of these people and groups, but they are out there. And many of them are doing or have done much genealogical research in your area of interest: genealogy, Ireland, or perhaps, butterflies. And they want to exchange information. Your task is to find them.

They may have transcribed some of the census data which you are interested in, or the baptismal records from the church where your great grandmother was christened, or the cemetery records of the local community. The rosters of many Civil War military units have been recorded. They are working with the same computer programs which you use and love to help others for they received help when they first started in computing. They know the blind alleys one encounters in research and the ways to get around them.

These people are generally found on Bulletin Board Systems and on Soc.Culture.I&UK, Soc.Culture.Computing, alt.Genealogy and similar newsgroups. The ROOTS-L Mailing list is also a good way of finding people who may be searching your name or area.

Just ask. Be as specific as possible with your question subjects. A query titled "Help" or "Ireland" or "Reidy", tells one that you probably don't know too much. There are many messages daily in some areas, and after a while one becomes quite selective in reading messages. It would be better to title your message "Reidy-Kerry" or "Reidy-Castleisland-Kerry-1841" or "Reidy/McAuliffe/Aherne/Murphy-Kerry." That tells the prospective reader that you know something and might also be able to contribute to them.

There are commercial firms on line such as Everton's, Lineages and Irish Heritage Research which may be of value for they have large lists of those who have worked with them in the past and that may be an easy way of finding ancestors.

States such as NY and KY have some of their records indexed. The State of Illinois has a computerized list of those who purchased land from the government in the 19th century. The Minnesota Historical Society which contains its collection and the State Archives is also on line. No doubt other states also are computerized in some fashion or another. Much of the U.S. National Archives has been indexed and is available. Most large city and university libraries are now on line with their card catalogs and searching these ahead of time may save you valuable time.

There are a few Irish sources containing extracts for a tiny number of parishes for the 1851 census. Mostly what they do contain is information about Ireland in general, and on how to go about doing Irish genealogy. If you do not have access to good reference books, this can be an important help in your work.

Another way to gather information is to subscribe to mailing lists. There are several for Ireland, mostly dealing with language and culture, not genealogy.

There are at least two Irish bookstores with Home Pages. Kenny's Bookshop in Galway and Read Ireland in Dublin. Most Irish books would not be found in American bookstores so this would be a good way to purchase additions to your library.

If you are just starting out in computing, a subscription to a commercial on-line service such as Prodigy, America OnLine (AOL), Compuserve, and Genie, which might cost as little as $10 a month, might be the way for you to go. They are very user friendly and have organized themselves so interest groups can easily share information, not just on genealogy, but on everything imaginable.

The World Wide Web is the most exciting development to date in the Internet. It is also accessible by some BBSs and the commercial services. It allows individuals and organizations to set up an area where they can display the information they have collected themselves, and also provide links to other areas where they have found information deemed useful. This allows an individual who perhaps may have transcribed some church records or researched their family back to 1492 (or 1870, for that matter) to display them for all to use. This is the part of the Internet which is growing most rapidly, changing daily.

A free service (for individuals) called emcee.com is attempting to collect family genealogies. Another called GEN-SERV provides a similar site. You can only access it after you have contributed your own family tree (in GEDCOM format) for others to view. On BBS's, there is a service called WGW (Who's Got What) which is attempting to create a data base of individuals who have transcribed records which might be useful to someone else.

Genealogy can be a very frustrating hobby. But one of the pleasures to be found is "surfing" the Internet and seeing what others have done. It opens up possibilities for you. And someday, maybe not that far off, you will come upon that missing link which you have long been seeking.

One can hope.

As with anything you find in researching your family, be somewhat skeptical of the information you receive. Just because someone writes something down does not mean that it is accurate. You may encounter "trolling," that is, some will propose an outrageous or deliberately false statement, sometimes humorous, often not, just to see what kind of reaction they will get. And be prepared to encounter strong language at times—in places where one would least expect it. Unfortunately, the world contains a number of immature people whose mission in life seems to be upsetting others.

It hasn't gone too far yet, but it is the tentative plan of the IGSI to put some of the articles found in back issues of the Septs on our own Home Page (http://www.mtn.org/mgs/branches/irish.html). Things such as the Index from Calvary Cemetery in NY, the bibliography of the Casey Collection books, perhaps our Surname Index, our County summaries, the card catalog of the books in our library, stuff for sale, etc. And certainly we will be providing links to other Home Pages which would be useful to Irish genealogists. Now that the hot and humid months of summer are over, progress will begin to be seen.

21st Century Campaign

Minnesota Genealogical Society

In the last decade the Minnesota Genealogical Society (MGS) has moved from one location to another four times: from a meager storefront on Fort Road, St. Paul, to the current 2,750 square feet of book shelves, classroom, and storage space. Now we are feeling the "pinch of growth" again.

In ten short years we have grown well beyond the practical ability to respond to increasing space needs. It is clear that it is time to plan for something more permanent, a facility large enough to carry us into the 21st Century.

To that end, an "all-volunteer" Building Committee was appointed by the MGS Board to look ahead ten years and project our building needs as we start a new page in our brief but productive history. Fortunately, we have three years left on our current lease; that gives us three years to put together a plan and bring about successful results.

After studying alternatives, the Committee recommended that MGS launch a building fund campaign (named the 21st Century Campaign) to raise money needed to acquire a larger, more permanent home. The Committee's recommendation is that the funds be used to purchase a building or that the interest earnings be used to cover the increased lease and operating costs of a larger facility.

Space Utilization Current vs. Future

Space Utilization	Current (Sq. Ft)	Future (Sq. Ft)
Book Shelves / Study Carrels	1,115	3,000
Meeting Room(s)	455	1,800
Film & Fiche Readers	195	400
Computer Facilities	20	200
Display / Sales Area	45	100
Office/Administrative	110	400
Storage	480	1,000
Utility/Bathrooms/Hallways	330	600
TOTAL	2,750	7,500

The preliminary space projections are for an expandable facility of 7,500 square feet, estimated to cost $100/square foot; thus, the 21st Century Campaign goal is $750,000. A three-year plan that will allow contributors to budget their donations.

Solicitation letters will be mailed to all MGS and Branch members in September and October of 1995. Everyone will receive a letter from MGS, a fact sheet about MGS and its Branches, the building requirements, and a pledge card.

Three new uses of a larger MGS home that are especially significant to the Branches are:

A. Branch collections. Some Branches do not currently house their book and film collections in the MGS Library. Reasons vary. It is hoped that a more spacious permanent home will encourage all to more their collections on-site, as a benefit to the Branch and other patrons.

B. Large meeting space. Many Branches attract 50-100 members to their meetings in rented space. A large meeting room would give Branches the option of holding their meetings at the MGS Library.

C. Computer stations. More information of value to genealogists is becoming available through computer access: on CD-ROM, through the INTERNET, and through technologies not yet fully envisioned. MGS needs a facility that will allow for classroom computer training and individual computer research.

My Peter Robinson Ancestors

by Mary Catherine McNellis

Michael Carew and Ann Hogan, born in Ireland in the late 1700s were my great great grandparents. James Carew and Mary Ann Doran, born in Canada in the 1830s were my great grandparents. When I began Carew research, I was fortunate to have in my possession a copy of The Carew Family Tree as compiled by James W. Carew, with much assistance from Alvin D. Carew and his son, Jack; also help from Mrs. Gerald Griffin, and from Mrs. Jeannette Byse. The Carew Family Tree begins with information about the family of Michael Carew and Ann Regan. Their children were Bridget, Patrick, Michael, John and William, all born in Ireland. A fifth son was born, died, and buried at sea while the family was aboard ship enroute to North America. As the captain's name was Lewis, and the ship was the FORTITUDE, the baby was given the name Lewis Fortitude. The family settled in Ontario where the two youngest children, James and Ann were born.

Of course, I was highly motivated to discover additional information about the Carew forebears, to pinpoint a definite location where they lived in Upper Canada, and what their life must have been like in a new country. As I thought about a procedure to find a way into Canadian research, I had the good fortune to learn of a list of names entitled The Peter Robinson Emigrants—From the Peter Robinson Papers—1825 in the MGS Library collection. The list included the name of the ship on which the emigrant sailed, heads of family, their children, and their place of origin in Ireland. I found that the family of Michael and Ann Carew, my great great grandparents, were listed among the Peter Robinson Emigrants who came to Canada in 1825. Also listed as passengers aboard the FORTITUDE were the names of Martin and Mary Doran and their five children; William, Mary, Lawrence, (Norah), Catherine and Daniel.

> "These valuable documents, in his own handwriting, were found in an old trunk nearly a century later and were almost discarded."

I became anxious to learn about this group of people with whom my great great grandparents had come to Canada. I found an answer in excellent reference books; The Holy Land by Clare F. Galvin and The Peter Robinson Settlers of 1825 by Bill LaBranche. These sources opened an entire world of specific information about the Carew family. I learned details of the opportunity that prompted them to leave Ireland, the means by which they reach Canada and about the severity of life in new surroundings.

In his booklet, The Peter Robinson Settlers of 1825, Bill LaBranche describes the steps in the mass emigration from Ireland to Canada. First, in 1825 a government handbill appeared in the streets of all southern Irish towns. LaBranche goes on to say "little did anyone know at the time that this was the beginning of one of the most successful emigrations ever conducted to the New World. Little did they realize, also the profound effect this handbill would have on a land over 3,000 miles away — a land very few people had ever set eyes upon." The handbill contained the terms to become a member of this emigration to Canada.

Peter Robinson, son of a Loyalist family, was superintendent of the newly announced 1825 emigration scheme. After a limited number of prospective settlers from Ireland to Upper Canada had been selected, they would be conveyed from the place of embarkations in Ireland to their land in Upper Canada at public charge. Provisions would be provided during the voyage, and for one year after their location upon the tracts in Upper Canada. Thousands of applications were submitted. From these applications 2,024 emigrants or about 300 families were chosen. They embarked from Cork in 1825 aboard nine sailing ships; ALBION, AMITY, BRUNSWICK, ELIZABETH, FORTITUDE, JOHN BARRY, REGULUS, RESOLUTION, and STAR. Many died during the ocean voyage or soon after arrival in Canada.

Upon arrival at Quebec the settlers traveled to Kingston, Ontario where they lived for a time in a tent village. Many were ill as well as suffering from summer heat. When Peter Robinson met the group there, they moved to Cobourg by steamship. From Cobourg transportation was by ox cart or by boat. Along this leg of the journey, it was necessary to cut a trail through the wilderness. From Rice Lake, the weary emigrants traveled the Otonabee River in small groups in a specially-designed boat to a site that is now Peterborough. After being assigned tracts of land, they constructed their first rude shanties.

This settlement near Peterborough was the second wave of emigration led by Peter Robinson. His earlier experimental emigration scheme left

Cork for Quebec in 1823. Two ships, the HEBE and the STAKESBY, carried 568 people and each vessel had a surgeon who cared for them during the voyage and accompanied the settlers to Upper Canada. Their final destination was the Bathurst District in the Ottawa Valley. In a book, Valley Irish by Carol Bennett and D. W. McCuaig, Bennett goes into much detail to describe life in early days, the various localities where families settled, and information about descendants. In a subsequent book Peter Robinson Settlers 1825, Bennett writes of both the 1823 Bathurst District and the 1825 Newcastle District (Peterborough). She is of the opinion that from her study of names and places or origin of the two groups, many relationships existed between the settlers in the Bathurst District and the settlers in the Newcastle District.

As I began my search for information about my great grandmother, Mary Ann Doran, I learned that Kathleen Doran Fenton had published The Dorans of Ontario, Wisconsin and Minnesota in the Canadian Genealogist (Vol 6, No. 1 March 1984, pp 25-53). Mary Ann Doran was born in Emily Township ca 1831. She married James Carew 15 October 1852 in Cobourg, Ontario. Her parents were William and Jane Maney Doran. The young couple were neighbors on the Ennismore-Emily border. Fenton says that Mary Ann was the first Doran to leave Canada. It is probably that late in the fall of 1852 the entire Carew family, which now included Mary Ann Doran, embarked on a second journey over water—this time the Great Lakes. The eldest Carew daughter, Bridget, a Peter Robinson emigrant, had married Michael Crough and the young couple remained in Canada. The destination of the Carew family was Waupaca County, Wisconsin, USA, which had recently opened for settlement. As had been the circumstances at Peterborough, they were once again faced with clearing forested lands.

In 1994 Kathleen Doran Fenton and Olive T. Doran published a complete Doran family history entitled: The Dorans of Ireland and Ontario, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Missouri—Descendants of Martin Doran (ca 1785-ca 1840) and Mary Moynehan (ca 1785 - 1854)

The introduction states that writing the history was too monumental a task for one person, so the book is an international collaboration, with Kathleen Doran Fenton doing most writing on the United States branches and Olive T. Doran on the Canadian branches.

The Peterborough Centennial Museum, Peterborough, Ontario has in its archives the original Peter Robinson papers. These valuable documents, in his own handwriting, were found in an old trunk nearly a century later and were almost discarded. The survival of the Peter Robinson papers is valuable to researchers, as each document contains a wealth of information. Contents include a passenger list for each ship and embarkation certificates with names and ages of each family member. Sometimes comments about the physical condition, attitude or behavior of an emigrant may be found in a log kept by the ship's surgeon, as well as letters of recommendation written by clergy or landlords.

Many families, descendants of the Peter Robinson settlers, remain in the Peterborough area today. Carol Bennett, Clare Galvin, and other Peter Robinson descendants made a tremendous contribution to posterity in preserving historical fact, anecdotes, burial ground records, tombstone inscriptions, land records, photos, statistics and lists which all add up to wealth of genealogical information.

I am certain that Michael and Ann Carew, their son and daughter-in-law, James and Mary Ann Carew, never suspected as they struggled to survive the rigors of frontier life that succeeding generations would read about them in printed material.

[The book The Holy Land by Clare F. Galvin – A History of Ennismore Township; among other wonderful chapters, shows a plat map, with names of settlers. It includes lists of the settlers, showing surname, each family member, age, ship, and where they are from, such as:

Sullivan, Cornelius	age 44
Dingle, Co. Kerry
Patrick,	age 20
John,	age 18
Mary,	age 16
Elizabeth,	age 14
Bridget,	age 12

The book "The Peter Robinson Settlement of 1825" by Bill LaBranche shows the passenger lists, surname and family members and then were they settled in Canada.

The Peter Robinson Papers have been microfilmed and can be ordered from LDS Family History Centers film #0496915. ed.]

Ordnance Survey Maps Added to "Book Sales"

Some of us have an obsession with maps, especially when it comes to doing our genealogical research. They are an important tool in our research!

We have come to an working agreement with the Ordnance Survey Office in Dublin. As a result of this agreement, you will be able to order these maps (1/2" to 1 mile) which do show some townlands. There are 24 maps to cover the whole country. Maps number 1 and 20 are no longer available in this series, but are offered in the new OS Discovery Series. We will obtain these also as they become available. We have already ordered the ones of the new series covering the areas of numbers 1 and 20 of the older series.

The last map I purchased in Ireland in this series several years ago, cost me 3.75 IRE, which at today's exchange is $6.22! We will be offering them to you for just a little over this price for one map, less for two or more. Also, shipping is at a reduced rate because of their weight.

The OS Discovery Series has published 22 maps to date, with 10 more due for release in 1995. There will be 89 maps in this new series when it is complete.

An index of the areas covered by each map is published in this newsletter. If you have questions, please feel free to write. Don't forget your SASE.

Prices: $7.00 for one, $6.00 each for two or more

$1.00 P&H for one, $ .50 P&H for each additional map

Maps mailed FREE with other book orders!
